Hanoi to Free Last POWs This Week

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnam told the United States early today it intended to release the last group of American prisoners Tuesday and Wednesday, but said the U.S. demand that it also release POWs captured in Laos "is beyond the jurisdiction" of the cease-fire agreement.

The United States has suspended withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam until it gets assurance the prisoners in Laos will be released. The Communist side has delayed of American POWs by two the repatriation of the last days.

POWs pending a resumption of troop withdrawals.

A letter from the North Vietnamese delegation to the four-party Joint Military Commission notified the United States of North Vietnam's intent to release 40 U.S. prisoners Tuesday and 67 Wednesday.

A prisoner subcommittee of the four-party joint military commission convened a special session this morning in efforts to resolve the issue that the already has delayed the release of American POWs by two the repatriation of the last days.

But details on time and place of the release, demanded by the United States as a condition for the final pullout of U.S. troops from Vietnam, were not provided and the dispute over release of the final U.S. prisoners in Vietnam also persisted, according to a UPI report.

The Communist demand announced at Saturday's meeting of the four-party JMC was in response to the position taken by the U.S. about the prisoners in Laos Gen. John W. Wickham said.

The Vietnam cease-fire agreement specifies that both the prisoner exchange and the military withdrawal be completed by Wednesday.

The United States two days ago also insisted publicly that withdrawal of its troops from South Vietnam, under conditions outlined in the cease-fire, was conditional on the release not only of Americans held by North Vietnam and the Viet Cong but also of those captured by the Communists in neighboring Laos.

There are 107 Americans still held in North Vietnam.

The nine Americans held by the Laotian Communists are not mentioned in the cease-fire agreement. But the United States has maintained that an understanding between Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho, the U.S. and North Vietnamese officials who negotiated the accord, was that those held in Laos would be released with the other prisoners.

Until the Communists agree to this, the withdrawal of the remaining 6,300 American servicemen in South Vietnam will be held up, the United States has announced.

A Navy pilot who was the last American captured before the Vietnam cease-fire went into effect Jan. 27 was on the final Viet Cong list of 32 prisoners of war turned over to U.S. authorities in Saigon Saturday.

On the list were 27 U.S. military prisoners and five civilians who were captured by the Viet Cong during the Jan. 1968 Tet offensive.

The North Vietnamese had yet to furnish a list of the last group of 107 Americans to be released.

The last American captured in the war, Lt. Cmdr. Phillip A. Kientzler, 32, Wyckoff, N.J., was shot down over South Vietnam's Quang Tri province on Jan. 27 a few hours before the cease-fire went into effect.

Meanwhile, the deputy chief of the Viet Cong delegation to the Joint Military Commission (JMC) said Saturday the Communists had installed controversial SAM antiaircraft missiles in South Vietnam's Khe Sanh valley prior to the Jan. 28 cease-fire.

Missiles were first spotted around the old U.S. Marine air strip at Khe Sanh on Feb. 18, according to American and South Vietnamese spokesmen. Aerial photos taken of the area Jan. 24 showed no such missile sites, the spokesmen said.

After South Vietnam complained to the International Control and Supervision Commission (ICCS) about the presence of the missiles, U.S. spokesmen reported March 12 that the three missile sites had been dismantled.

However, Gen. Wickham, deputy chief of the U.S. delegation to the JMC, announced Thursday that a new missile site has been found 800 yards from the air strip.

Col. Vo Dong Giang, deputy chief of the Viet Cong's JMC delegation, told a news conference Saturday that the U.S. charge that the missiles were installed in violation of the Paris agreement "is only a ruse by the U.S. to cover up its illegal armaments shipments to Da Nang."

"Our forces and weapons remain in place—that is to say (as they were) before the cease-fire," he said.

Asked whether the Viet Cong had missile sites around Khe Sanh before the Paris agreement took effect Jan. 28, Giang said:

"I think that is known to every journalist who covered the fighting in Quang Tri area. Not only once were U.S. planes shot down."

Nixon on Watergate ... Nothing to Hide

and his election campaign committee denied exerting pressure on any defendants to plead guilty and remain silent.

Defendant James W. McCord Jr., breaking nine months of silence by the seven men convicted of bugging Democratic headquarters last summer, charged Friday that perjury was committed during the trial in January, that unnamed others were involved in the case, and that the defendants were subjected to "political pressure" to keep silent.

Meanwhile, former Attorney General John N. Mitchell said

Saturday night he hasn't the "faintest idea" what McCord intends to reveal about the bugging case.

Mitchell also disputed a published report that his wife's threat to leave him if he didn't quit politics was triggered by the arrest of McCord last June 17.

McCord's surprise offer to Patrick Gray's nomination as

FBI director. Although the President, spending the weekend in Key Biscayne, Fla., had no comment on McCord's charges, Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said Nixon asserted White House innocence in the case earlier in the week during a meeting of GOP congressional leaders.

At the end of the meeting Tuesday, Scott said, Nixon called him aside and said:

"Hugh, I have nothing to hide. The White House has nothing to hide. I repeat, we have nothing to hide and you are authorized to make that statement in my name."

On Nixon's orders, White House Counsel John W. Dean III conducted an internal investigation last summer, using confidential FBI reports furnished at his request by Gray, the acting FBI director. Nixon said in August that Dean's investigation had cleared all then-current White House staff members of wrongdoing.

McCord gave no hint who had exerted the pressure which he claimed in his letter to Sirica, but DeVan L. Shumway, public affairs director of the Committee for the Re-election of the President, said none came from Nixon's campaign staff.

"I will say to my knowledge, no one in the committee ever pressured McCord or any other defendant to remain silent and plead guilty," Shumway said.

The Senate's special Watergate investigation committee and a federal grand jury reopening its probe of political burglary and wiretapping met Monday with the surprise revelations of McCord bearing heavily on both.

Judge Sirica postponed sentencing of McCord for one week to give the former security chief for President Nixon's campaign an opportunity to tell his story.

McCord is expected to meet with the judge in his chambers sometime during the coming week, hopefully to give the court some information which might ease his sentence.

But Sirica made it clear Friday he reserves the right to disclose what he learns from McCord to the grand jury and even to the Senate investigators.

Wounded Knee...An Air of Optimism

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (UPI) — Government officials said Saturday another 1,400 rounds of gunfire erupted during the night between Indian militants occupying Wounded Knee and government forces manning roadblocks around it.

Again, no injuries were reported. Sources close to the Indians indicated the gunfire was a disciplinary tactic designed to permit supporters to enter the besieged village by walking through ravines across the rolling prairie of the Pine Ridge Oglala Sioux reservation. It was the second night of heavy fire from American Indian Movement (AIM) members and supporters who have occupied the historic Sioux village for 25 days, and of answering fire from the federal side.

Government spokesmen said about 700 rounds were fired out of the village and FBI agents and U.S. marshals returned a similar amount.

Despite the development, there was an air of optimism among principals in the stand-off Saturday.

Two top government negotiators, assistant attorney general Harlington Wood and Marvin Franklin, assistant interior secretary for Indian affairs, returned to the Pine Ridge Reservation after consultations in Washington.

Russell Means, a leader of the AIM occupiers, indicated he expected a telephone call from Wood and asked newsmen and others to leave the telephone line into Wounded Knee free.

The status of an announced march set for today by AIM supporters to try to run the federal roadblocks from the Rosebud Indian reservation about 65 miles east of here was in doubt.

AIM member Aaron Decersa, who calls himself an AIM information officer for South Dakota, announced that the march had been cancelled. But Means told newsmen in Wounded Knee that as far as he knew it still was on.

AIM took over this historic site at gunpoint Feb. 27, ransacked a museum and trading post and held 11 residents of Wounded Knee hostage for two days. They have dug trenches in front of a church built alongside the mass grave of 200-300 Sioux who were killed by U.S. cavalry troops in 1890.

Golden Hill Jail Opening July 1

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON A July 1 opening of Ulster County's new $3.4 million jail complex on Golden Hill has been locked in, according to Clifford W. Snyder (R-Dist. 1), chairman of the County Legislature's Sheriff's Committee, who said that construction is just about completed with interior painters on the job this week to put some of the finishing touches to the facility.

The opening of the jail will be of long term benefit to the community, Snyder explained, saying that the present jail behind the Court House on Wall Street is archaic and has been the subject of substantial criticism by the State Department of Correction for a number of years.

The opening of the new jail will eliminate the constant overcrowding at the present facility, provide separate quarters for various types of criminals, allow complete surveillance of the cell blocks and corridors of the jail through closed-circuit television and do away with the now sometimes unavoidably undetected passage of drugs and other materials through the present jail windows which face on a huge parking lot on three sides of the present jail.

The new facility also will permit an economy insofar as meal preparation and laundry facilities are concerned. As planned the kitchen in the closely adjacent and newly constructed Ulster County Infirmary will provide meals for the jail which will be carried in portable hot carts from one facility to the other.

The new jail now includes a large laundry with quarry tile floors, in which all the laundry for both the jail and infirmary will be done. "Both the food and laundry-sharing facilities are a move toward effecting a savings for the taxpayer," Snyder said.

In touring the jail, one finds little that has been overlooked in the way of security, efficiency and practicality.

Security being utmost, the planners have provided electronically operated doors between one area and another.

For instance, when a prisoner is being brought to the jail, he enters through electronically controlled doors. Before one door is opened, the one behind him is locked shut. The progression of electronically operated doors continues through the entire jail complex.

Cell blocks containing strings of individual cells are also under double security, in that they too, are encircled with another row of bars through which guards may pass meals, at one time. There are cells second and third floors, with 144 male prisoners and other women located on the first floor. Administrative offices are on the first floor of the examinations rooms, a library, T-shaped building designed by chapel, quarters for a matron, Albert Milliken, architect.

Medical also on the first floor of the examinations rooms, a library, T-shaped building designed by chapel, quarters for a matron, Albert Milliken, architect.

There is also a garage on the property as well as a water standpipe which is being erected next to the old Golden Hill annex which has a capacity in excess of 460,000 gallons.

According to Kenneth Whispell, clerk of the works, construction, which began in 1971, has been smooth and the completion of the job is running on schedule.

County Girl Murder Victim

CLINTONDALE Seventeen-year-old Janine Ligotino's body has been shipped home to Clintondale for burial, and Gainesville, Fla. police are still seeking her murderer.

Two girls of the same age were found Wednesday, lying dead along a dirt road near State Road 24 in Gainesville. The other was identified Friday as Ann Arceneaux of Silver Springs, Md.

Police said the girls had no permanent address and had been living with friends in the area.

The two bodies were found fully clothed. The Ligotino girl had been stabbed 13 times, and Miss Arceneaux had been stabbed seven times, authorities said.

One of the bodies was found lying on the dirt road by city work crewmen. The other was found nearby in a patch of weeds.

Miss Ligotino had been in the Gainesville area since December, according to police, after leaving home. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ligotino, Costa Road, Highland.

Police said Miss Arceneaux had been dead for only about "seven to eight hours" when vendor for awhile, but that found. Friends told police that otherwise neither girl had any employment record in the area. Gainesville police said there were no signs of sexual abuse, but bruises on the bodies indicate there had been a struggle.

Samples of the girls' clothing have been sent to the FBI for analysis.

Police are also checking into a report that a late model car was seen leaving the field in northeast Gainesville where the bodies were found.

Gainesville police Sgt. Melfors told The Freeman that the girls had been dead for only about "seven to eight hours" when vendor for awhile, but that found. Friends told police that otherwise neither girl had any acquaintances that Tuesday night in the city.

And the sergeant said that identification had been established on the Ligotino girl by sending photographs to New York.

It was also theorized that the two girls may have been hitchhiking when the tragedy occurred.

"It's quite a common thing to have young kids from all over the country down here in the winter," said the sergeant.

He declined to comment further on any leads the police might have on the case.

The stainless steel cubicles with small windows resemble today's modern telephone booths. The cubicles afford complete privacy in that they are relatively soundproof. Ulster Violence... 4 Deaths BELFAST (UPI) — Gunmen shot and killed a Roman Catholic man at the door of his home Saturday and the third of four British soldiers, lured by two girls to a Belfast apartment where they were machine gunned, died of his wounds. The four deaths, the most in any 24-hour period this year, raised the toll to 757 persons killed in violence among Catholics, Protestants and the British security forces in Northern Ireland since August 1969.

Kuwait Charges Violation

KUWAIT (UPI) — Kuwait maintained its occupation of a border post captured in a clash Tuesday with Kuwaiti border police.

Vatican Acts On Sex Surveys

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The Roman Catholic church Saturday extended an excommunication edict to include anyone who sells or promotes a sex survey based on confessional statements given by priests on sexual matters.

In a clarification of an excommunication order issued against the authors and publishers of the book on Friday, the Vatican said Saturday anyone who promotes the sale of the book in any way also falls under the edict.

Excommunication excludes Catholics from church membership.

Authors Norberto Valentini and Clara di Meglio, whose book "Sex in the Confessional" caused the unusual Vatican move, said Friday they were non-practicing Catholics anyway and were not concerned about being excommunicated. The only practicing Christian at the Marsilio Publishing Co., which brought out the book, said he is a Methodist.

A government source said two Soviet MIG fighters of the Iraqi air force flew over Kuwaiti areas and territorial waters during the day. Iraqi warplanes also flew over the island of Afailaka which, the source said, belongs to Kuwait.

The cabinet and parliament held separate emergency sessions to discuss the situation. Kuwait and Iraq have been involved in a long standing dispute over their joint borders.

Parliament later issued a statement declaring its "sorrow for the failure of the Iraqi government to respond to our appeal to withdraw its troops from Kuwaiti territory." The statement said Parliament will remain in continuous session

Uganda Says Move Crushed

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI) — Uganda said Saturday it had crushed an invasion by a 3,500-man force from neighboring Tanzania and captured documents indicating more attacks were imminent.

Radio Uganda said the Tanzanian force drove deep into Uganda Friday but was repulsed by superior Ugandan forces, who captured most of the invaders and the documents.

Falls Road area for his brother, police said. Huddleston's brother was seriously wounded, they said.

The outbreak of violence also left a British soldier critically injured in a County Armagh landmine explosion.

The killing of the soldiers was described by an army spokesman as a "coldly-calculated murder operation." The attack came after a three-day lull following publication of the official white paper outlining Britain's plans for Ulster's future and provides for a sharing of power between the majority Protestants and minority Catholics.

The militant Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army (IRA) announced its rejection of the British plans Friday and said it would continue its campaign of "armed resistance" against British rule. Extremist Protestant organizations also denounced the White Paper as unacceptable.

The Official wing of the IRA said Saturday it too rejected the White Paper's proposals but would maintain the cease-fire its members have observed since last summer.

Lewis Trial... Defense Next

KINGSTON District Attorney Francis J. Vogt rested the people's case against Jack Duane Lewis in County Court Friday morning after calling two medical witnesses in the third day of prosecution testimony attempting to convict Lewis of the beating death of 17-year-old Colleen Thurin of Kingston last August.

Robert Ricken, Lewis's court-appointed defense attorney, will begin calling defense witnesses when court reconvenes before County Judge Raymond J. Mino at 10 a.m. Monday.

Vogt rested the people's case shortly before noon after calling Dr. Alyong Kim, who treated Miss Thurin in the emergency room of Benedictine Hospital after she was found beside South Putt's Corners Road in the Town of New Paltz on Aug. 26, and Dr. Roberto Benitez, who performed the autopsy on the Kingston High School senior's body after she died three days later.

Dr. Kim said Miss Thurin told her she had been beaten by an unknown man and that she had been raped while unconscious from the beating. She said Miss Thurin was covered with mud and was suffering acute pain from extensive bruises about her body.

Dr. Kim said under cross-examination that she had taken a specimen to determine if the girl had been raped. She said the test was negative but that she had been unable to obtain an adequate specimen, and that there was no physical indication that the girl had been raped.

Dr. Benitez, director of the Kingston City Laboratory, said that a post-mortem examination of Miss Thurin's body on Aug. 29 revealed that she had died of renal (kidney) deficiency and pulmonary complications from the injuries she suffered.

Dr. Benitez described numerous multiple internal and external injuries suffered by the victim, saying they were of the type usually seen in severe auto accidents except that there were no bone fractures. He said that her beating had been inflicted by a strong person, but refused to say if it possibly had been done by more than one person. He said that there was no indication that Miss Thurin had been raped.

Lewis, who had lived in a New Paltz apartment for about six months prior to last August, was on parole after serving slightly more than five years of a 5 to 15 year sentence for the death of Clara Summerson in her Elmira apartment after he reportedly met her in a bar in that city.

He was arrested by State Police outside his home on Aug. 26 as a parole violator after witnesses told police he had been seen in Joe's East-West Bar on Route 299 east of New Paltz the previous night, since the terms of his parole prohibited him from visiting bars or taverns. The murder charge was filed against him when Miss Thurin died three days later.

Lewis sat quietly in court during the Friday session after receiving a warning from Judge Mino for an emotional outburst Thursday as BCI Investigator Wayne Beyea of the Hurley State Police station testified concerning Lewis's responses while being questioned about Miss Thurin's death.

Gunmen Net $700 in Robbery

TOWN OF KINGSTON An armed holdup at the Retreat Restaurant on Route 28 early Saturday morning netted two robbers about $700 in cash and a television set.

State police detectives (BCI) at the Hurley station said that two males entered the restaurant-bar about 3:50 a.m. One reportedly brandished a small caliber handgun, and the other stuck an object into the bartender's back that was believed to be a handgun.

The robbers told the only two men in the establishment to lie down, and the gunmen proceeded to tie them up with electrical wire ripped from appliances in the bar.

The two victims were identified as John Noble of Stone Road, West Hurley, a bartender and Werner Couillard, who lives near the restaurant and does some part time bartending there, said police.

The front door to the bar was open, although the bar was actually closed for business, police said.

With both men tied up and lying behind the bar, the two assailants took a television from a shelf over the bar and rifled the cash register, according to reports.

It took the victims "about 20 to 25 minutes" to escape their bonds and notify police, said detectives, and the robbers were long gone when they arrived.

The robbers were described as both being white, of medium stature, and of medium build. Owner of the Retreat Restaurant is Nicholas Carl.

Gray Action... Delay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Saturday the Senate must delay action on the nomination of L. Patrick Gray III as FBI director until "all the facts are laid bare."

Mansfield told a news conference that the controversy over the nomination came closer to "a climax" Friday when Watergate defendant James W. McCord Jr. promised to divulge details of political pressure in the spying case. Senate Judiciary Committee hearings on Gray's nomination have become deeply involved in the mystery surrounding the Watergate affair.

The White House also announced Friday it has "no intention" of withdrawing the nomination.

"I do not think the committee has a responsibility not to take action until all the facts are laid bare in connection with the nomination," Mansfield said.

"With new allegations coming out almost every day," he said, "the committee, both Democrats and Republicans," ought to get to the bottom of it "before a decision or judgment is arrived at."

He added that any vote on the nomination, "either in committee or before the full Senate, would be 'nip and tuck'."

Gray, who has served as acting FBI director since the death of J. Edgar Hoover last May, was almost assured of Senate confirmation until he disclosed that he had given raw FBI files on the Watergate to White House Counsel John W. Dean III. Democrats said this invoked the doctrine of executive privilege which protects confidentiality between the President and his subordinates.

Committee members also said they would not act on have put Gray "between the devil and the deep blue sea." could question Dean about his involvement in the bugging and target in the committee effort break-in last June at the to get information vis-a-vis the Watergate offices of the Democratic National Committee. to testify and that business of But President Nixon refused executive privilege as well, to allow Dean to testify before Mansfield said.

Freeman Readers Write the Editor

Editor, The Freeman:

This is to bring to your attention and to the attention of our peers (i.e. fellow citizens, property owners, taxpayers) everywhere and especially to those in Ulster County, New York and New York State, an accounting of the treatment that some of them are experiencing as a result of the exercising of the laws of condemnation. The specific people in this account are my mother and my father and their fellow citizens of Ulster County and New York State.

A brief look into the records of the State of New York, Ulster County, and the Town of Ulster will surely enlighten anyone as to the contributions that Cortland and Mabel Van Etten have made during their many years of residence in Lake Katine, New York. It goes well beyond the records, of course, when one considers the multitude of involvements we all have in sharing life in a community with our neighbors.

Recently, a controversial decision was made that had been under consideration for years. The turmoil goes back at least to my childhood. The proposals were:

1. When the Leggs Mills bridge at Esopus Creek on County Road 90 is replaced, should the old bridge be torn down and a new one constructed in the exact same location with improvements made in the turns and roadway on each end.

2. Should a new bridge be constructed alongside the old bridge with improvements made in the turns and roadway at each end.

The result has been the construction of a new bridge next to the old bridge, a widening of the road, very little change in the radius of the turns on each end of the bridge (little improvement), a new, additional radius on the south end (no improvement), a severe safety hazard since the relocation of the roadway does not allow one to observe vehicles coming out of my folks' driveway when approaching from the south and does not allow one to observe vehicles exiting from my parents' private roadway when approaching the bridge from the north. Both views are now blocked by my folks' house which, prior to the taking of their property, did not present any roadway visibility problem.

Condemnation

lems. Also, Ulster County has acquired additional lands which must now be cared for with taxpayers' dollars.

My parents did not wish to give up their property for so controversial a project as I have described. Their neighbors on both sides of the bridge took the same stance.

Ulster County exercised the laws of condemnation against my parents, their neighbors and the citizens of Ulster County and New York State, who all became the defendants. The result was the taking of the private lands I have described.

Cortland and Mabel Van Etten protested my employing staff of local appraisers and advisors to assist them. My parents' property was appraised by Ulster County and by my parents' appraisers. The result is a difference in the monetary amount to be paid for the damage. The monetary difference is about $10,000 with Ulster County allowing about $22,000 for the damage, and Cortland and Mabel Van Etten claiming about $32,000. In addition, my parents' woods alongside of their house has been turned into a swampy pond which will surely kill their lovely trees.

There is also a severe drinking water problem that has resulted since the time of the blasting that was done to construct the roadbed and bridge. My father now uses a filter that must be changed every few days because of the heavy silt that is now present in his drinking water. There have been no firm plans from Ulster County regarding these latter two damages and what action Ulster County will take to make my parents' property whole again.

My parents wish to appeal of the road, very little change in the radius of the turns on each end of the bridge (little improvement), a new, additional radius on the south end (no improvement), a severe safety hazard since the relocation of the roadway does not allow one to observe vehicles coming out of my folks' driveway when approaching from the south and does not allow one to observe vehicles exiting from my parents' private roadway when approaching the bridge from the north. Both views are now blocked by my folks' house which, prior to the taking of their property, did not present any roadway visibility problem.

1. Would the bridge have been blocked by my folks' house constructed as it has been if which, prior to the taking of their property, did not present any roadway visibility problem.

2. Should the bridge have been constructed as it has been if which, prior to the taking of their property, did not present any roadway visibility problem.

Rondout Budget

Editor, The Freeman:

The news release in your March 21st issue stated that the Rondout Valley School Board unanimously approved a $5.6 million budget.

I am a member of the board but was unavoidably absent. Had I been present, I would have voted AGAINST the budget. The parents and taxpayers in New York should start demanding some accountability and responsibility from their educators.

School Funds

After the March 12th meeting of the Sauerberties Board of Education a member of the school board was questioned on the vote by the school board to appeal the Dr. Arnold reinstatement. He refused to divulge the names and how they voted. He explained that during litigation this was privileged information.

By law, the minutes of school board meetings are available for public view at the Administration Building on Hill Street. The vote was 5 to 3. YES votes — Macarille, Benjamin, Kramer, Meade and Francello. NO votes — Maxwell, Bogert and O'Rourke. Reverend Needham was not present.

Is the taxpayer interested enough to ask why his "cut to the bone" school budget of last year was padded to the extent that $7,635.00 could be transferred in bits and pieces from nineteen different accounts to the legal account to pay for past litigation against Dr. Arnold?

$2,800 of this amount came from Employees Retirement Account whose total budget for the last year was $6,290.39. As interested taxpayers it is unfortunate that it appears that the new appeal by the Board of Education in Sauerberties against Dr. Arnold seems to be using up the extra money in various accounts.

Under present circumstances this money cannot be used to lower the school tax rate or even to keep it the same. Will the 1973-74 budget be padded to accommodate more legal fees?

As the possibility of a $20 per thousand tax increase looms before us it leaves doubt in our minds as to just where our budget is cut and under what priorities the board operates.

Children's Benefit

Editor, The Freeman:

I would like very much to thank the J. Watson Bailey School and Mr. Hyatt for allowing our organization to sponsor a dance for their students.

We would also like to thank all the people who so generously donated their time and efforts for our cause. A special thank you to the band (Klock-Work). They did an excellent job and the kids certainly did enjoy dancing to them. I'd also like to thank all the bakeries and stores who donated door prizes and pastries to be sold.

With the help of all these fine people, our dance was a great success. Thanks to you all, your efforts will be greatly appreciated by the orphans in Vietnam. I personally thank you for the children.

I would also like to tell your readers that we have our A.P.O. back, and our packages are on their way to Vietnam again.

Respectfully,

Holiday Signup For Blood Bank

KINGSTON — On hand for enrollment of the 30 Holiday Inn employees in the Ulster County Blood Bank were (L) Clifford A. Henze, temporary chairman of UCBB board meeting; Marie Finkle, office manager of the UCBB; Miss Linda McNally, Holiday Inn hostess; Robert Lloyd, manager and innkeeper of the local Holiday Inn and Dr. Herbert Derman, director of the Kingston City Laboratory and a UCBB board member. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

Holiday Inn employees of Kingston, numbering 30 strong, have enrolled in the Ulster County Blood Bank. The enrollment of these 30 persons represents the largest single group to sign up in 1973 to avail themselves of the unique benefits offered by the UCBB, according to Wilfred G. Springer, executive director. Springer, in reporting the Holiday Inn employee enrollment, also called attention to the fast approaching summer vacation season.

"In view of the fact that many residents will be taking their vacations after school is out and with a 60-day waiting period for individual members before benefits are available, now is certainly the time for these people to sign up for the Blood Bank membership," Springer added.

"Everyone living and working in Ulster County is eligible to enroll — in fact encouraged — to take advantage of this unique health service," the executive director stressed.

The Ulster County Blood Bank is a member of the American Association of Blood Banks and thus can transfer credits on a nationwide basis, Springer reported. He also stressed that the bank has instant communication with the Central Office located in Chicago, Ill., where a list of more than 4,000 rare blood types is kept for years ago.

Recital Set At New Paltz

NEW PALTZ — The Department of Music at the State University College at New Paltz will present a recital featuring the French horn artist of William McCann in the college's McKenna Theater Monday, March 26, at 8:30 p.m. Admission is free to the general public.

McCann is completing his fifth year as director of the Symphonic Band and assistant professor of brass instruments at New Paltz.

Joining McCann in the recital is faculty pianist Dr. Robert Mumper, associate professor of music, who has performed solo recitals throughout Europe and the United States since his appointment to the college eight years ago.

Reading Between the Lines

THE KOENIG STATEMENT—"I'm not very good at these things," the mayor said modestly about an announcement on his candidacy last week. What Koenig meant was that he wasn't very good at blowing his own horn, something expected in an announcement of candidacy, and Koenig was right, he isn't very good at blowing his own horn.

When it comes to that, he'd rather play a duet. No doubt one of the reasons why he and Bobby Gallo run as a "team." "We're doing a helluva job" sounds better than "I'm doing a helluva job."

And so "the team" announced jointly (naturally) on Thursday that they were "definitely interested" in becoming nominees for their respective offices.

What followed, in just seven brief sentences, put together rather quickly Wednesday afternoon, spells out fairly exactly just how Koenig and Gallo will be running this third campaign together.

It takes some "reading between the lines," but it's all there for those with any knowledge of Koenig-ese.

First Sentence: "We would welcome this opportunity of continuing to serve the residents of the City of Kingston in these extremely challenging and difficult times."

Translation: "There is no substitute for experience" (as a matter of fact, Frank and Bob used that one in their first campaign in 1969). The key words are "extremely challenging and difficult times, in short, 'don't send a boy to do a man's work.'"

Second sentence: We have great hopes for the future of our city, for the residents and taxpayers of our city and we look forward to serving them once again."

Translation: "You're going to hear a lot of talk about lack of services, etc., but we're doing the best we can with what we have." The key word there is "taxpayers." The team is efficient, but frugally so.

Third Sentence: "Our combined years of experience in the Executive and Legislative areas of Government have proven most valuable to us as a team."

Translation: "We've been in office almost 20 years, combined. Experience like that money can't buy." Basically, it's an elaboration on the first sentence with the added attraction that the word "team" gets in for the first of three sentences.

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

Fourth Sentence: "We have made great progress towards a solution of many of the problems in our city and we wish to continue as a team."

Translation: "We haven't solved all the problems (that's why they have to be elected again) but considering these 'extremely challenging and difficult times,' we're doing okay." Note the continued use of "the team." More coming up.

Fifth Sentence: "Bob Gallo and I have worked very hard and using the team approach towards solving the problems of government has met with great success."

Translation: Anybody who's worked as hard as we have deserves another chance." The definition of "team" broadens out somewhat here to include the Common Council. Later in the campaign it will translate to mean the Democratic members of the Council.

Sixth Sentence: "We intend to work hard during this campaign."

Translation: "Anybody who thinks success has spoiled Frank and Bobby has another guess coming. We realize we won by a landslide last time but that doesn't mean we're resting on our laurels."

Seventh Sentence: "We look at every campaign the same way and feel that if you want something, you have to go out and work for it and we are going to work harder now, during this campaign, than we did in 1969 and 1971."

Translation: About the same as for sentence number six. There is genuine concern in Democratic circles that Koenig and Gallo "won't pay the price," will figure that 2,000 votes is as good as 4,400 (Koenig's plurality last time) and will take it easy. The rest of the ticket counts on Koenig and Gallo winning big; a lot of that landslide slides down to the aldermanic level. The rest of the party has this uneasy feeling that Frank and Bob have nothing to prove anymore; they have all the records.

It might be noted that Frank and Bob had all the records after the 1969 election. Frank got a new one in '71 and Bob just missed. The Demos needn't worry about '73.

REAPPORT—Not much to say there except the approval of the Democrat's 11-Ward plan is just about certain. We say "just about" since nothing is ever certain in politics, but with the Demos enjoying a 9-4 Council edge and with the mayor's support, we'd guess this one comes pretty sure.

Just one point, however, Don Quick, the chairman of the Reapportionment Committee, should check out the definition of the word "bi-partisan." Quick, a Democrat, tried to make the point time and time again at Monday's meeting, that his was a "bi-partisan plan." In fact, all four Republicans took the floor and vowed they'd never seen Quick's plan until it hit the floor. By definition, that makes it a partisan, Democratic plan.

Area LWV Opposes Reapport Proposal

The League of Women Voters of Saugerties, New Paltz, Kingston and Woodstock are in opposition to the reapportionment plan proposed by the County Legislature because the League feels some of the districts are too populous and therefore unwieldy, a League spokesman reports.

The LWV recognizes the difficulties involved in reapportioning the county using reasonable and equitable guidelines but feels the plan submitted by the Legislature could be improved.

Accepted guidelines include contiguous perimeters of towns in each district, a small percentage deviation to insure a one man-one vote ratio and as small districts in population and area as possible.

An alternate plan, which incorporates the above guidelines, has been proposed by the League of Women Voters.

The proposed LWV plan maintains the present number of 33 legislators, with the added benefit of having smaller districts which the League feels would result in better representation for each citizen. Smaller districts offer the possibility of a legislator keeping more "in touch" with his constituents.

Consequently, the League urges the County Legislature to hold a referendum on the proposed reapportionment plan before the spring primaries to give the voters an opportunity to express their views.

The League goes on record as being opposed to delaying the referendum until November because meaningful alternatives will no longer be available.

"A defeat in the November election would almost certainly throw the question to the courts with the possibility of leaving the county operating under a plan which had just been turned down by the voters at the polls. The League urges the residents of Ulster County to ask their legislators to hold an early referendum on this vital issue," the League spokesman concludes.

The reapport plan, as advanced by the LWV, calls for the following:

District 1, Saugerties, population of 16,961, number of legislators 4, a .93 pct. deviation, (minus)

District 2, Ulster, Kingston, 12,459, 3, 2.97 pct. (minus).

District 3, City of Kingston, 25,544, 6, .54 pct. (minus).

District 4, Woodstock, Shandaken, Denning and Hardenbergh, 8,843, 2, 3.31 pct. (plus).

District 5, Hurley, Marbletown, Olive, 13,499, 3, 5.13 pct. (plus).

District 6, Esopus, Rosendale, 12,396, 3, 3.46 pct. (minus).

District 7, Wawarsing, Shawangunk, Rochester, 21,379, 5, .1 pct. (minus).

District 8, New Paltz, Lloyd, 17,447, 4, 1.9 pct. (plus).

Taxpayers Beware

Johnnie M. Walters, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, had 5,600 IRS investigators pose as ordinary taxpayers since the first of the year with commercial tax preparers making up returns for them. The idea was to protect taxpayers from "fly-by-night" commercial tax preparers. It showed the pitfalls the taxpayer faces.

Of the 5,600 reports, 61 per cent were determined to be "correct," 16 per cent "incorrect, non-fraudulent" and 22 per cent—more than one in five—as "potentially fraudulent."

"There are reputable good tax preparers, and we do need them," Walters said. "It is the fly-by-night type who defraud both the taxpayer and the government that we are concerned about."

If the tax is under-reported, the minimum penalty is 6 per cent annual interest on the difference. If the taxpayer is convicted of complicity in fraud, a penalty of five years in jail and a $10,000 fine is possible. The taxpayer should be wary. He is responsible.

Last year, 47 per cent of the country's 76 million individual income taxpayers had their returns made out by commercial preparers. They paid $6 million for these services. The average payment was $16 for each return. Fees ranged from $3 each to several thousand dollars.

Walters said that millions of taxpayers unnecessarily rely on commercial preparers and risk assessment for penalties and interest, when their returns are fraudulent or otherwise incorrect. The commissioner advises the great number to use the "short form" 1040-A, which has been restored this year. Two out of five could use it advantageously.

As for the others, Walters warned against those who ask you to sign a blank return, who want to enter fictitious dependents, make non-existent deductions, "dream up" data and guarantee a refund. Walters says "be leery." Let us add, modest wage and salary earners who have no large deductions to be itemized will find the short form easy to prepare. They are the majority who are better served if they do it on their own.

WORK CAMP FOR TEENS — New Zealand's Labor government is preparing to send teen-age delinquents to work camps, where they will clear land of brush. It is hard, back-breaking toil. Young people here and elsewhere think a socialistic government would make everything easier for them, but the opposite is true.

SCHOOL MONEY A-FLOAT — The fake money used in arithmetic instruction in French schools has been found mixed with bona fide bills in banks, tourist wallets and the market-place. The government has ordered schools to burn the imitation cash. We hope that real bills are not mixed with the class wads.

By JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON — The White House was taken aback by the rise in rents after controls were lifted on January 11. Nevertheless, President Nixon is sticking to his guns and opposing the move by Congress to reimpose mandatory rent controls in metropolitan areas. White House sources tell us that the President is convinced there's no economic justification for the sharp rise in rents. He believes unscrupulous landlords have taken advantage of decontrol to boost rents and fatten their bank accounts. But, in the long run, he is confident rents will settle down. The President went ahead with rent decontrol after a study, intended for the eyes only of his economic advisers, concluded: "The economic basis exists for rent decontrol at the present time. Any jump in price would be small and local and not the start of a new skyrocketing tendency. The rental market is generally soft and getting softer." Contrary to this prediction, rents zoomed in many areas.

Yet the President's advisers still believe the economic factors justify decontrol. They are apprehensive, however, over the "political repercussions."

The rent study acknowledged, for example, that "loping off" rents from wage-price controls would be politically risky "gives the special contempt of the public for landlords."

Cautioned the study: "Public trust in wage and price controls rests on the belief that they are equitable and this belief rests on the view that all forms of income — wages, executive salaries, business profits, rents and corporate dividends — should go up only moderately."

The memo added that decontrol "would probably weaken public confidence in the equity of the program and would, therefore, lead to less cooperation and compliance . . . Americans not being the most patient people in the world."

Footnote: The Senate overrode White House objections and passed a rent control bill this week by a convincing 50-to-38 margin. The House is expected to concur.

Broken Promises
Spanish-Americans, after a whirlwind political courtship during the 1972 campaign, are complaining bitterly that President Nixon hasn't kept his promises to them.

As the election approached, he poured an estimated $47 million into projects for Spanish-speaking Americans. The money, part of which had been withheld previously by the Administration, was funneled through the Health, Education and Welfare Department, the Housing and Urban Development Department and the Office of Economic Opportunity.

At least $20 million went into the areas of California and Texas with large Spanish-American populations. The highest ranking Spanish-Americans in the Administration, antipoverty director Philip Sanchez and mass transportation administrator Carlos Villareal, also toured the country at the taxpayers' expense, telling what the President was doing for the Spanish-speaking population.

As the money began falling like autumn leaves, one Latino employment service, called Ser, meaning "to be" in Spanish, was promised a 50 per cent fund increase by President Nixon himself at a special White House ceremony. His interest in Spanish-American affairs, he told them, was not "a one-shot deal."

The President's campaigners courted the Latinos and Chicanos with bilingual brochures, films and galas. One such winking in San Antonio featured the President's brother, Donald Nixon, and Latin movie star Ricardo Montalban. Tickets to the affair were sold through the United Businessmen of San Antonio, a federally-funded organization offering technical assistance to minority merchants.

This campaign was effective. The Spanish-American vote went Republican in many areas which had long been Democratic strongholds. But now, both Sanchez and Villareal, who campaigned so hard to drum up Spanish-American support for the President, have lost their high posts. Ser received a telegram in January rescinding the funding increases personally promised by the President. Our informants say even the United Businessmen soon will be phased out.

Military Mustache
An episode at President Nixon's inaugural has become the hottest "cause celebre" in military melee over hairstyles.

Without further ceremony, Graves personally trimmed the mustache. So incensed was the enlisted man that he filed a complaint with the inspector general's office at Fort Meade which, however, decided the complaint was "nonactionable."

Nevertheless, Graves admits his scissors assault probably was in technical violation of regulations. This leaves standing the question of whether he practiced barbering without a license. "I thought I did it very neatly," said Graves. The enlisted man begged us not to reveal his name, saying he feared reprisal worse than the shortening of his mustache.

Watergate Shadow

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

It should be remarked, in defense of Patrick Gray, that he did not behave like J. Edgar Hoover primarily because he isn't J. Edgar Hoover. If Richard Nixon were to call a presidential press conference and deliver it in the style of President Charles de Gaulle, the spectacular could be shown whole on Laugh-In. De Gaulle's imperious mode is not suited to Nixon, and Hoover's blustery integrity is not suited to a much younger man who has not exercised authority over the course of a lifetime, as Hoover did. Hoover was trained to do his job and maintain discipline in the middle of the largest political brothel in the world. It is not quite fair to expect that his successor could be ennobled overnight.

There is no question about the maladroitness of his performance. —As regards Cleveland, he now admits that he went out there to speak at the behest of the White House, which lured him there with talk about the critical Ohio electoral vote.

—The conduct of the Watergate investigation is of course at the center of the Senate committee's concern. There is no doubt that Gray ordered a massive investigation into Watergate, and indeed as a result of it, seven persons have been found guilty.

But there was the matter of John Dean, the president's counsel. He was permitted to sit in during the questioning of all of the truly interesting people; by "interesting" we mean, of course, those whose ties to the White House were the most direct. Mr. Gray excuses this procedure on grounds not altogether disingenuous. He told the committee that in fact the head of the FBI must proceed on the assumption that the people he is working for are blameless.

As a practical matter, he is saying, you can't ask the head of the FBI to develop the case against the Attorney General without the Attorney General knowing what's going on, and as much applies to the President. If the President decides, as Nixon did in the Watergate case, to commission an investigation of his own, and his deputy asks the FBI to make it a common effort, the Grays of this world simply acquiesce. The Hoovers probably would not.

But it is by no means certain that the Hoover of 1924 would have treated Calvin Coolidge as deferentially as Gray treated Richard Nixon. It takes a lot of growing up in one's job, and the acquisition of a public constituency, before a subordinate in the prosecutor's office can be expected to treat the President of the United States like a suspect ("I want you to know, Mr. President, that anything you say here may be used against you . . .") It is, let us face it, unreal.

The Democrats, it appears in retrospect, are clearly vindicated in their suggestion that an outside investigator be brought in to look into the Watergate operation. A study of the behavior of Patrick Gray reveals very little in the way of a flaw of his own character; and yet he did in fact behave in such a way as helped to protect White House insiders if indeed there were any beyond those already implicated in Watergate.

Surely there is a solution available to the Democratic leadership of the Judiciary Committee that is stalled on the question of naming Patrick Gray as permanent head of the FBI. Richard Nixon, in refusing to permit

Mr. Dean to testify, argues lofty points involving the separation of the powers. He tells us he is eager for a court test, so confident is he of winning it. Senator Ervin of the Committee, a more disinterested exegete of the Constitution than the President, is equally confident that the courts would not protect John Dean. In any event months would go by before a verdict was given down.

The moment has come for the Democrats to renew their call for an independent investigation. Let them say to Nixon: Look, if you will consent to an investigation of Watergate conducted by a man of unquestioned integrity, and if that investigation reveals that no one who hasn't already been indicted ought to be indicted, then we will accept the presumption of the thoroughness of the investigation of Patrick Gray and confirm him as head of the FBI. But a refusal to authorize such an investigation is presumptive grounds for supposing that you have in fact used Gray to conceal that which diligent and disinterested investigators would have uncovered.

It seems a fair enough deal, and has the virtue of leaving the Constitution out of it.

Inside Report

Disease of Terrorism

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Frustration with the Nixon administration in trying to stamp out global terrorism against U.S. diplomats was deepened when Jordan's King Hussein commuted the sentence of 17 Palestinian terrorists two weeks ago.

Hussein is the intrepid leader of Arab moderation who conducted a bloody war to destroy the Palestinian guerrilla movement in his country. If he now refuses to carry out the death sentence, other Arab leaders will do no more.

Thus, the hope within the White House to put a crimp in the dangerous escalation of international terrorism by merciless example once again has failed. That example would have been sharply made if Hussein had insisted on the no-mercy policy being quietly preached by the Nixon administration to its Arab friends.

Among those rescued from the sentence of death in Jordan was a top leader of Al Fatah, the Palestinian nationalist movement, named Abu Daoud — a principal factor in the Black September murder of two U.S. diplomats and a Belgian in the Saudi Arabian embassy at Khartoum March 2. The Khartoum terrorists demanded that Daoud be released from jail in Amman, Jordan.

Worried American diplomats, to the contrary, were privately hoping that Hussein would respond to the Khartoum terrorists by threatening to execute Daoud and his 16 co-conspirators immediately if any of the diplomats held hostage in Khartoum were harmed.

Caught between these conflicting pressures, the Jordanian government decided to do nothing. Then, two weeks after the murder of the three Western diplomats, Hussein announced his decision to commute the death sentences of Daoud and his whole gang.

That decision almost certainly rules out any chance Sudan will now actually carry out the death penalty against the Khartoum terrorists, no matter what sentence is finally imposed.

Thus, once again the hope within the Nixon administration that international terrorism can be stymied by example comes to naught, a grim postscript to a chilling statistical record. In the past five years, 10 U.S. diplomats have been brutally murdered, kidnap attempts have been made against 21, of which 14 were successfully carried out, 12 have been wounded and three have been intended victims of knife attacks.

In addition to being one of those three knife-attack targets, Secretary of State William P. Rogers was also target of a Black September plot during his tour last year of the Arab sheikhdoms. That plot was discovered and aborted.

The deadly hand of international violence being conducted by Black September — and other outlawed political extremists in many countries having nothing to do with the Middle East — threatened to strike again one day last week in the snug, middle-class suburb of an American city.

A high State Department diplomat arriving there for a week-end visit was stunned when two American police officers, each carrying a submachine gun, met him at the airplane and refused to leave his side for two days. The reason: a tip to the FBI that terrorists might be stalking him.

But while security officers can make a major effort to protect high-level diplomats and their families, nothing approaching complete protection is in sight — even for a diplomat spending a quiet weekend with his family.

To the contrary, security experts now believe that as major U.S. diplomats in major embassies get heavier protection, terrorists will strike in more remote capitals, believing them more vulnerable. That may explain recent terrorist attacks in such places as Thailand and the Sudan.

Moreover, while it is U.S. policy never to yield to blackmail, other countries play the game differently. Thus, the U.S. refused to pay a cent to ransom Ambassador Clinton Knox from anti-government Haitian rebels in January. But the Haitian government put up $70,000 and supplied an airplane (refused by the U.S.) to buy off the rebels.

Likewise, West Germany's policy has been to yield to terrorist demands — and hope terror won't return.

But to administration strategists, that induces more terror, not less. They believe the quickest way to cure this fatal disease is drastic escalation of the risks of attack and drastic reduction of rewards. Even if all countries agreed, the disease won't end any time soon.

Yoakum's Hokum

Columnists Who 'Answer All' Don't

Robert Yoakum

As in so many human affairs, there's a trend toward toughness in those Question & Answer columns you see in newspapers, Sunday supplements, and magazines. More and more, the Q & A Columns are used to make a political point or to stick a needle into someone. One columnist has even gone a step further by occasionally clobbering the questioners.

"Martha Cackle Answers All" is the name of the feature, and it appears exclusively in the Cheesville (Wis.) Crier. I'm going to reprint a recent Cackle column to show what the future may hold in the Q & A industry:

Q: They say that Frank Sinatra associates with mobsters a lot. Is this true?

A: It certainly is. Fiesty Frankie has spent a good deal of time with hoods, but in all fairness it should be pointed out that recently he has been seen with a much higher class crowd. For example, the aging singer now has several friends in the Nixon Administration.

Q: My wife says that a lot of questions in columns like yours don't really come from readers but are made up in newspaper offices.

A: Is that supposed to be a question? Anyway, some Q & A columns do use fake questions, but not this one. You can tell from the mediocre stuff we print that the queries actually come from the readers.

Q: Is it true that the Beatles are having personality conflicts and may break up the group?

A: See what I mean?

Q: If President Nixon is a Shaker like he says, how can he be for the death penalty, bombing, and all the rest?

thought Shakers didn't believe in any killing at all.

A: Another well-informed reader heard from.

The religion to which you refer — and of which President is or is not a member, depending on whether you believe him or them — is Quaker, not Shaker.

The Shakers, so-called because they trembled with religious ecstasy, were a sect that split from the Quakers back in the mid-1700s. The movement believed in a male and female Christ, common ownership of all property, and celibacy. Needless to say, the Shakers didn't last long.

Now that that's straightened out, I'll deal with your question: It is true that Quakers are pacifists and believe all killing is wrong. It is also true that President Nixon has referred to himself as a Quaker. But President Nixon has also said he was against deficit spending, government secrecy, price and wage controls, labor bosses, selling wheat to Russia, dealing with Red China, and so forth. So don't sweat it.

Q: Does Bob Hope, the comedian, write all his own jokes?

A: Are you joking? Hope has more ghostwriters than that spooky seeress, Jeane Dixon. Script sessions have to be held in the Hollywood Bowl.

Q: The other night I noticed that Walter Cronkite wasn't saying "Good night, Chet" any more. Then I realized that Chet was gone. What happened?

A: What happened was that you slipped a gear. Walter Cronkite works for CBS and doesn't say good night to anybody. He just says: "And that's the way it is . . ."

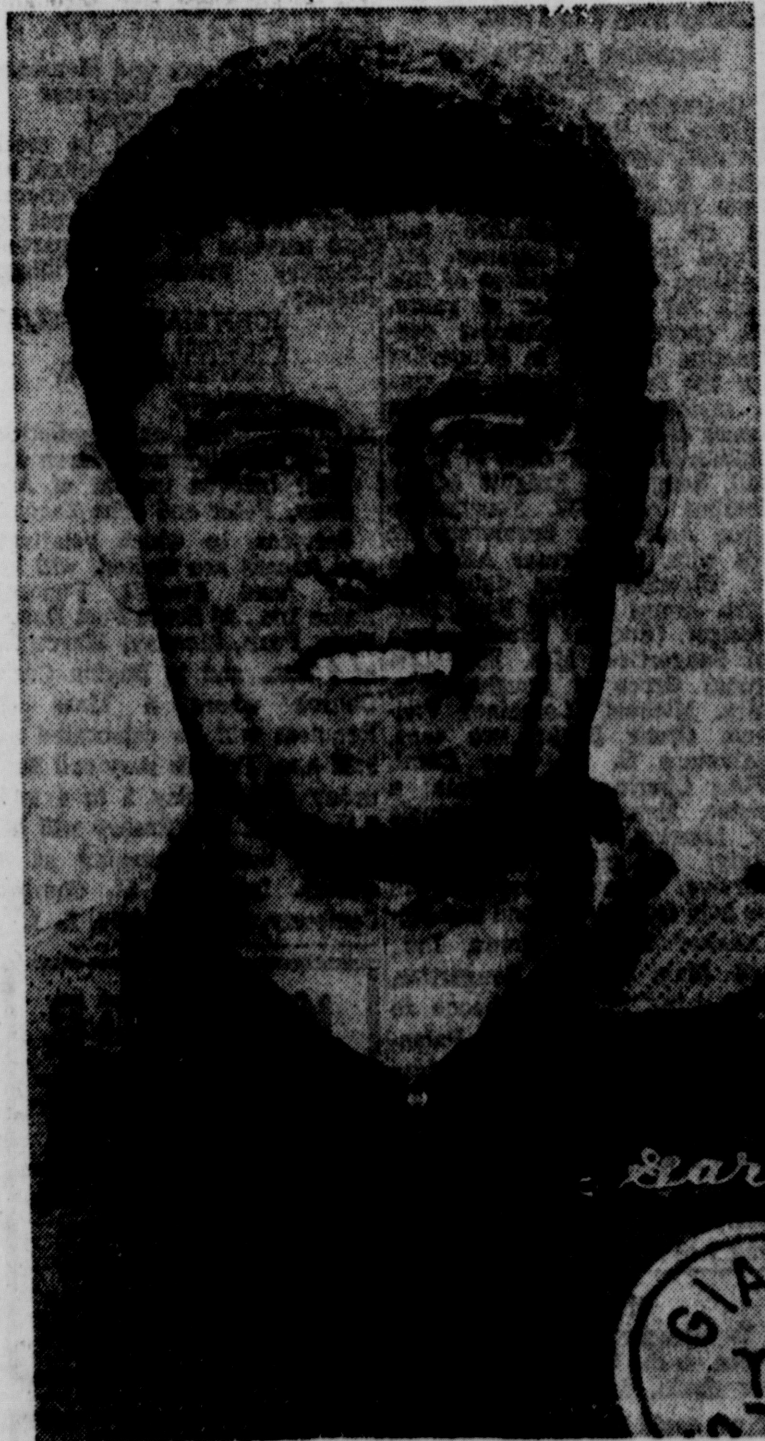

who said, "Good Night, Chet." Brinkley is still with NBC, but Chet Huntley lives on a ranch in Montana and makes commercials for an airline. Huntley about Raquel Welch and always criticizing everybody, Truman Capote? especially the government? A: No. A: In the Soviet Union they don't. Go there.

Giants Coach At YMCA Dinner

JIM GARRETT

KINGSTON — Jim Garrett, defensive coach of the New York Giants Football Team will be the featured speaker at the annual dinner of the YMCA of Kingston and Ulster County to be held at the Holiday Inn in Kingston on Friday night, April 6 at 7 p.m.

Garrett, who invented the Giant's famous "rover defense" has been with the Giant's coaching staff since 1970 and was elevated to defensive coach in 1972.

A young man well versed in coaching, scouting and overall football organization, Garrett's NFL career began with the Eagles in 1954. He joined the New York Giants as a player in 1956 but his career was cut short by injuries.

He was an assistant coach at the Coast Guard Academy in New London, Conn. (1959), an assistant at Lehigh U. (1959-60) and head coach at Susquehanna U. (1960-66). In 1968, Garrett

Q: I saw "Travels With My Aunt" — is the divine Maggie Smith married? — H.P., Terre Haute, Ind.

A: Oscar-winner Maggie has been married since 1967 to Robert Stephens, who plays her "kidnapped" lover in the film you mention. He also starred with her in "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie." Your timing is ironic, Maggie has left London's "Private Lives" in which she and Stephens were co-starring. She had also left home. The reason — Stephens is said to be romancing actress Vanessa Redgrave, who has abandoned her last passion, Timothy Dalton. Stephens and Vanessa are planning to do their own version of "Private Lives" on Broadway. Their love affair is the talk of London, which is all quite funny when you consider that Stephens used to be one of Vanessa's most vocal critics about her "ban the bomb" peace marches.

QUICKIES: In the new TV films based on the adventures of Moses, the great Hebraic lawgiver will be played by Burt Lancaster. Funny, he doesn't look (and isn't) Jewish. Guess who likes to imitate President Nixon besides David Frye? Prime Minister Heath of England does a very good bit on Nixon, but his mimicry is affectionate and gentle since he likes the President. The Guide Michelin she ain't what she used to be. Since losing one of its stars, the Plaza-Athenaeum in Paris has increased its restaurant business by 40 per cent.

Q: Where has Sue Lyon, the Lolita girl, disappeared? Wasn't properate delicatessen remarks.

The better the lawn food,
the better your lawn

TURF BUILDER is the lawn food we recommend most for early spring fertilizing. It releases its nutrients over a prolonged period. So there's no excess surge growth to cause extra mowing and no wasteful leaching away of the nutrients. Instead, TURF BUILDER produces a thicker, greener, sturdier lawn. Lasts longer too, because it's Trionized.

Medicare Trim Seems Out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's plan to trim $1 billion off federal spending by making Medicare and Medicaid patients pay a greater share of their bills appeared Saturday to be dead.

Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., announced that a majority of the Senate—52 members, including 11 Republicans—had formally stated their opposition to Nixon's proposal.

Mondale said on Monday he will introduce a resolution rejecting the cutbacks so that 23 million older people "will not have to spend weeks and months waiting in fear to see what Congress will do to increase their out-of-pocket Medicare costs by $1 billion."

Rejection of the proposed cutbacks automatically would add $1 billion to the $12.7 billion deficit Nixon has projected for the fiscal year starting July 1.

It looked like no senator would be found even to introduce a bill to carry out the cutbacks Nixon proposed, since such an action probably would engender the hostility of Medicare patients when the cause is already lost.

In his budget, Nixon proposed:

—Increasing the charge a Medicare patient would pay for his first day of hospitalization from $72 to the full hospital charge;

—Requiring the patient to pay 10 per cent of actual hospital costs for the second through the 61st day—now free under Medicare;

—Requiring people whose doctor bills are covered by Medicare's voluntary Part B insurance to pay the first $85, instead of the first $60, of doctors' services and to pay 25 per cent, instead of 20 per cent, of everything above that amount.

On the Medicaid program of free medical care of the poor, Nixon proposed eliminating such "low priority" services as free dental care.

Mondale said the present Medicare program assures all people over 65 covered by Social Security that they will have to pay no more than $72 for a hospital stay of as long as 60 days. Under Nixon's proposal, he said, a 60-day stay would have cost $500.

'Only One Nomination Is Definite'

Kingston Conservatives to Meet

The Kingston Conservative Committee will meet at the Ulster County Courthouse Tuesday night to nominate candidates for the coming elections.

Party Chairman Bernard Singer told The Freeman that only one nomination is definite, that of Harry D. Graham, a Ringtop Road attorney who was the Conservative candidate for the County Legislature in 1971. Graham, with no major party designation, finished last in a field of 17 that year.

As for the "top of the ticket," Mayor and alderman-at-large, Singer indicated that the Conservatives are leaning toward the traditional recipients of their support, the Republicans. "I think they're good boys, nice fellows," Singer said in reference to William B. Merrill Jr. and Burt A. Ellis, respectively Republican candidates for mayor and alderman-at-large this year. As for the Democratic side, Mayor Francis R. Koenig and Alderman-at-Large T. Robert Gallo, Singer doesn't seem too impressed. "We haven't had much government in the past four years," he said. "What we did have could have been a lot more efficient." Singer, who ran against Koenig for mayor as a Conservative in 1969 and against Gallo as a Conservative-Republican in 1971 (losing handily both times, says of his candidacy this year: "I'm not seeking anything, but I'm flexible."

The Conservative nomination has not been a major factor in the past three mayoral elections; it was in the legislature and aldermanic races where it often proved decisive.

There will be four incumbent legislators running this year who had Conservative endorsement last time, Melvin Mones, Clarence C. Raichle and Raymond Armatuer on the Republican ticket and Lawrence Kithcart on the Democratic side.

Singer said that a decision has not been reached on any of them, although he indicated that Armatuer may have problems since Armatuer also ran on the Liberal line in 1971. "There are a few people in the party who don't like the idea of a Conservative accepting the Liberal designation," Singer said in reference to Armatuer. In the Council, Republican incumbents Brian D. Smith (Third Ward), Thomas M. Davitt (Seventh Ward) and Edmond J. Roux (Ninth Ward) had Conservative backing in 1971 and are expected to receive it again. Peter J. Mancuso (12th Ward) was the only Democrat to receive the Conservative endorsement in 1971 and he is also expected to get it again.

The Conservatives will meet at 8 p.m. in the county courthouse.

Rockefeller Announces Court, Police Grants

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Part of Governor Rockefeller's oft-stated objective of court reform may be accomplished by more than $12 million in grants to aid both courts and individual police departments in the state.

Rockefeller Saturday announced the grants, from the State Crime Control Planning Board. In addition to court reform, the money will provide for an upgrading of law enforcement techniques, improved legal representation of persons accused of crimes, continued expansion of communications and an upgrading of personnel in the probation and youth services agency.

The board awarded a total of $1.7 million to police departments, with $1.49 million going to New York City. The city will get $148,512 to continue training departmental commanders; $725,325 for expanded operations of its anti-crime patrol; $330,813 to test stolen property recovery techniques and $285,740 to test automated fingerprint identification systems.

The board also awarded $14,000 to the state police for improved forensic lab equipment; $4,372 to the Bureau of Municipal Police to train county sheriff's $111,550 to Erie County to continue development of a criminal justice information felonies and assistance in trial preparation.

State Financing of Schools Urged

MONTREAL (AP) — The president of the American Federation of Teachers urged New York State to discard the property tax system of financing local schools.

David Selden urged the state-wide financing of schools. "In New York state," he said, "this would have a clear advantage."

His appeal was directed to the 1,735 delegates attending the convention here of the New York State United Teachers union, product of a merger between the New York State Teachers Association and the United Federation of Teachers.

Selden spoke in the afternoon session shortly before the delegates discussed suggested by laws and resolutions.

Later that night, the delegates were to elect Thomas Y. Hobart of Buffalo as president and Albert Shanker of New York City as executive vice president. The two men now are serving as co-presidents of the union. Hobart was president of the Teachers Association and Shanker was president of United Teachers of New York and is the head of the New York City United Federation of Teachers.

Other officers to be elected are Dan Sanders of New York City, first vice president; Antonio Cortese of Rome, second vice president, and Edward K. Rodgers of North Babylon, as secretary-treasurer. They had no opposition. The only contests were for seats on the board of directors.

Selden complained about the U.S. Supreme Court decision a few days ago that upheld the constitutionality of financing public schools through property taxes.

He conceded that the overturning of this system of school financing would have been a "crude meat-ax approach," but it would have caused "only temporary discomfort to teachers and educators."

On other topics, Selden pleaded for teacher unity and complaint about New York's Taylor Law, which controls governmental relations with public employees.

The convention opened Friday night with greetings from Norman Bernstein, president of the provincial association of the Protestant Teachers of Quebec, and a dispute over minor procedural questions.

The union claims to be the largest statewide teachers union in the country.

Information Call Charge ... 'Totally Unjustified'

NEW YORK (UPI)—State Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz said Saturday that a New York Telephone Co. request to charge subscribers for information calls was "totally unjustified."

In a brief filed with the Public Service Commission, which has been holding hearings on the company's application to charge for "directory assistance" calls, Lefkowitz said the utility's service to subscribers was still in adequate.

He said the firm should not be permitted to charge for such calls "until substantial evidence is presented by the company that its service has in fact improved."

Highland Men Critical As Truck Tips, Ignites

TWO Highland men were listed in "critical" condition at Vassar Brothers Hospital Saturday night after the truck in which they were riding tipped over and burst into flames.

According to Highland constables, Ronald Brown and Peter Colombo were riding in their truck on the Mid-Hudson Bridge approach when it hit curbing, turned over, and became ignited.

Brown, 28, of Bailey's Gap Road, and Colombo, 25, of 12 Washington Avenue, were both rushed to Vassar Brothers.

According to the Detective Division, Kingston Police Department, Debroski was arrested at 2:30 p.m. Saturday removing copper from Levine's junkyard on Cornell Street.

Debroski was released in custody of his attorney.

Chemical Bank Reduces Its Prime Rate

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Chemical Bank of New York decided Saturday to reduce its prime rate to 6½ per cent — the fifth large bank to give in partially to the federal government on interest rates.

Three other banks refused, announcing they will retain a 6½ per cent interest rate for prime business loans.

Chemical's action halved the prime rate increase — from 6½ per cent to 6½ per cent — which the bank announced Friday. The Chase Manhattan Bank of New York and the First National Bank of Chicago announced similar increases in their rates Friday.

Marine Midland of New York, Continental Illinois National of Chicago, Republic National of Dallas and First National of Boston also had rolled back their rates to the 6½ per cent level after raising them to the 6½ rate on Monday.

Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board and of the Committee on Interest and Dividends, denounced the 6½ rate as unjustified on Thursday.

However, Manufacturers Hanover Trust of New York, Franklin National Bank of New York and First Pennsylvania Banking Trust Co. of Philadelphia said they would maintain the prime rate at 6½ per cent.

CLINTONDALE The occupant of a mobile home was given emergency treatment and hospitalized early Saturday as the result of a fire dealt with by the Clintondale Fire Company.

Kevin Martin received burns and suffered some smoke inhalation effects, and was taken to Vassar Brothers Hospital in Poughkeepsie where he was pronounced in "satisfactory" condition late Saturday.

About 20 men with two pieces of equipment fought the blaze that was believed started in a living room sofa. The mobile home, near Rocking Horse Ranch on Route 44-55, suffered extensive damage, according to firemen. Chief Peter Guido was in charge of the firemen.

Meanwhile, both Ulster and Dutchess County Mutual Aid spokesmen reported a rash of brush fires. The Ulster County man noted that there were upwards of 35 blazes being fought Saturday, with more being reported.

Dynamite Truck Has Tight Fit

CEMENTON A tractor-trailer loaded with dynamite tried to squeeze under a Penn-Central Railroad overpass on Route 9W near Cementon Friday, but it was at least a foot too tall.

According to state police at Leeds, the driver, Michael Grogan of Hopatcong, N.J., got the vehicle lodged under the overpass, severely damaging the truck.

Fortunately, they reported, none of the dynamite exploded. Grogan was charged with operating a vehicle of excessive height. The truck was reported to be 14 feet tall — the railroad underpass was only 12½ feet.

Road Race Ends in Crash

WOODSTOCK A 36-year-old Woodstock man tried to outrun a Sheriff's Department car early Saturday morning and ended up wrecking his car and being treated at Benedictine Hospital, according to police.

They reported that Paul Bassett, California Quarry Road, passed a Sheriff's Department car on Route 28 going north at about 1:30 a.m. The police car gave chase at speeds up to 85 miles an hour, turning off onto Route 375, before the fleeing vehicle careened off the road.

Bassett was charged with speeding and speed not reasonable nor prudent by Deputy A. Baez. He was treated and released by the Benedictine Hospital emergency room staff.

Artcraft...New Owner

KINGSTON In addition, Fitzgerald said he hopes to eventually begin a photography club at Artcraft, with members having discounts on retail items in the store.

In time, Fitzgerald continued, Artcraft will feature a complete line of stereo equipment. What now serves as the Artcraft studio will be remodeled and outfitted as a stereo music center; the rear portion of the shop at 694 Broadway will later house the studio.

According to Fitzgerald, it has been the trend of recent years for camera supply centers to deal also in stereo equipment. Artcraft will follow suit.

Even with its "new look," Artcraft will continue to provide a full range of photographic services. The retail section of the large shop includes a complete inventory of photographic supplies and cameras for both the amateur and professional. Namebrand cameras, slide and movie projectors, screens, film and darkroom equipment and chemicals are sold at "below" list-prices that rival even the large retail shops in New York City.

"We stress prices for the cost-conscious shopper," said Fitzgerald.

In addition to its extensive selection of retail supplies, the Artcraft studio features portrait work and specializes in wedding photography. And, unlike many other studios, Artcraft does its own processing and photo-finishing work, and performs its own copy and restoration work on old photographs and "heirloom pictures."

Artcraft's staff photographers are also available for aerial photography. The company also rents cameras and projectors, and has a supply of educational films and cartoons that can be rented.

Artcraft's grand opening celebration will be held the week of April 9-14. Dealer demonstrations are scheduled for April 13 and 14 (Friday and Saturday.)

Under Fitzgerald's leadership Artcraft has added several new dimensions to typical photo shop fare. Perhaps the most unique is a service for camera buffs who don't have the equipment or facilities to process their own photographs: it's called "Rent-a-Darkroom."

Fitzgerald explained that Artcraft has built two new darkrooms especially for this purpose. One or the other can be rented on an hourly or daily basis, and the rental fee includes the necessary chemicals and use of the equipment. Left-over chemicals can be used the next time.

NO-FAULT TOPIC — Roland A. Augustine, third from left, discussed the recently passed New York State No-Fault Insurance Bill during a meeting of the Ulster Credit Management Association. Augustine heads the Roland A. Augustine Insurance, Inc. With the guest speaker are Richard Ellis (L) vice president of the Credit Bureau of Kingston; Udo Glosch, assistant cashier, Bankers Trust; Richard Reno, credit manager for Standard Furniture and Paul E. Wiser Sr., president of the Ulster Credit Management Association. Augustine, in his remarks, said he felt the state legislation was the best in the country. The Association's next meeting is set for Tuesday, April 10, at the Sawyerkill Restaurant, starting at 7 p. m. A roundtable discussion will be held on Credit Extension to Women. UCLA, Memphis State Advance to Finals

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — UCLA's methodical machine, ignited by the spark of substitute guard Tommy Curtis and super star Bill Walton, survived a second half scare Saturday and moved toward a seventh straight NCAA basketball championship by beating Indiana 70-59 in the semifinals.

Larry Kenon, getting a break when opposing center Marvin Barnes injured his right knee early in the first half, broke loose for 18 second half points to pace Memphis State to a 98-85 upset of Providence in the other semifinal match.

The Bruins, winning their 74th game in a row, will defend their title Monday night against Memphis State. Indiana will meet Providence in the consolation game for third place.

The Bruins, who led at one stage of the second half by 22 points, lost the 6-foot-11 Walton for about three minutes when the All-American center picked up his fourth personal foul midway through the second stanza and that almost cost UCLA dearly.

Walton left the game with 12:27 to play and his team leading by 16 points, 54-38. Indiana took advantage of the big man's absence by running of 13 consecutive points to close within three 54-51 with 9:42 remaining.

Coach John Wooden quickly hurried his big man back into the game and though Indiana got to within two points with 5:51 to play, Walton prevented the Hoosiers from getting any closer as he dominated the basket.

Walton finished with 14 points of the second half when the while forward Keith Wilkes chipped in with 13 for UCLA. In the other semifinal, Indiana, with nine of them owed a brilliant 32-point effort coming in a five minute stretch by Providence's Ernie Di-

Gregorio. Kenon, a 6-foot-9 center who performed brilliantly in the 12:32 left to play in the first half. Barnes, who had scored nine points while neutralizing Friars' leading rebounder and Kenon on the boards, left the court and did not return until there was 5:51 left to play.

Barnes' loss was the tonic that Memphis State needed. The Tigers, who trailed by 14 points at one stage of the first half and were behind 49-40 at intermission, scored the first eight points of the second half to crawl within one, 49-48, and less than five minutes into the second stanza they took the lead for the first time, 55-53, on a basket by Ronnie Robinson.

The Friars with DiGregorio leading the way, came back to take a five-point lead, 62-57, with 13:23 to play but the Tigers' superior height eventually began to wear down Providence.

Kenon and 6-8 Robinson began scoring inside as Memphis State worked the ball through the Friars' zone defense.

A basket by Robinson with 7:20 remaining gave Memphis State the lead for good and the Tigers slowly pulled away in the last couple of minutes.

Kenon finished with 28 points and Robinson added 24 while guard Larry Finch chipped in with 21 for the victorious Tigers.

DiGregorio, who had boasted that nobody could take him one-on-one, was practically the entire Providence offense. The 6-foot guard completely overwhelmed the Tigers in the first half as he personally accounted for 20 of Providence's first 22 points. Guarded by 5-10 Bill Laurie, DiGregorio scored 12 points and passed off for four more baskets in the

Even Wooden Was Worried

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — John Wooden looked calm and composed, just like he always does, but Saturday things weren't necessarily what they appeared to be.

"You bet I was worried. We got ourselves in a fix after having the game salted away," Wooden said, "we did some foolish things."

UCLA, Wooden's superteam, blew a 22-point lead in the second half against Indiana Saturday, allowing the Hoosiers to rally within two points before winning their 74th straight game and moving into the NCAA finals 70-59.

Wooden said the Bruins took bad shots, got careless handling the ball and "for the first time this year, lost our poise for a little while."

"But thankfully," he added, "we regained it."

UCLA's troubles came after Bill Walton was charged with his fourth foul and left the game with 12:27 to play. Indiana scored 17 straight points in a stretch of 3½ minutes.

"I don't believe anyone has come back like that against us in the streak," Wooden said.

Wooden said the Bruins would have won the game even if

Walton had fouled out because, "we'd have settled down and played better if our players new they didn't have him coming back in."

"I think we played a little recklessly knowing he would be coming back," Wooden said.

As usual, Wooden refused to let reporters into his dressing room to talk to the UCLA players despite protests of newsmen.

Wooden termed Memphis State, whom the Bruins will meet in Monday night's championship game, a strong board team. He said he was particularly impressed by 6-

Virginia Tech Gains Other NIT Berth

ND Shocks North Carolina

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bobby Stevens sank two free throws shot, Tech froze the ball for 48 with 14 seconds showing on the seconds and then Wendell clock Saturday to clinch a 74-73 Hudson fouled Frazier with 58 victory for Virginia Tech over seconds remaining. Frazier Alabama and set up a title missed on the one-and-one clash with Notre Dame situation and Alabama took today in the National Invitation Tournament. The Irish Charles Cleveland attempted defeated North Carolina 78-71 in a shot from the left side with 40 the first game of the semi-finals.

Ed Frazier's jumper with the rebound he was fouled by 2:11 to play gave Virginia Tech Glenn Garrett. When he missed the free throw, he grabbed his own rebound and Alabama called time.

Stevens then took the in-bound pass and was fouled by Paul Ellis with 14 seconds left, and his two good ones from the line made it 74-71.

Alabama's Ray Odums hit a one-hander from the lane with seven seconds left but Cleveland missed at the buzzer.

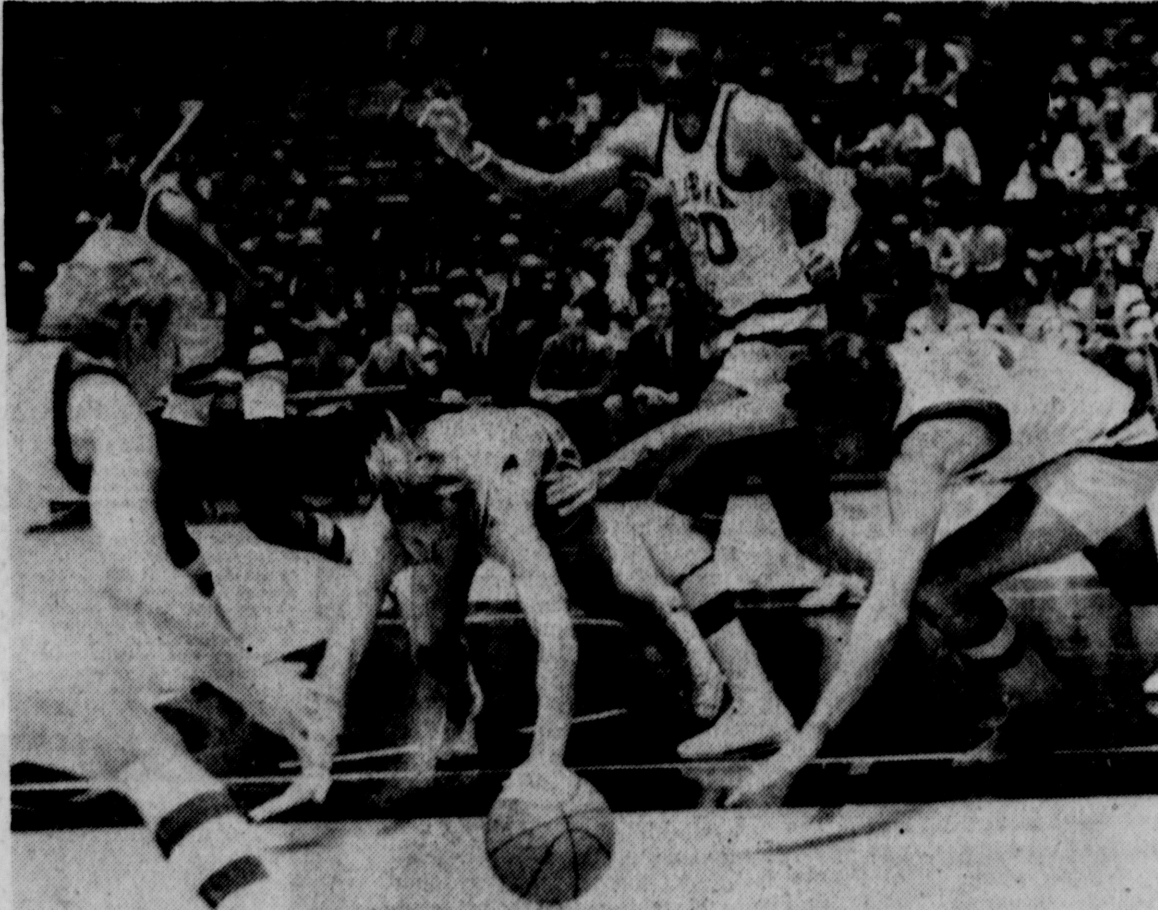

Cleveland led the balanced Tide attack with 20 points. Hudson who became Alabama's all-time high scorer chipped in with 18 and Odums added 16.

Bristow was the game's high man with 29, including 20 in the first half and Craig Lieder and Frazier chipped in with 15 and 12 respectively for Tech.

In the opener, Peter Crotty's two free throws with 46 seconds remaining gave Notre Dame a four point lead and the Irish went on to upset the 12th ranked Tar Heels.

'Our Biggest Win'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Coach Digger Phelps of Notre Dame called his club's 78-71 victory over North Carolina in the semifinals of the National Invitation Tournament Saturday, "our biggest win of the season."

"I knew we were going to be good late in the season and I'm glad we got the opportunity to get into the post-season tournament. We started out playing teams like UCLA, Kentucky and Indiana and with our young team I knew we would be good at this stage of the year."

The victory was Notre Dame's 17th in the last 22 games. Willie Townsend, a refugee from the Fighting Irish football team, was one of the keys to the Notre Dame victory.

Townsend, a starting wide receiver in football but used sparingly on the basketball court, hit three key layups and a jump shot early in the second half after relieving starter Pete Crotty, who had three personal fouls.

"Willie isn't a super player but his desire can't be topped," Phelps said. "Those three layups were crucial and when he hit that jump shot it shook us all up."

"I just love to play, that's all," Townsend said. "I'm not really a great basketball player but I love to play the game. I've been playing basketball a lot longer than football though I was a lid on the basket. Added to that was the fact that Notre Dame shot extremely well."

"I was really shocked when the coach told me I was starting the second half. I was about to say, 'Who me? I was then I thought twice about it.' Townsend, who starts football practice next Saturday, said his performance of more than 10 minutes was by far his longest of the season. He finished with eight points.

Sullivan...Free Throw King

JAY DIAMOND (left) and Jim Sullivan hold trophies they won as the top shooters in the UCLAL's first annual foul shooting tournament held at Rondout Valley High School Saturday. Sullivan, of Onteora, took first place in the event, while Diamond of Liberty won a shoot-out with Mike Jordan of Coleman to take second place.

Jim Sullivan, a six-foot backcourt man from Onteora High School, sank 23 of 25 shots at the Rondout Valley Gym Saturday afternoon to win the Ulster County Athletic League's first annual foul shooting tournament.

Sullivan topped 17 other shooters representing nine of the UCLAL's 11 member schools. He finished one ahead of Liberty's Jay Diamond and Coleman's Mike Jordan who competed in a shootoff for second place. Diamond drilled ten straight in that matchup to edge Jordan by one.

Tournament director John Meehan, the Rondout Valley athletic director, commented on the competition: "I believe it's the first foul shooting tournament in the area. We hope to make it an annual affair."

Diamond, the shortest member of Liberty's UCLAL champions, and Jordan, a reserve for the Statesmen, provided most of the excitement during the tournament. Both canned their first five extra shots to force another round, then Jordan missed once to drop to third.

Mark Walther of Wallkill scored 21 out of his 25 to stand alone in fourth place. Close behind in a tie for fifth were Leon Ware of Ellenville and Bob Rutigliano, also of Wallkill, who each made 20 baskets. Walther and Rutigliano combined for the highest team score of the tourney.

Pine Bush's Tom LaForge, runnerup.

sunk 19 shots for the seventh position. He led a hometown combination of Brian Burr and Bill Wilkins. Burr scored 18 and Wilkins led a parade of five shooters who tallied 17 points.

Others with 17 were all star guard Ray Younger of Ellenville, Ivan Richards, Liberty High School's league scoring leader, sophomore J.C. Gersch of Highland and Tim Mahoney of Coleman.

Rich Dalzell dumped in 16 of his 25 attempts to head up a disappointing Red Hook entry. The other half of the Raider all-star tandem was Dana Kilgour who managed 15 points.

Also at 16 were Onteora's George Woerthman and Highland's Dave Delis. They finished above Kilgour and Pine Bush's Joe Spadola who completed the field with 2 baskets.

All UCLAL schools except New Paltz and Marlboro sent competitors to the tournament. The shooters competed on five different baskets set up in the Rondout gym shooting five shots on each one. Most made the competition by winning similar contests at their respective schools. Trophies were presented to Sullivan and Diamond as the winner and

Bruins Zip Rangers

BOSTON (UPI) — The way Jacques Plante treated the Rangers you'd never know he felt sorry for New York Coach Emile "the Cat" Francis.

Plante, the 44-year-old veteran goaltender picked up his second shutout since he joined the Boston Bruins, tripping the Rangers 3-0 Saturday afternoon.

The win, their eighth straight, gave the Bruins a two point lead over the Rangers in the battle for second place in the National Hockey League East. Both teams have four games left on the regular season schedule.

Plante, who spent two seasons in a New York uniform, said he wished Francis luck after Saturday's game.

"Why?" Plante said. "Because I feel sorry for the Cat. He's a great guy, a real hockey man. I feel sorry for him to lose games like this. It's real tough."

"The Cat's been working ever since he joined the Rangers," Plante said. "He has had good teams and they always come close. But they haven't been able to win it all."

Plante made a dozen spectacular saves to stop the Rangers, including a point-blank shot from high-scoring Jean Ratelle in the opening minutes of play and one on Glen Sather while Boston was shorthanded in the closing moments.

Rookie Greg Sheppard gave Plante enough help to win with a breakaway goal at 1:00 of the first period. Derek Sanderson hit at 4:41 of the second period for Boston and Phil Esposito closed out the scoring with a 15-foot screen shot at 10:15 of the last period.

The win was Plante's sixth in seven games since the Bruins acquired him from the Toronto Maple Leafs to bolster their playoff chances. It was his second shutout.

"This was the most important," Plante said. "I've been thinking about this game since I came here. This game and the one next Thursday in New York."

"This one doesn't mean much unless we win that one," he said. "This was a home game for us and they've got their home game coming up."

SEBRING, Fla. (UPI) — feeling.

Haywood, who had put the Carrera into the lead earlier in the day, was expected to relieve the driving chores at the end of the race to Dr. Dave Helmick, a Hialeah, Fla., radiologist who owns the car. Haywood relieved Peter Gregg at the end of his shift.

A Porsche Carrera driven by Mike Keyser, of Towson, Md., and Milt Minter of Los Angeles overcame the effects of an early race fire and was in second place one lap behind with three hours to go.

A Corvette driven by Ron Grable of Troy, Mich., and Mike Brockman of Los Angeles was third four laps back.

The race turned out to be just as predicted, with the Corvettes taking the early lead and the Porsches wearing them down.

Ritger Wins PBA

MIAMI (UPI) — Top-seeded Dick Ritger of Hartford, Wis., rolled strikes on seven of his final eight frames Saturday to defeat Johnny Guenther of Seattle, Wash., 246-194 for first place in the $80,000 STP Bowling Classic.

Ritger, 36, started the final game with two straight strikes and took a lead he never relinquished.

Guenther, who captured the STP event two years ago, rolled only four strikes to Ritger's nine.

The championship round started with Bob Strampe of Detroit, defeating Bobby Cooper of Houston, Tex., 204-190.

Strampe then disposed of Dave Soutar of Gilroy, Calif., 201-194 to move into a match with Guenther.

Strampe and Guenther tied 187-187 at the end of 10 frames and headed into a two-frame rolloff, which Guenther won 58-50.

The victory was worth $10,000 to Ritger. Guenther received $6,000 and Strampe got $4,000.

Indians, Oakland Deal

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Cleveland Indians traded catcher Ray Fosse and shortstop Jack Heidemann to the Oakland Athletics Saturday in exchange for catcher Dave Duncan and outfielder George Hendrick.

Fosse, who enjoyed his best season as an Indian in 1970 when he hit 18 home runs and batted .307, batted .304 this season in spring training. He never did regain his 1970 form after colliding with Johnny Bench in the All-Star game that season.

Heidemann, who was demoted to the minor leagues last season, was batting .250 in spring training.

Duncan batted .218 in 121 games for the A's last season, while Hendrick batted .182 at Oakland and .273 at Iowa.

Previously, Hendrick had hit more than 300 in four of five minor league seasons and Duncan last season had 19 home runs and batted in 59 runs.

Phillies Down Mets, 6 to 2

CLEARWATER, Fla. (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phillies battled around against reliever Phil Hennigan in a five-run seventh inning Saturday to come from behind and beat the New York Mets, 6-2.

The Mets had struck for a pair of third inning runs against Phils starter Steve Carlton on a single by Bud Harrelson and Felix Millan's homer. But they were checked the rest of the way by Carlton and relievers Barry Lersch and Mac Scarce. Lersch got the win and Scarce the save.

Hennigan entered in relief of starter George Stone and lasted only one inning. The Phils got to him with five hits and made the most of two Met errors and a passed ball in the inning.

Tom Seaver outpitched Jim Lonborg in a battle of former Cy Young Award winners as the Mets beat the Phillies in a morning "B" game, 5-1. Seaver, making his second outing of the spring, hurled four scoreless innings and gave up just two hits.

Meanwhile the Phillies announced that reserve catcher Pete Koegel has been hospitalized with a mild case of pneumonia, but is expected to return to uniform by next midweek.

With the Giants leading 5-0 and batting at the top of the inning, Tito Fuentes was hit by a Wright pitch. The Giants' second baseman, who had tripled in two runs in his previous times at bat, then exchanged words with the Angel hurler.

Big Brawl

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Four players were ejected for fighting—including pitcher Clyde Wright, who needed three stitches in the forehead, and manager Charlie Fox—as the San Francisco Giants played and brawled their way to a 14-4 drubbing of the California Angels Saturday.

Both benches erupted twice in separate incidents in the fracas-filled fourth inning. Police were needed to restore order and, at one point, to prevent fans from joining the melee.

Celtics Rip Knicks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dave Cowens scored 29 points and Paul Silas added 22 Saturday night in carrying the Boston Celtics to a 108-103 victory over the New York Knicks.

The Knicks, playing their last regular season game, were thus deprived of a chance to tie Los Angeles' National Basketball Association record for most home victories in one season—36. New York coach Red Holzman also will now have to wait until next season for his 300th regular season victory as the Knicks' mentor.

Earl Monroe's 25 points were high for New York and Walt Frazier had 18.

The Celtics, with the best won-lost record at 65-14, trailed 54-47 at halftime. Silas then got hot as he scored 16 of his points after intermission.

The lead changed four times early in the third quarter before Cowens' jumper from the key put Boston in front for good at 71-70. The Celtics opened a 90-82 advantage in the first minute of the fourth quarter but seven straight points by Monroe and Willis Reed cut the margin to one point.

A pair of Silas foul shots with four minutes remaining made it 91-95 and baskets by Cowens and Jo Jo White put the game out of reach.

The Knicks' next game will be its home playoff opener against Baltimore Friday night.

Matmen Sellout

KINGSTON — The professional wrestler, returned to town Saturday night and drew another sellout crowd at the Municipal Auditorium.

In the feature bout on the card, West Coast champion Freddie Blassie, who along with many of the others here will be Madison Square Garden Monday, and Chief Jay Strongbow both were disqualified at 12:13 of their match after a rather heated disagreement with the referee.

The co-feature saw Gorilla Monsoon pound Buddy Wolf at 20:00.

In other bouts, Luis Torres and Ben Ortiz fought to a draw; Joe Turco pinned Miguel Faliciano at 15:10 and the Sensational Sonny King downed Mike Conrad at 12:13.

Cochran Wins Cup Finale

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE, Calif. (UPI) — Bob Cochran, the brother star of the skiing Cochran family from Richmond, Vt., won the Heavenly Valley men's giant slalom Saturday with a brilliant second run of one minute, 23.88 seconds, but Gustavo Thoeni of Italy claimed the world cup for the third year in a row by finishing fourth.

Cochran, who has three sisters skiing on the international circuit, finished sixth in the first run of the giant slalom Saturday in 1:44.39 and thus had a combined total of 3:08.17 to win the event in the final World Cup competition of the year.

"My second run was the best in my life," said a happy Cochran. "Everything went perfect. I didn't do as well as I should have in the first but that's the way it goes. I'm tickled to death to be the overall winner."

Cochran was second in the slalom Friday and picked up 20 World Cup points for the effort. His Saturday victory added another 25 for a year's total of 93 and assured him a place in the top 10. Sister Marilyn wound up eighth in the women's standings.

Thoeni, who clinched the 1972 World Cup title at Heavenly Valley, won Saturday's first run of the giant slalom in 1:42.93 but the best he could do in the second was 1:26.33. That put him fourth behind Cochran, Erwin Stricker of Italy and slalom winner Jean Noel Augert of France.

Fourth gave Thoeni 11 World Cup points and he finished the year with a total of 166. David Zwilling of Austria, who started Saturday's competition only four points behind Thoeni, wound up eighth in the giant slalom in 3:10.54. That was worth only three points but he had a previous better finish and thus didn't pick up a point to finish second with 151, 15 behind Thoeni.

Thoeni said he wasn't satisfied with the course here. The first run was through 61 gates, the second through 59. The course measured out 4,140 feet with a vertical drop of 1,380. Saturday's weather was near perfect with the competition run off in brilliant sunshine and hardly any wind.

"The course was too fast for me," said Thoeni, who celebrated his 22nd birthday three weeks ago. "I'll continue racing but it is getting tougher all the time. As for turning pro, I haven't given it a thought."

AMERICAN FLASH—Bob Cochran flashes downhill in the men's Giant Slalom, the final event of the World Cup season, to win Saturday's run at Heavenly Valley, Calif. Gustavo Thoeni of Italy captured the overall title by finishing fourth. (UPI)

The Section Nine Mess

by Charles J. Tiano, Sports Editor

If John Archer, the executive director of the New York State Public High School Athletic Association, is in an investigatory mood these days, he might try the recent Section Nine tournament for starters. It has to stand as one of the less memorable accomplishments of the Section Nine leadership.

The chances are that Mr. Archer won't, but this should not deter anyone from spreading the whole fiasco on the public record.

You know about Cornwall High, top-rated small school with a 42-game streak, forfeiting the Class B-C open basketball title to Fallsburgh because it refused to be used as a yo-yo by the Section Nine scheduling committee which changed its mind more often than the pretty maiden.

Fallsburgh had the same problem with the time change but agreed to compromise and appeared at UCCS's Senate Gym at 4 p.m. (about the third arrangement) and was subsequently awarded the B-C Open title. The Fallsburgh action in no way, however, impaired Cornwall's right of refusal.

We showed up at the Senate Gym at 1 p.m. to find it empty. Nobody had told us, either.

The original date and time for the Cornwall Fallsburgh playoff was 1 p.m. Saturday, March 17, but nobody, it seems, bothered to notify Cornwall coach Glenn McGinnis.

"We were never officially notified of a change in schedule," McGinnis fumed. "We found out about it by reading Friday's Middletown Record." The Cornwall coach reacted sharply, charging that "our team was used to support the interests of the Section 9 Committee. We do not blame the Fallsburgh team or administration."

Cornwall's refusal to accept the unannounced (to them) eleventh hour change was no reflex reaction on the part of McGinnis. "The team and the administrative staff at Cornwall voted to stand by the original schedule," McGinnis emphasized.

McGinnis explained that the community of Cornwall had made a prior night commitment that would have been inconvenient by a game-time switch.

What about that 42-game Cornwall winning streak that was "ended" by the forfeit?

"We're not bothered about losing after 42 straight," said McGinnis. "They're the ones who voted not to play. We still feel we haven't been beaten on a court." The Cornwall coach also feels the forfeit could be legally removed anyway. And there is strong precedent to support his position.

If you think they don't do things differently in the upstate area when it comes to high school tournament time, listen to this blast from the most recent publication of the New York State Sports Writers Association:

"The circumstances surrounding the Fallsburgh-Cornwall forfeit are unbelievable. No. 1 Cornwall won a Section Nine semi-finals Class B game on Wednesday night, and then beat Monticello, 73-62, for the Class B title on Friday night."

day night. Then the team was scheduled to play the Class C winners (Fallsburgh) Saturday, 60 miles away at Ulster County Community College for the Class B-C championship."

"Well . . . all the details still aren't clear, but Cornwall refused to play . . ." (Details above).

"Anyway, the point is, that teams must play three games in the sectionals over a four-day period (Wednesday-Saturday) ??? This is unheard of upstate." Or anyplace else, we might add.

It goes beyond that. According to our records, Cornwall played on Saturday, March 10, Wednesday, the 14th; Friday the 16th and would have had to play Saturday the 17th, but for the forfeit. That's four games in a week, the last three within four days. To top it off, Cornwall had a first round bye, another team like OCS could conceivably have had to play five games within nine days, if they continued winning.

Why the massive 1973 Section Nine field with all its flaws and problems that cropped up along the way?

Paul Zintel of Jefferson-Youngville, the Section Nine basketball chairman explains: "It's the only way we can sell an (open) New York State tournament to the SPHSAA."

It is no secret that Zintel's dream is to create a three-tiered New York State basketball championship based on school enrollment: Class A, 800 or more students; Class B, 300 to 799; and Class C, up to 299 students. This is a plausible goal and would represent a major breakthrough in a state that is notoriously behind the rest of the country in that area.

There are about 750 high schools in the state and this breakdown would give each class about 250 schools. Zintel envisions a post-season tourney involving every school (after each has completed its legal 18-game schedule) with three separate state championships. This would be exclusive of New York city metropolitan area.

As far as this year's Section Nine arrangement goes, it seems to be somehow related to whatever Zintel is trying to prove. Maybe that's what coach McGinnis meant when he alluded to "committee interests," although this is sheer speculation.

Zintel also said that invited schools had a deadline to respond with RSVP's, but that all but two waited until the pairings were released before making a decision on whether or not to play. It's all very fuzzy.

Zintel's long-range plans have merit, but a few things must be accomplished before that happens—like restoring the battered image of Section Nine, setting up a realistic tournament system (not the beef stew formula of 1973), and, oh yes, letting the press in on some of its secrets.

Between tournaments, you'd never know that Section Nine ever existed.

Blalock Leads LPGA

PORT ST. LUCIE, Fla. (UPI)

Pug-nosed Jane Blalock continued her sub-par mastery of the St. Lucie "Sinners" course Saturday to lead 16 survivors into today's finals of the $100,000 Sears Women's Golf Classic with a 5 and 4 victory over Kathy Cornelius.

The blonde, blue-eyed New Hampshire native has played the best golf in the field in the first two rounds of match play. She fired a 3 under-par Friday to beat Muriel Breer 2-up over the 6,347-yard windswept course, then followed with a 2 under performance through the 14 medal holes to beat Cornelius Saturday.

"I've been working hard on my long irons, knowing they're needed on this course, and it paid off," said the 27-year-old pro star.

The payoff for more than $66,000 in prize money comes today in one 18-hole medal round played by the 16 hole with a 15-foot birdie putt survivors of two days of match play. The winner will get the $15,000, one of the richest prizes on the women's tour.

Besides Blalock, the survivors are: Pam Higgins, Joyce Kazzmierski, Gloria Ehret, Betty Burfeindt, defending champion Betsy Cullen, Carol match player Barbara Romack

Mann, Sandra Post, Kathy Whitworth, Marilyn Smith, Sandra Haynie, Judy Rankin, Mickey Wright, Cathy Duggan, Gerda Boykin and Sandra Spuzich.

Although Blalock began the journey seeded second on last year's money winning record, Whitworth and Sandra Palmer were picked as the co-favorites.

Whitworth survived with a 3 and 2 victory over Carole Jo Skala Saturday, but reported "I putted terrible."

Palmer bowed in the second round to the veteran Mickey Wright, 2 and 1, and must be content in playing in a satellite medal round today with the other losers for $33,100 in prizes.

From the match play performance, Sandra Haynie appeared to be one of the big threats to Blalock. In one of the best played matches of the day, Haynie turned back Jan Ferraro today in one 18-hole medal round played by the 16 hole with a 15-foot birdie putt survivors of two days of match play. The winner will get the $15,000, one of the richest prizes on the women's tour.

"If I did this every week, I'd be a nervous idiot," Haynie commented on her ability as a match player.

Judy Rankin shot one-under 69 to defeat veteran match player Barbara Romack

4 and 2. Judy said she had changed her putter last week, using a modified version of the one she used in 1970 to win three tournaments.

Four second round matches went extra holes. Marilyn Smith three putted three holes on the back nine to lose a lead, then sank an 18-footer for a birdie on the 19th to defeat Barbara Myers one-up.

Duggan beat Gail Denenberg one-up in 19 holes, and Gerda Boykin had to go 20 holes to down Peggy Wilson. Spuzich also required 20 holes to go one-up over Donna Caponi Young.

Spartans Sparkle

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)

Michigan State's hockey team exploded for three goals in 53 seconds on the way to a 10-1 victory over the Air Force. The following night the Spartans netted three scores in 37 seconds in winning an 11 to five game, also against the Air Force Academy team from Colorado.

WASHED AWAY—Lee Elder, who has a share of the lead in the Greater New Orleans Open, looks out from under a canopy at Lakewood C.C. at rain-swept skies that forced a postponement of Saturday's third round. Elder and Miller Barber have scores of 139 for 36 holes. They'll play two rounds today, weather permitting. (UPI)

Orleans Golf Rained Out

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A steady downpour and gusty winds forced cancellation Saturday of the third round of the $125,000 Greater New Orleans Open golf tournament.

Twenty-three of the 83 golfers teed off early before a cold front moved through, dumping more than three inches of rain on the 7,080-yard Lakewood Country Club course. Professional Golfers Association officials said the final 36 holes of the scheduled four-day tournament would be played today.

Lee Elder and Miller Barber shared the lead at five-under par 139 through two rounds of play.

"The delay doesn't bother me at all," Elder said. "Of course it's like any sport. You get a certain amount of momentum and you hate to lose it. But I don't think I'll lose it—at least I hope not."

Dave Hill, tied with three others for third place at 141, said earlier in the tournament that if play ran past Sunday he would have to withdraw.

"I have to be in Palm Springs this week to work on my game, and even if I was leading the tournament, I wouldn't be able to play Monday," he said.

Hill said he was going to Palm Springs to work with golfing tutor Norm Van Knight. Arnie Palmer, a crowd favorite, played five holes before the tournament was suspended Saturday and was one-under par for the day and two over through 41 holes.

Trevino Answers Challenge

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — Lee Trevino Saturday accepted motorcycle dare-devil Evel Knievel's challenge to play golf for $10,000 a hole.

"Tell him to put $200,000 in a suitcase, I'll do the same, and we will meet at some regulation 18-hole golf course," Trevino said. "We'll play until one of us has the other's suitcase."

Knievel challenged the best of golf's professionals several weeks ago saying they could not play under pressure because, on the tour, they were not playing with their own money.

"The money is not there to lose," said the man who has promised to jump a rocket motorcycle over the Grand Canyon. "I'd like to play one of the top names in golf for $10,000 a hole. Then they would see what true pressure was and I'm sure I could handle them."

Knievel did not mention his handicap, if any.

"Where is he?" asked Trevino, who was relaxing during a couple of weeks off the tour. "I'll send my plane for him. From what I understand Knievel is serious. I can't understand how he feels he can beat me at my game—but I'm ready for him."

"I'll play him, but I want him before Arnie (Palmer) or Jack (Nicklaus) get him. If he plays them first, there won't be any thing left for him."

Ulster Will Send Pair To NJCAA Bowling Event

STONE RIDGE/Steve Ferraro and Bob Sinnott, who led Ulster County Community College to a Mid Hudson Conference bowling championship this season, will represent the Senators in the third annual NJCAA bowling tournament which begins Friday in Buffalo.

Erie County CC will host the 14-team affair which includes All MHC honor team. He averaged 192 in the conference and slammed the league's highest single, a 264. Ferraro was also chosen as a regional all star and led Ulster to a seventh place in the Region XV tournament. His Mid Hudson average was the loop's second highest, and his 675 triple was also No. 2 in the MHC.

Sinnott, the number two man for the Senators all season, racked up highs of 234 and 643. His triple was fourth in the Mid Hudson Conference where he averaged 189.

The Senator rollers will depart the Stone Ridge campus Thursday with Athletic Director Mike Perry. Competition in doubles is set for Friday at 10 a.m. after which both will advance to singles elimination.

Kickers Host Ukranian Youth

MORGAN HILL, Kingston Sport Club Kickers got back into action this afternoon at 2 p.m. when they host the Ukranian Youth in a League Division game at the Oehler's Mountain Lodge Field. The Kickers currently lead the League Division with a 7-1 record. The locals resumed their season last week by downing Oceanside, 4-1, behind a hat trick by Gino Ventriglia.

Coach Jimmy Reinhardt expressed pleasure at the play of the team, especially considering the weather and field conditions. Only 10 men suited last week, something Reinhardt is hoping will change on Thursday.

Anyone interested in playing with the Kickers should report to Oehler's today at 2 p.m. or contact Reinhardt or team publicist Kenneth Pratt.

Tourney Time Drawing Near

It's getting to be that time of the year and early notices have gone out for two major Ulster County Golf tournaments for the 1973 season.

The Herdegen Memorial, to be known hereafter as the Ulster County Amateur Championship, opens Saturday, June 16, at Wiltwyck Country Club. The 72-hole medal event concludes Sunday, June 24, at Sawyerkill.

The second annual Ulster County Golf Crusade, sponsored by the Kingston Chapter of the American Cancer Society, will be held Saturday, May 26, at Locust Tree Golf and Country Club at New Paltz.

Charles J. Tiano, Sports Editor of The Daily Freeman, serves as tournament director for both events.

The dates for the Ulster County Amateur are:
Saturday, June 16 — Wiltwyck
Sunday, June 17 — Rondout
Saturday, June 23 — Locust Tree

Sunday, June 24 — Sawyerkill
The Cancer Crusade, a highly successful event despite poor weather conditions last October, will be limited to 100 players.

The Crusade is open to all golfers with bona fide club handicaps. The cost of entry fee includes golf, dinner, prizes and a donation to the American Cancer Society. Entry blanks will be available in the next few days.

Eighteen players are automatically qualified for the 1973 Ulster County Championships, a 72-hole stroke event over four county courses.

Heading the list of exemptions is defending champion Harvey Bostic of Wiltwyck Country Club. The exempt list also includes such well known area names as Bill Van Aken, Leon Randall, Joe Bostic, Frank Muller, John Buoymaster, Harold Van Aken, Rich Barthel, Dennis Beaver.

Also, Bill Kaufman, Charles Stauffer, J. Michael Bruhn, Terry Allred, George Cosenza, Werner Kolln, Randy Siegel and Brian Smith.

There are four player categories for the Ulster County event — exempt players by reason of performance in last tournament; players picked on merit by the tournament committee; high school and college players and at-large, non-affiliated players. An at-large qualifying round, if needed, will be announced later.

Players who have received invitations to the championship must file entries no later than April 15.

Ulster Golfers Open April 9

STONE RIDGE The Ulster County Community Golf team will play a nine match season, opening again st Dutchess Community College at home on April 9, according to Mike Perry, the Director of Athletics and golf coach.

The team will play its home matches at the Wiltwyck Country Club in Kingston.

The golfers will compete against five Mid-Hudson Conference opponents: Dutchess (April 9), Rockland (April 19), Orange (April 23), Westchester (April 26) and Sullivan (April 30).

In addition, Coach Perry's team also will meet Staten Island (April 10), New York City (April 17), Nassau (April 20) and Post (May 7).

The sub-regional tournament will be hosted by Dutchess Community College on May 14 and the Region V tournament will be sponsored by Rockland Community College on May 21.

"Yes," replied Jack, "in fly and roll to 350." DePalo says without a trace of cockiness. "But everything has to be in your favor — wind, low humidity and fast fairways."

Why isn't Jack DePalo on the professional tour is an inevitable question. "I play golf strictly for kicks. I know I can play better than my 8-handicap, if I shortened my swing and sharpened up my short game, but all of the fun would be gone for me." He readily admits his weaknesses — putting, half wedge shots and staying straight.

Link Dominates Stats

STONE RIDGE Coleman Link, the MVP of this year's Region XV basketball tournament, led the Ulster County Community College Super Senators in seven different departments over UCCC's 34-5 campaign, according to the official team cumulative statistics.

With 643 points and a 16.9 per game average, Link was the team's top scorer. He took the most shots, 616, made the most field goals, 299, and appeared in 38 games. The 6-5 sophomore also pulled down a team-high 492 rebounds and led the squad with his 12.9 per game average.

Jackie Knowles, Ulster's first All America, also made 38 game appearances and dominated the foul shooting and assist categories. Jackie made 111 of his 143 attempts from the charity stripe, more than twice the total of any of his teammates. In addition he racked up an incredible total

COLEMAN LINK

Link in scoring and rebounding, maintained a 55 per cent accuracy mark from the floor.

In posting their finest season record ever, the Senators outscored their opponents 3306 to 2478 and maintained a winning margin average of over 20 points a per game. Their defensive yield was 63.5 points, ninth best among the nation's junior colleges. Ulster averaged 84.7 points per game and shot 50 per cent from the field as a team.

The Senators won their third straight Mid Hudson Conference title with a 12-0 record. They also took Region XV honors for the second consecutive year and won three out of four games in Hutchinson, Kan., in the NJCAA tournament to finish fourth.

Link, Knowles, Nixon and Val Williams, the four sophomores on the team, will leave Ulster to go on to four-year colleges. Freshmen Ike Chestnut, Lenoris Clemmons, Steve Richardson, Bob Miller and Eddie Younger are expected back next year.

Sauers ... On Top

ALBANY With the retirement at season's end of Tom Niland of LeMoyne and Jim McDermott of Iona, Albany State College Coach Dick Sauers now has the most wins of any active college basketball coach in New York State. Sauers' Great Danes, having just completed their third straight 17-victory campaign, have now won 288, while losing 132.

Next year will be a challenge for the veteran coach, however, as he will lose five key players through graduation, including Werner Kolln of Kingston. The others are co-captain John Quattrocchi of Fort Edward, Bob Rossi of Schenectady, Dave Welchons of New Hartford and Bob Curtiss of Horseheads. In the past three years, they have helped Albany to a combined 51-19 record.

Sauers will rebuild around a trio of juniors, all of whom saw considerable action the past two years. Byron Miller of Gloversville, Reggie Smith and Harry Johnson.

Quattrocchi finished his varsity career with 969 points, eighth on the all-time Albany list for three years. His 320 points this season marked the third year he had scored 300 or more, a feat accomplished by only six other players: Rich Margison, Gary Holway, Dan Cohen, Dick Crossett, Jim Oppedisano and Jack Jordan. They are Albany's only 1,000-point career scorers.

This year, Quattrocchi's 12.8 scoring average was second to Miller's 16.7. His assists (89) were only four short of the one-season Albany record and his free throw percentage (86.5) ranked among the nation's top five in NCAA statistics.

Miller totaled 418 points, 12th best for a single season. Only five other Albany players have scored 400 points in a season, but they have done it a total of 11 times. Holway did it four times. Miller has 676 career points with a year to go and appears destined to finish among the top half-dozen in that category. Kolln, who missed seven games, collected 109 points for a 6.1 average but his field goal percentage of 51.8 was the best among the Albany regulars. He was 21 for 23 (61.8) from the free throw line, with 74 rebounds. Kolln also tied the Albany State game high in assists with seven in the Williams game on Feb. 28.

The Danes finished second in the SUNY Conference with a 7-3 record and went on to the first ECAC Upstate New York Tournament, losing to Union in the championship finale 69-64. The Danes handed Brockport its first loss to a New York State team in two and a half years but had its 25-game home streak ended 76-62 by the University of Buffalo.

Federal Spending... a Dilemma for the Voters

PRINCETON, N.J.
Voters of the nation find themselves in their usual dilemma regarding federal spending, as revealed by Gallup surveys over a period of many years. On the one hand, they would like Congress to appropriate ample funds for their favorite social programs. On the other, they think the budget should be balanced and that income taxes should not be increased.

Congress faces a similar dilemma within the next few months in trying to decide whether to uphold or override President Nixon's views on spending.

Specifically, the issue revolves about the impounding of funds already appropriated by Congress but withheld by the President on the grounds that such spending will require an increase in taxes.

To probe the public's attitudes on different aspects of this issue, interviewers for the Gallup Poll asked voters to give their views on the question of impounding funds. They were then asked how they felt about the amount they presently pay as income tax and finally about the importance they give to a balanced federal budget.

From this series of questions, these findings emerge:

A margin of 45 to 38 per cent on the issue of impounding or withholding funds already appropriated by Congress for social programs.

This question was asked: As a way of controlling the federal budget, President Nixon has impounded, or set aside, funds which Congress had previously voted to give to a program or "not so important." wide range of domestic programs such as housing, welfare, education, rural electrification and soil conservation. Do you think President Nixon did the right thing or the wrong thing in impounding these funds?

On the other hand, nearly 2 of every 3 persons included in the survey say their income taxes are now "too high." In fact, the 65 per cent who give this answer represent the highest majority ever recorded in 14 surveys since 1949 with but two exceptions, in 1952 and 1969, when the figures were 71 per cent and 69 per cent, respectively.

This question was asked in the latest survey to determine views on taxes: Do you consider the amount of federal income taxes which you have to pay as too high, about right or too low?

The belief that taxes are too high is shared by majorities of persons in all income levels and in all major occupation groups. The typical voter continues to place great importance on a balanced budget: 60 per cent in the survey say this is "very important" as opposed to 33 per cent who say it is "fairly important" or "not so important." The question asked in the survey and the findings: How important do you think it is to balance the federal budget — very important, fairly important or not so important? An early indication of how the public generally would vote if it had to weigh the impounding of funds against spending for social programs was provided in a survey conducted last December. The results showed a majority of 54 per cent voting in favor of holding down spending and taxes.

This question was asked: During the coming months, President Nixon says he will try to hold down government spending and taxes. Many Congressmen, on the other hand, say Congress should pass social programs that would give more money to the poor, the aged and to schools and the like. Which position do you agree with more — holding down spending and taxes or spending more money for social programs?

The latest findings reported today are based on interviews with a total of 1,517 adults, 18 and over, interviewed in person in the survey say this is "very important" as opposed to 33 per cent who say it is "fairly im-

Browsing at the KAL... Women's Lib

By NINA WERBALOWSKY
KINGSTON

Where is a woman's place? The outdated answer: in the home.

But how about women in the office, the factory, the school, the professions, the executive's chair? Shouldn't women have an equal opportunity to find themselves there? Is a woman's function solely biological and custodial?

In the last decade, these demanding doubts expanded until they exploded into the Women's Liberation Movement. Mothers, wives and singles, dissatisfied with their lives, found an angry voice in the writings of some of the more dynamic female authors of our times. The questions they pose and the answers they set forth form the crux of the Movement. Such questions ask: is a woman with a family entitled to a meaningful, productive life outside her family? Does she need and/or want this? Is it fair that women are paid less for the same work? Should the U.S. pass a separate amendment freeing women and granting them equal rights? Have women been subjugated, downtrodden, exploited, treated merely as sex objects?

You can find the books that mirror the current trend towards increased feminine introspection by scanning the shelves of our Kingston Area Library. That's where you can find Betty Friedan's The Feminine Mystique, the volume that vaulted its author into the chair of high priestess of the Women's Lib movement. Speaking of women she writes, "We are suffering a slow death of mind and spirit," mired down with petty housekeeping details. She calls this restless feeling, sometimes referred to as "housewifeitis." "The problem that has no name." She was among the first to urge modern woman to find fulfillment beyond kitchen and child-rearing. Her words oft times struck responsive keys in the hearts of her female readers.

Speaking and writing forthrightly about sex and sex relationships is radical feminist Kate Millet whose 1970 book, Sexual Politics, raised a cloud of controversy that hasn't yet settled. The author accurately depicts her essay as being composed of equal parts of accusations and attacks much of her criticism while throwing a few barbs of his own in his book, The Prisoner of Sex. He centers around the theme that the relationship between the sexes is and always has been party in this work. Mailer's out for your perusal are Dr. Margaret Mead's Male and Female, a study of the sexes in a changing world; and Maxine Nunes' The Lace Ghetto, a new work that is being borrowed from the library just as fast as it is being returned.

Another on the required reading list for the Women's Libber is The Female Eunuch by Germaine Greer. Taking aim at women's cultural history, their psychological development and their relationship to men, Ms. Greer advocates nothing short of revolution.

To achieve social, legal, occupational, economic, political and moral equality — the goal of the women's rights authors — the woman must change herself, writes Ms. Greer in this most interesting tome.

Two other selections singled out for your perusal are Dr. Margaret Mead's Male and Female, a study of the sexes in a changing world; and Maxine Nunes' The Lace Ghetto, a new work that is being borrowed from the library just as fast as it is being returned.

And then there's the greeting card exhortation that sums up the feelings of non-militant women: "To hell with Women's Liberation, think of me as a sex object!"

Luciano Film...A Study of Power

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lucky Luciano once told a prison official, "I never was a crumb, and if I have to be a crumb, I'd rather be dead."

The ex-kingpin of the New York Mafia never was called a crumb—his old adversary at the federal narcotics agency termed him ruthless and a cutthroat. Luciano suffered a fatal heart attack on Jan. 27, 1962 at Naples' Capodichino Airport, just as police reportedly were ready to close in on his multimillion dollar drug smuggling operation.

Luciano is being resurrected in a movie, "Re: Lucky Luciano," by award-winning Italian director Francesco Rosi and starring Rod Steiger as gangster-informer Gene Gianini, with Italian film star Gian Maria Volante as Luciano.

The film's other major character is Charles Siragusa, a U.S. narcotics agent who hunted Luciano for 20 years. Siragusa, now retired as deputy director of the U.S. Narcotics Bureau, will play himself.

"I use non-actors whenever possible," Rosi said in an interview. "Siragusa accepted the role because he was interested in the theme of the movie."

In "Re: Lucky Luciano" Rosi pursues the central theme of many of his past films, he said, explaining:

"I am interested in power, both legal and illegal, and their interrelationship. Luciano cannot exist without the help of legal power and he understands that the legal power needs him."

"Luciano was a genius in his activity. During prohibition there was big money to be made in alcohol—Luciano provided alcohol while the government looked the other way. After the second World War there was big money to be made in drugs—the government silently acquiesced."

The film focuses on the prehistoric. The Mafia is a type of illegal power that affects all aspects of society; this power is helped the Allies in World War II—all lies. He was a cutthroat, a ruthless gangster, a big dope peddler—I detested the man."

Rosi said Siragusa agreed to play himself in the film to help dispel some of the rumors about Luciano that painted him in a kinder light than as a ruthless criminal. Rosi said Siragusa told him:

"All the good things he did, the stories you hear, how he helped the Allies in World War II—all lies. He was a cutthroat, a ruthless gangster, a big dope peddler—I detested the man."

Rosi agreed, saying: "I do not romanticize the Mafia. The Mafia is power — political power, economic power, social power. Power is not romantic."

Plan a Swimming Pool this Summer!

CALL TOLL FREE 800-631-5822
In some areas dial 1-800-631-5822

Don't do anything until you learn about the luxurious new swimming pool that needs no excavation... installed in one day... requires almost no upkeep... cost surprisingly little.

Normal upkeep expenses are all but eliminated by the wide use of vinyl and fiberglass. Almost nothing affects these two modern marvels, including sun, rain, heat, cold, snow. That's why almost every exposed surface on this pool is protected either with vinyl or fiberglass.

What about water costs? More good news. This is a pool you fill only once! Without you doing a thing, its "lazy man" filtration system automatically keeps the water cleaner and clearer than the tap water you drink.

A deck surrounds the entire pool, providing plenty of space for plenty of swimmers to walk around the pool or sit dangling their feet in the water. At one end the deck extends into a huge sun deck where you can entertain a whole crowd. For sure footing, non-skid vinyl covers every inch of the deck.

All around the deck there's a fence of solid fiberglass. Nobody can see in. This helps shut out the world and make your pool a real retreat truly a private playground.

As for strength the pool features a steel superstructure like that of a suspension bridge. Here's one pool with rock-solid construction. It's so strong it's portable! If you ever move it can go with you.

Yes, here's a lifetime pool, and you can bet it will change your life. It will give you a wonderful new place to entertain your friends... get your exercise... keep in trim... take a refreshing dip after a hot day's work... have exciting "water-edge" meals... enjoy money saving vacations at home... do more with your family than you've ever done before.

JFK Meeting Ends 21-Year Separation

Red Hook Man, Brother Reunited

RED HOOK, N.Y. — Two brothers greeted each other warmly at Kennedy International Airport late in February. They had not seen each other in 21 years.

Russell G. Adamian, 10 Park Avenue, Red Hook came to the United States 21 years ago from Mardin, a part of Armenia that is now under Turkish rule.

He has been living in Dutchess County for 15 years, and is a staff engineer in the Kingston Laboratory of IBM.

Russell was one of a family of six children, including four boys and two girls in Armenia. All except brother Albert were in this country until that evening in New York.

Albert moved to Syria 22 years ago. He is a tailor by trade, and has already left for Detroit with his wife and five children to begin anew in his chosen occupation.

The meeting was not without some tension for Russell. He told The Freeman that he had "the scare of my life while driving to the airport."

He heard the news bulletin concerning a passenger plane that had been shot down by Israel. "I had a very anxious moment as I knew my brother and his family were flying out of Beirut that morning," he related.

"It wasn't until I got close to the airport that I heard more details about the origin and destination of the demised flight," he added.

Why would Albert Adamian

choose to come to this country after such a long period of time? Part of the reason, according to Albert's wife, was because the rest of the family was here.

And another part of the reason is that his son is "coming of age" for military service. It seems that Christians in military service in Syria are sometimes abused by the predominant Moslems, and this was not a pleasant prospect for the Adamians.

This problem, said Mrs. Adamian, was not directly related to the Israeli-Arab tensions of the past few years, but has been in effect for some time.

And even the females in Syria are trained for military service, many serving as hospital corpsmen or medics.

Immigration is a very lengthy process for persons from that corner of the Mid-East. It took almost a year for Albert and his family to complete the necessary requirements for coming to this country.

The United States, said Mrs. Adamian, will not give a visa directly from Syria to America. Albert had to go first to Lebanon, where he got a visa from the Italian Consulate.

It will not be easy at first for the Adamians in Detroit, despite the fact that they have relatives there. None speaks any English, and the children have already started attending public schools.

One of the first things to strike the newcomers as strange about America was the fact that Mrs. Russell Adamian's 72-year-old mother drove up in a recent model car.

In Syria all car imports were banned by the government in 1963, and consequently they had not seen any American cars newer than ten years old.

"And women's lib has not even started over there," said Mrs. Adamian.

But these are the small things. One occasion that all six children are looking forward to is due to come sometime this summer, probably in Detroit, when they all get together for a family reunion — the first in well over 20 years with all present.

LSD Therapy Lecture At College on Monday

STONE RIDGE — Dr. Stanislav Grof, a research psychiatrist at the Maryland Psychiatric Center, will give an illustrated lecture on "LSD Therapy" at 7 p.m. Monday, March 26, at the Stone Ridge campus of Ulster County Community College.

The lecture, scheduled for the Student Lounge in Vanderlyn Hall, is open to the public without charge. It is being sponsored by the Student Government Organization at the college.

In his talk, Dr. Grof will discuss some of the major breakthroughs in the uses and potentials of LSD, a powerful and much misunderstood psychedelic drug.

Dr. Grof supervises a research program at the Maryland Psychiatric Research Center, one of the only two or three such programs still in existence in the nation. Before coming to the U.S., he did LSD research for a number of years in Czechoslovakia.

His research has been done under controlled laboratory conditions in which he used higher doses of LSD — one of the most powerful psychoactive drugs known to man.

Wrolsen Spoke As Individual

KINGSTON — Richard Wrolsen of Route 3, Box 3, Saugerties, said today that he was misquoted in the Freeman story Thursday dealing with the County Legislature's public hearing on raising the limit of senior citizen earnings from $5,000 to $6,000 to qualify for tax exemptions.

The story said that Wrolsen identified himself as "a member of the Conservative Party." Wrolsen, who allowed that he is a member of that party, said he did not preface his remarks by identifying himself as a member or of any political organization. "This was an individual action on my part," he said today. "I was expressing my opinion as a private citizen, not as a member of any political organization."

$2,208,207 Tentative Figure BOCES Action on Budget

NEW PALTZ — The Ulster County Board of Cooperative Education Services' tentative budget for 1973-74 was approved by board members Thursday night.

The gross budget for the next school year is $2,208,207 as compared to this year's gross budget of $2,205,112. The net budget for 1973-74 is $1,143,508 as compared to the current net budget of $1,064,084.

Dr. Jack L. Roosa, BOCES executive officer and superintendent, explained that although the tentative gross budget was an increase of only $3,095, the net budget increase was $79,424, due to smaller state aid funds for the coming year.

Part of the reason, Dr. Roosa said, is that state aid for much of the BOCES program is paid the year after services are provided. There was less service during the 1972-73 year so there is less aid for the 1973-74 year.

Board members from the county will review the budget at the annual meeting 8 p.m.

Wednesday, April 4, at the New Paltz center. Final passage will be at the April 26 meeting. Officers of the BOCES board will be elected at the annual meeting, April 4.

The board in other business approved submission of three proposals to the State Education Department for state and federal funding. They are an occupational education pilot project for educable mentally retarded children in Kingston; addition of six new courses to the adult education program and a Mid-Hudson Regional Planning Center proposal for community school workshop for six districts concerning long range redesign planning.

Michael Aronica, director of occupational education, reported that 859 students have indicated interest in enrollment for next year in the vocational division. Other reports included a profile of BOCES staff members touching on training, salaries and experience.

UCCC Alumni... Tonight

STONE RIDGE — A committee of alumni will meet at 6:30 o'clock tonight to make plans for the formation of an Alumni Association at Ulster County Community College, President George B. Erbstein has announced.

This meeting comes at a time when the college is in its 10th year of operation, a significant milestone, said Dr. Erbstein, and the time to start a viable Alumni Association.

The president said he foresees that this group will assume a role of growing importance at the college. "It will help to provide an opportunity for former students to become better informed and have more accessibility to the activities of the College," he explained. He also said he knows that the association can help the college strengthen its bridge with the campus and the local community.

The president feels an Alumni Association can play an important role at Ulster because the college has had a student body who mostly come from and reside in the county.

"We are anxious to know more about our alumni," said Dr. Erbstein, "and the establishment of this organization will help us to learn."

He is hopeful the association will give former students an opportunity to renew their involvement with the college.

SCRAP IS DIRTY!

For over 85 years we have been processing scrap; recycling our nation's solid waste so they can be reused in the manufacturing process, thereby conserving our diminishing natural resources.

Scrap is everywhere, being created by almost everything, whether it is for necessities or luxuries. Scrap needs a depository and we, as a full scrap iron and metal processing facility, are proud to provide that depository. We are just as proud to be playing our part in helping to keep our cities and our nation beautiful.

We know we get the dirty end. Aren't you glad it's in our yard instead of yours?

Author Sharm Curtin Attacks Isolation of Aged

NEW YORK (AP) — Older people are victims of more discrimination than any other group, believes Sharon Curtin, whose experiences during years of working and living with them have resulted in a book "in praise of old people and in outrage at their loneliness."

"Blacks, Chicanos and women are organized, visible and a little bit threatening, and old people will have to follow their example and organize as a political force," says the author of "Nobody Ever Died of Old Age."

"We have a whole mythology about old people that we all accept: pat them on the head and give them a pacifier," says the 33-year-old registered nurse. She thinks that they should "refuse to be pacified, refuse to take nonsense from their families and social workers and demand a guaranteed income with no social agency interference."

Miss Curtin became increasingly aware of the isolation and shelving of the nation's 20 million persons over 65 as she worked in mental hospitals and nursing homes, lived with them in fleabag hotels, sat with them on park benches, ate with them in greasy spoons and even followed the owner of "the fastest pair of hands in New York" on her shoplifting rounds.

As she relaxed on the bed in her hotel room here in blue jeans and purple sweater, her eyes sparked indignantly, from behind huge round glasses as she recalled some of the things she had seen.

"I worked in a nursing home — a posh, nice, well-run 198 type place — but the 'clients' weren't given the dignity of names; they were all called honey and dearie; they had no privacy, no control over when or what they ate. They were discouraged from becoming friends with each other. The institution wanted them totally dependent on it."

With an old lady who posed as her mother Miss Curtin made the rounds of retirement villages. "They feel like concentration camps with their high walls and security systems," she says of them.

"There's no variety among the people. There are dumb games and dumb things to do to fill the hours. There's nothing for people to love outside themselves."

Raised in a small Wyoming town with grandparents close by and many old people as friends, where growing old was regarded as a natural process, the author was surprised as she moved about the country to learn that the word "old" had come into "such awful disrepute." She was saddened, too, by seeing the struggles of the elderly poor to stay alive.

"Half the old people in this country live below the poverty level, on less than $240 a month," she points out. "It means they can't afford proper medical care; they don't eat right and that means an increase in disabilities."

After talking to people from 50 to 100 she found that the first realization they had that they were old came from someone giving them that label. "Anybody who's been put out of work even at 45 and finds it impossible to get another job knows the prejudices against age," she says.

She thinks old people would do well to start consciousness-raising groups to raise their own pride. "But the poor old people don't have time to do anything but be old and poor, trying to keep a roof over their heads; the middle class people have guilt feelings because they have bought the idea that once you quit being a productive member of society you are a supplicant. And the upper class old are too busy trying to stay young with wrinkle creams and hair

ULSTER COUNTY BPW—Herbert Greenwald of Greenwald's Travel Agency was guest speaker at the regular dinner-meeting of the Ulster County Business and Professional Women's Club Tuesday, March 13. His topic was Israel and assisting him with the program was Rose M. Rahilly, at left. Welcoming the guests were Nancy Plog, third from left, chairman of hospitality and the program, and Margaret Bruck, who assisted her. During the business meeting Mrs. Beverly Reese, chairman of the nominating committee presented a slate for 1973-74. Elections will be held at the annual meeting in April and installations ceremonies will take place in May. The next meeting of the club is scheduled for Tuesday, April 10 in the Governor Clinton Hotel. Mrs. Maureen Graham will be chairman of the program. (Freeman photo by Haines)

Dad's Great Escape

By Joanne and Lew Koch

Should a father witness the birth of his child? Why not? I suspect all the debate on the subject has been initiated by doctors and hospital administrators who want to cloak the process in a medical mystique that only they, a few trained nurses, and the mothers-to-be can participate in and fully understand. Most doctors don't encourage a paternal audience.

Our first child, Lisa, was a long time in coming. After waiting 18 hours with Joanne, holding her hand until she was finally ready to give birth — after all this, I was told to wait in the father's room.

The father's room is a small cubbyhole with an inane flying stork perched above the entranceway. The nurse, to whom Lisa was just another number on a card, poked her head in and told me that my first child was a healthy girl and mother and child were doing fine. I felt about as much a part of the event as water boy for a championship football team.

Our second child, Rachel, was a lot quicker in making her appearance. Joanne had been in labor for three hours when the resident physician made a cursory examination, stated the child would definitely not be born for at least four hours, and then, in violation of hospital rules, he left the floor with no other doctor in attendance.

Rachel, perhaps carrying her father's maverick genes, decided her rites of passage wheeled from the labor room into the delivery room. I turned and followed her.

Moments later she was on the delivery table.

Suddenly, the child was being born.

The baby literally dove into the world. It was an explosion of life and flesh, first the head, followed by an incredibly scrawny little body. With the practiced skill of a doctor who had delivered thousands of babies, the obstetrician thrust a finger in the infant's mouth, scooped out some mucus, and then gave a sharp slap. And then the first cry of life.

The doctor, who had also delivered our two girls, smiled and turned the front side of the baby to me so that I could see it was a son.

The memory of Joshua's birth is always with me — when I change his diapers, when I muss his curly hair, or just watch him as he sleeps.

It will be with me when he goes to school for the first time, when he comes home with a bloody nose from his first fight, when he goes out on his first date, when he goes away to college or work, when he gets married.

I hope, when the time comes, he will ask me if he should watch the birth of his child. I would take such pleasure in describing how I watched his birth. I would tell him it was the most exhilarating, the most awesome experience I have ever had.

Mail Campaign Opens Three Top Concerts for 1973-74 Series

It was announced this week that area subscribers of the Kingston Community Concert Association should have received a brochure announcing the 1973-74 series of concerts.

Those who have not received a brochure to date should contact Mrs. George Wert, campaign chairman, or Mrs. John McCullough, membership secretary of the Community Concert Association.

The mail campaign will close April 5 for those who wish to renew their memberships in this manner. The annual membership campaign of the association will be held May 7-12. Anyone interested in obtaining memberships for the forthcoming season may contact Mrs. George Wert, campaign chairman or Mrs. John A. McCullough, membership secretary.

Entrance to all concerts is by membership card only. No single admissions are ever sold for individual concerts. Membership fees entitle one to attend all three concerts of the season at no additional cost. Adult memberships are $12; student memberships $5.

Response to the Community Concerts this past year was overwhelming—the Community Theater was sold out. Many people waited too long to send in their subscriptions and, as a result, were disappointed. John McCullough, president of the Association, urges all interested in becoming members next season to do so as soon as possible.

The forthcoming series will be a stellar one. Included will be the brilliant BALTIMORE SYMPHONY, THE NORMAN LUBOFF CHOIR, and JOSE CARRERAS, the exceptional young Spanish tenor who has been signed by the New York Metropolitan Opera Company for the 1974-75 season.

The Baltimore Symphony, conducted by Sergin Commissiona, is considered one of the major musical institutions of America. Considered one of the finest conductors on the musical scene today, Maestro Commissiona has brought the Baltimore Symphony to its pinnacle of success.

The Norman Luboff Choir is a household word the length and breadth of the nation. The artistic range of this famed group is unparalleled in all of vocal music. Their popularity in all media of entertainment, whether it be radio, television, or the recording field is unexcelled.

A distinct discovery, Jose Carreras, is the winner of the coveted Verdi Voice Competition. He has concertized widely in Europe, and made his American debut with the New York City Opera in 1972.

Attorney General Cracks Down on Ad

Approximately 25 women who responded to an advertisement offering a job as the $20,000 a year "assistant to president" were put on the "payroll" of a Park Avenue firm but never received a penny in wages, Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz said this month in disclosing his office has obtained an order in New York Supreme Court directing the operators of the firm to pay all wages due the women and barring the operators from continuing to engage in deception employment practices.

Named as defendants in the case are Universal Administrators, 200 Park Avenue, New York City; Joseph Coopersmith, its president, of 5 Hockanum Road, Westport, Conn.; Mark E. Killian, vice president, and Charles Baxter, treasurer.

The Attorney General said the action was begun after numerous complaints were filed with his office by women who had answered an advertisement appearing on September 10, 17, and 24, 1972, in a New York newspaper reading:

"ADMIN ASST. to 20,000 TO PRESIDENT

For a crackerjack with beauty, brains, and loyalty. If you're looking for a dynamic, creative environment to which you can become totally dedicated, our combination of ground floor, social value and personal reward is incomparable. Please send letter outlining your goals, as well as resume."

Hundreds of women responded, according to an affidavit of Assistant Attorney General Dominick J. Tuminaro, of the Civil Rights Bureau, on file in court, but

Interesting Facts About Wedding Rituals

NEW YORK (UPI)—Some wedding rituals handed down through the centuries started out of necessity — and self-preservation. They're a matter of historical record and have nothing to do with hysteria.

Consider the matter of "standing up" for the bridegroom. This now traditional practice had its beginnings at a time when primitive man used to select his wife by capturing her in a raid on an enemy tribe.

Following the lovers' return — wife-to-be dragged behind him — his friends would "stand up" around him. The aim: to ward off attack from rescue parties, the girl's kinfolk or tribe.

These wedding facts from Encyclopaedia Americana also contain some words about wedding bands. The original one was a large band used to tie up the restive damsel after she had been captured.

To insure her continued presence, the girl's spouse placed a restraining band around her ankle, above her knee, round her neck or through her nose, depending on tribal custom.

The giving away of the bride in ancient times took place after the prospective bridegroom agreed to pay a particular price to his father-in-law-to-be.

This was during a time in history when acquisition of a bride was an undisguised commercial transaction.

The manner and type of payment varied from place to place. By today's standards, the purchase price for a wife was not terribly flattering.

One popular form of payment was a cow.

Marriage at one time exemplified men from military service. Among the ancient Hebrews when a man took a bride he was spared going to war for one year. The reason? "He should be free at least one year and shall cheer up his wife which he hath taken."

It was either that or the rulers of the time figured a man could handle only one battle at a time — marriage or war.

A Very Special New Look for Your Wedding

By ELIZABETH L. POST
© 1973, Emily Post Institute, Inc.

Today's quiz is for the June brides whose weddings are approaching so fast — or for anyone who has a close friend or relative in that category.

Weddings no longer need to be stereotyped, as they were for so many years. Now it is quite acceptable — within the limits of good taste and dignity — to do at least some of your "own thing." Have you considered trying any of the following suggestions in your ceremony? See if you can answer the questions with your groom. Perhaps the answers might help you in giving your marriage a very special new look.

1. Q. What is a groom's cake?

A. It is a separate cake (often chocolate) served at the reception. It may be placed on a "groom's table," which can be decorated, if you wish, in a more masculine style than the bride's table. Groom's cake is often served at weddings in the South.

2. Q. Is the church organ the only instrument used for playing wedding music?

A. No. Today one often hears a guitar, a trumpet, or any number of different instruments played at the service — usually by a personal friend of the couple. The clergyman's approval is required, of course.

3. Q. Do the guests ever take part in the ceremony?

A. Yes. Many young couples are writing their own services (or parts of it) and including readings by their friends. Programs, with the responses, are made up and handed to the guests as they enter the church.

4. Q. What is the ceremony of the marriage candles?

A. At an appropriate moment during the service, the clergyman hands the bride and groom lighted candles and with them they light a third candle — a symbol of their two lives becoming one.

5. Q. How can the bride's and groom's mothers have more of a part in the service?

A. Many brides carry two roses (or they are incorporated into the bouquet), which they stop and give to their mother and their new mother-in-law as they leave the church. Also, many fathers say "Her mother and I do" in response to the question "Who gives this woman . . . ?"

6. Q. Must the backs of the bride and groom always be to the congregation?

A. Although there are regulations in most churches about facing the altar for some of the service, couples may turn sideways and face each other while saying their vows. When there is no formal altar, as at an outdoor wedding, a circle may be formed, of which the bride and groom are a part.

7. Q. What is a "house party?"

A. It is a group of close friends of the bride who could not be included as bridesmaids. They wear corsages, and help at the register, the bridal table, etc.

8. Q. Is champagne the only acceptable beverage?

A. No. A round of champagne should be served for the toasts, but any other beverage preferred by the couple and their friends may be offered.

Fashion Is a Composite of Things

By MARIAN CHRISTY

Ex-cover girl Maryll Lanvin — married to tall and handsome Bernard, who's heir to the flourishing Paris fashion house of Lanvin — is playing a new nonclothes role to the hilt.

Maryll loves being a mama. The beautiful brunette, a Lanvin "prototype" who always inspired the collection and occasionally modeled couture in the Faubourg St. Honore salon, has retired from fashion temporarily to devote all her time and energies to her two boisterous sons.

All the current fashion oh-ahs come from Jean Yves, 7, and Hubert, 4, who have the final word on what Maryll will wear or won't wear to society bashes in Paris where she stars as an international beauty.

The relationship with her boys is simultaneously amusing and profound.

"When I am dressed, I go into their room, stand at the foot of their bed and say, 'Sons, do I look all right?' Usually they exclaim, 'Oui-oui, Mama!' But lately they've been objecting to short cocktail dresses. 'Mama,' they say, 'long is never wrong for evening.' Of course, I follow their taste. It's all very satisfying because my boys are in their formative years and, for this transitory period, they belong totally to me and Bernard."

It's something she wouldn't miss for the fashion world.

Wouldn't Maryll like to have a daughter? Wouldn't she be a closer fashion ally in the future? No-no, she exclaims. Without a doubt, she prefers to live in an all-male house. Women, even little women, are "devious" creatures.

"Mothers and daughters become competitors," she insists. "They rival each other for domination over the father. Even today I am unhappy in a company of all women."

Old wounds, which still sting the psyche, came from sour experiences from females at two widely diverse points in her life.

When she was 12 — and a budding young beauty in an all-girl school — she developed a difficult-to-diagnose case of red spots on her eyelids. Classmates taunted, pointed, laughed. Still more cruel was the sketch she found on her desk — a crude portrait with red crayon on the lids. The anonymous accompanying letter was deliberate torment. "Girl children are without pity," says Maryll.

A decade ago Bernard — known as "The Paris Catch" because of his good looks, fame and fortune — snatched Maryll from New York modeling. He promised her everything and gave her Lanvin. When she accepted his marriage proposal the inevitable female jealousy reared into view.

MR. AND MRS. BERNARD LANVIN

"Certain women whom I thought were friends suddenly became very distant," she says about well-remembered reactions. "Today the only women with whom I have contact are those of achievement — females of accomplishment — because with them there is harmony rather than contention. You see, we both feel secure."

The Lanvins, along with a slew of servants, live in an exclusive section of Paris near the Avenue Foch. Slick American fashion magazines have begged to photograph them in their sprawling apartment which is a blur of ultramodern and antique furniture set in a blue-green environment. The reply has been adamantly negative. Pictures would be fodder for thieves. It's also a rule that the boys not be photographed except for family albums.

Bernard, who is boss and brains behind Lanvin's men's collection, is an avid skier and swimmer. Maryll, exactly his opposite in temperament and attitude ("He's always shutting me up!") prefers intramural sports. "I have made a bet with all my friends," she says, "I tell them to look me over when we're both 60 — and then we'll see who's old and leathery, you or me? I do believe in sunshine and the great outdoors!"

The clue, of course, to Maryll's current relaxed, family-oriented life style is her attitude toward fashion. She wears pantsuits and shirts like a uniform — a signature that is both casual and far-reaching.

Maryll, whose life is nourished by couture, says:

"Fashion is no more just a matter of clothes. I think of fashion in terms of the total environment — cars, the way flowers are arranged, even my folding glass table. Fashion can be found in a toothbrush if there's a bit of creative power behind it."

You Can Convert Waste Into Fuel

By JOHN SHUTTLEWORTH

Thanks, in part, to the headlines about today's "energy crisis," THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS has recently been swamped with requests for information about solar, wind and other alternative sources of power. In particular, folks seem fascinated by — and want to learn more about — generating and using methane gas.

Methane, as you may know, is the fuel that can be collected when organic material is composted in a closed container. To be more specific: Animal manure, garbage of any kind and sewage in general can be pumped in a specially designed waste processor called a digester. There, anaerobic bacteria (bacteria that can live and grow where no free oxygen is present) convert the waste into (1) high-quality fertilizer and (2) a fuel for cooking, heating and other uses.

Of course, this sounds almost too good to be true. "Are you really sure," we're asked in letter after letter, "that garbage and animal waste can be composted into a usable fuel?"

Yes, we're sure. And now, thanks to Robert C. McMahon — a science teacher in Portland, Maine — you can set up a simple, working demonstration of this rather amazing transformation. You'll need only a gallon jug, some sort of gas holder (Bob McMahon uses a recycled, heavy-duty plastic bag), a bit of rubber tubing, a couple of tubing clamps, a two-hole rubber stopper, some glass tubing and a glass "Y". The last five items are all commonly found in any high school chemistry lab and the illustration with this article shows the straightforward manner in which the demonstration is assembled.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS ...it tells you how

One long section of glass tubing is first bent into a "U" shaped manometer. FILL THIS TUBE WITH WATER TO A MAXIMUM DEPTH OF NO MORE THAN FOUR INCHES (which will actually give you a total of eight inches pressure). The manometer will then be known when and how much gas the little digester is producing (by the amount of water "pushed" up the long leg of tubing). It will also act as a safety valve (since excess methane will simply bubble around the "U" and out the tube's open end).

A much shorter piece of glass tubing is next heated and drawn into a "burner tip" and attached to one arm of the glass "Y" with a very short section of rubber tubing on which a clamp is placed to act as a valve. (NOTE: Make this tip quite long as a precaution against the possibility of backflash. If you've never formed glass tubing into the "U" and "tip" called for here, any capable high school chemistry student should be able to help you.)

The second branch of the "Y" feeds directly to the gas collector through a longer section of rubber tubing (also fitted with a clamp). McMahon recommends using one of the pillow-sized polyethylene bags taken from a cafeteria-type milk dispenser for this collector. Wash out the sack, roll it up to expel the air inside and attach its long, plastic "spout" to the length of rubber tubing mentioned above.

Now you're ready to mix some chicken or horse manure with water to form a slurry just liquid enough (easy on the water!) to pour into the jug. Other kinds of waste will work but, for experimental purposes, a mixture of chicken droppings and litter (30 parts carbon to one part nitrogen) will give the best results. Straight horse manure thinned to a slurry has also produced gas reasonably well in at least one test. Whatever you try, fill the jug no fuller than to within four inches of its stopper (there'll be some initial foaming and you want to keep it out of the tubing).

The most efficient generation of methane takes place at 90 to 100 degrees F and, if your slurry's temperature drops much below 80 degrees, you'll likely get no gas production at all. Keep your mini-digester warm, then, but not too warm... methane, like gasoline or any other inflammable fuel, can explode if carelessly handled. Bob McMahon places his slurry-filled container near his home furnace with the gas-collector bag about five feet away. You might, if you like, try putting your jug in a bucket of water which is warmed to the optimum working temperature with a small aquarium heating element.

Start the digester working with both valves (clamps) closed and after a couple of days, the water being "pushed" up the manometer's long arm will indicate that pressure is building in the jug. This first production, however, is carbon dioxide and will not burn.

Test the gas by holding an ignited match at the tip of the burner and opening its clamp... and repeat the test every day or so until the escaping gas does produce a flame. This may take two or more weeks, depending upon the acid conditions of the slurry in the jug but — sooner or later — the model digester should begin to produce methane.

When methane generation is under way, open the clamp to the gas collector and you're in business. The production of methane — depending on temperature — should last for from one to three months.

And what can you do with the gas? You can burn it off through the burner tip as a graphic demonstration that — by golly! — decomposed organic matter really does produce usable fuel. To increase the pressure of the escaping methane (and, nature of the resulting flame), place one or more bricks on the collector bag when you try this stunt. The manometer, of course, will faithfully indicate the pressure your gas reaches during such a demonstration.

And once you're really convinced that waste can be converted into usable fuel... can the construction of your own large scale generator be far behind?

Consumer Question-Box

By Margaret Dana

Q: Several of us are planning to buy a small boat to use this summer at our vacation place on the coast. You have written several times about safe boating and we wonder if you can suggest a booklet which will give us a dependable course in what we need to know for safe and enjoyable boating.

A: A comprehensive booklet prepared by the U.S. Coast Guard and the Department of Transportation, called "The Skipper's Course," is now available through Consumer Product Information, Pueblo, Colorado 81009 (.50). It is designed to help new or experienced boaters learn or review for themselves the basic safe boating techniques. It is actually a self-teaching course and is very well done.

Q: Can you explain the meaning of the term "Pro-Ten" used with some kinds of beef from a well-known meat processing company? It usually costs a little more and is supposed to be tenderer than regular beef.

A: The "Pro-Ten" meat tenderizing process uses the juice of the papaya fruit, injected into the cattle just before slaughtering, to act on the muscle meat quickly. The papaya is a fruit which exudes a milky juice containing a protein-digesting enzyme known as papain. It has long been used for many purposes, from treating ulcer and stomach disorders to tenderizing wild game meat. It is harmless but raises the question as to whether it is really needed as a substitute for correct cooking of less tender meats.

Q: Will you settle an argument for us, please, as to which is the best way to keep poultry in freezer storage — cooked or uncooked?

A: According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture tests show that uncooked poultry maintains desirable flavor and texture longer when frozen than does cooked poultry.

Q: Can you give some comparisons between costs of different meat servings and their nutritional values? Also, can you provide comparisons of meat substitutes like beans or eggs in providing nutrition?

A: A study made in 1972 by the Consumer and Food Economics Institute lists the best buys for a serving portion, for nutrition benefits per unit of cost as: hamburger, beef liver, chicken, turkey, and some kinds of fish, in that order of value.

To equal the protein, D-vitamins and minerals provided by the meat servings, the best alternates are eggs, dry beans, peas, peanut butter, and cheeses. These are all lower in price, of course, but to equal the nutrition of a three-ounce serving of the meats listed you would have to eat a full cup of beans, a whole can of bean soup, three eggs or 4½ tablespoons of peanut butter.

Incidentally, the Institute advises that to equal the value of the three-ounce serving of meat or poultry listed, you would have to eat 10 slices of bacon, or ½ pound of sausage, or 4½ tablespoons of peanut butter. The three-ounce serving is a third of the recommended daily allowance of protein for the average young man.

Q: I would like to know if there are any federal or state laws and standards regarding the maximum amount of noise permitted in a factory in respect to its effect on the health of workers.

A: Yes, under the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA), new studies are being made of the effect of noise on people and regulations are being developed. Some are already working, such as the rule that 85 decibels is the limit of noise levels for textile factories, among our noisiest places for production.

Q: I recently read that the food industry is using an automobile antifreeze in flavorings for foods. I know that this chemical, ethylene glycol, is poisonous, and I think this should be stopped. What can we do?

A: Automobile antifreeze, ethylene glycol, is not used in foods. What you and others have confused with this is another chemical, the name of which is similar. The name of this chemical is propylene glycol, and although closely related chemically to ethylene glycol, the propylene glycol does not have the toxic properties of the other and can be safely used as a food ingredient.

What has probably added to the confusion is that the safe chemical, propylene glycol, is sometimes used as an antifreeze in food processing operations where it would not be safe to use the ethylene glycol. But you may rest assured no automobile antifreeze is used in foods.

Helpful Hints

When you are measuring liquids, use a standard liquid measuring cup. Place on level surface and fill to mark. Check at eye level.

Top scoops of vanilla ice cream with crushed pineapple and macadamia nuts. Nice to serve after a curry supper.

Variety meats — liver, brains, kidney, heart and sweetbreads — are especially rich in food value and they add variety to family menus.

Potatoes and onions should be kept in a cool dark place with plenty of air circulation to discourage sprouting.

When you are cutting up marshmallows, use kitchen scissors and dip the blades in hot water.

When you need dry crumbs for a recipe, place crackers or dry bread in a transparent film bag or between sheets of wax paper and crush with a rolling pin.

To coat chicken or meat with seasoned flour, put the flour in a clean paper bag. Add the poultry or meat, a few pieces at a time, and shake to coat. Any remaining seasoned flour may be used in making gravy.

What to Do About That Small Eating Area

It's always a problem and a challenge to do an attractive decorating job in a very limited space and this is especially true in those tiny breakfast rooms or dinettes.

The limited space naturally limits the size of the furniture—but a slim-lined table and chairs can be comfortable and distinctive if carefully selected.

Small, bright chairs with a round table might be the answer. If space is still a problem, you might consider a small rectangular table placed against the wall.

These mini-dinette areas may be treated formally or informally. An example of the former shows that period elegance is possible even in a tiny breakfast alcove by using such things as striped wallpaper, small brass chairs and a marble-topped pedestal table.

Or, you can carry out an informal or outdoors effect with the right choice of furniture and decor.

Just remember that whether you have limited space or large areas and whether your budget is limited or not, you can furnish your home usefully and beautifully, and we can help you to do it.

Absent Hubby's Law Is Appealed

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Maybe you can settle an argument between my husband and me. We've been married for three years and it's the second marriage for both of us.

We have no children to tie us down. Hubby informed me that he was going on a four-day skiing weekend with "the boys." He also laid the law down as to what I may and may not do while he is gone.

1. I may not, under any circumstances, get on a plane and go anywhere.

2. I must be home every evening to receive his phone calls. (He says I can't call him because he's not sure exactly where this lodge is, and it's difficult to reach.)

Why should I sit home for four days and twiddle my thumbs while he is off somewhere skiing with "the boys?" It's not as tho we were 16 when we got married. We're both over 35 and he's had plenty of time to have fun with his friends.

This is going to end in a showdown to see just how obedient and well-trained he's got me. How should I handle this?

BETTY

DEAR BETTY: Tell hubby that you aren't making any promises, but if you should decide to go somewhere you'll be happy to call him if he lets you know where he can be reached. And if he calls and you aren't home he shouldn't think you dropped dead because there is still plenty of life in you!

DEAR ABBY: My husband and his partner hired a very pretty young girl to work in their office. She was there for only 60 days when they gave her a clock-radio for her birthday. Thirty days later they gave her $100 for Christmas.

Don't you think they went overboard for the length of time she was there?

Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE CRUISE
DON'T BE ALARMED, IT'S ONLY ME!

Dear Folks: Just recently, I had a burglar alarm system installed in my office and you wouldn't believe the trouble we have had trying to learn to operate it properly.

We have all, sooner or later, accidentally set it off, putting into shock everyone within earshot.

There is this alarm box, which has an ordinary looking key, which we turn to either "day" or "night," and we are never quite sure which we have it on because it looks the same either way. The box is mounted high on the wall and the side of the key is toward us.

Today, I finally got the "smarts" and came up with the idea to paint bright red nail polish on the "night" side because that is when it sets off the alarm. When we see this red side of the key toward us, we had better not open any doors until we switch it to "day." If we want to keep peace in the neighborhood, and our own sanity, this is an absolute must.

Heloise

Dear Heloise: We are all given the ingredients of happiness, but the mixing is up to us.

Mrs. Rosa Roberts

Dear Heloise: Did you ever try putting orange juice on cereal?

I found myself without milk one morning when I just felt like having cereal, so instead of drinking my orange juice, I poured it on the cereal and it was real, real good.

M. May

The next morning after reading your letter, I put orange juice on my breakfast oatmeal and I just love it!

Heloise

Dear Heloise: I live in an apartment and my method for laundering my short drip dry curtains works so well for me, that I wanted to share it with you.

I wash them in the bathtub and hang them, folded on a skirt hanger which holds the curtains firmly while they drip dry over the tub.

Dear Heloise: The curiosity of my 7-month-old son taught me a very handy lesson.

One day his wanderings took him into the bathroom where he proceeded to empty the roll of toilet tissue. As I headed for the trash basket with the remains of his discovery, it occurred to me I could salvage it.

I tore the tissue into two-square pieces. Then I placed them in an empty facial tissue box with a large opening in the side and top and placed this on baby's changing table.

When this supply was gone, I took a new roll of toilet tissue and tore it up in the same manner.

Makes a much quicker job of that daily "chore."

Berniece Mitchell

Dear Heloise: An ordinary hairpin (not a bobby-pin) certainly does the job when sewing and you come to a dart or cross-seam which always seems to turn the wrong way.

Simply put both tongs down on the seam and sew between the sides of the hairpin.

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST

Dear Mrs. Post: Our only son has been married to a lovely girl for almost a year. We love her as if she were our own daughter. But she has never called us Mom or Dad, yet. We are embarrassed to ask her to do so. We feel calling us Mom and Dad should come naturally — not because we suggest it.

What do you think it means when our daughter-in-law avoids calling us Mom and Dad?

MRS. J. CARLSON

Dear Mrs. Carlson:

The only thing it means is that your daughter-in-law is a little embarrassed or shy herself. It is you, as the older couple, who should make your wishes clear. She is probably worrying, feeling that you do not wish to be called Mom and Dad, since you have given her no hint. If you don't wish to bring it up through your son, go directly to her by saying simply, "Now that you have been married a while and we know each other so well, we would love to have you call us Mom and Dad if you would like to, or another nickname if you would prefer it."

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband and I are separating, with an ultimate divorce, and my three-year-old daughter and I will leave South America to live in my home town in the States.

Since we have lived abroad in the Foreign Service for the last twelve years, naturally all our friends are scattered around the world and we keep in touch with them by mail, usually only at Christmas. My question is this: How do I inform them of the split and my new address? I don't want to write fifty short notes explaining, nor do I wish to wait and write fifty short paragraphs on next year's Christmas cards. Shall I send only a change-of-address card, or is there some more genteel way of announcing the fact?

MRS. S. J.

Dear Mrs. S. J.: A change-of-address card is the best solution. Although you do not want to write notes or go into lengthy explanations at this time, I would suggest that you add a line to some of your special friends, saying "Jim and I, unfortunately, are separated. Please drop me a line at my new address" or some similar personal touch.

Dear Mrs. Post: My parents are divorced and both remarried. I live with my mother and stepfather, but my father and stepmother are sharing my wedding reception expenses with my mother and stepfather. Could you please give me an example of how the wedding invitations should read?

Also, should I have a picture taken of my groom and me with my mother and father without my step-parents? Would I be putting my mother and father on the spot doing this?

MELONIE

Dear Melonie: When divorced parents share the wedding expenses and are therefore both in the position of "Hosts," the invitation should come from both, with the mother's name first: "Mr. and Mrs. John Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wood request the honour of your presence at the marriage of Nancy Wood to . . . etc."

It would be putting your mother and father "on the spot" to have pictures of them without your step-parents. Have separate pictures taken with each parent and step-parent, and then, since they all appear to be friendly, you might have one taken with both couples.

About Ladies' Magazines

If you want to know what it cost to visit the Chicago World's Fair in 1893, or what kind of advice on life they gave to young girls before the turn of the century, or just about any other fact of life from those bygone days, you should keep your eyes open for popular ladies' magazines of the day. In fact, their contents give such a complete picture of earlier times they can be fascinating reading even for the casual browser.

The June 1893 copy of the Ladies' Home Journal published by the Curtis Publishing Company of Philadelphia, for example, will give you an idea of the breadth of subject matter carried by such magazines of that period. The Empress of Germany, Augusta Victoria, was the subject of a lengthy illustrated article. There was an installment of a continued story by William Howells, an article on roses, which was also the subject of the cover picture, and one on the art of playing tennis. Three pages were devoted to needlework, lacemaking and elaborate embroidery patterns, and three more to the words and music of William Spencer's "A Dream of Love."

There were tips on planning a home wedding and travelling on an overnight train. Today's traveler would wince at the advice on packing a travel satchel: button and glove hooks, penknife, writing necessities, telegraph blanks, sewing kits, whisk, several spare veils and a host of other "necessities."

For readers planning to visit the Chicago World's Fair the magazine suggested setting aside about $19 for a 10-day trip.

This would cover admission, tickets to all side shows and concessions, rides on the sliding railroad and fares to and from the heart of the city.

Fashions were featured, such as a page of hats and several others in travelling suits and clothes, advice on remodeling last year's gowns; there was a page of "sketching from nature"; an illustrated article on drapery for the back of an upright piano, household hints for summer; advice on glass and cutlery care; side-talks to girls; home dressmaking; and helpful floral hints.

The advertisements prove to be just as intriguing as the articles, offering such quaint items as folding baths, cold-handled stove-lid lifters, mantel beds, feather-bone corsets and gold dust washing powder, to mention just a few.

Another magazine from earlier days that is much sought after by collectors is Godey's Lady's Book, a high-toned home publication started in Philadelphia in 1830 by Louis A. Godey, featuring such things as fashions, paper dolls, poems and stories, and other items of family interest. Magazines from the past century will sometimes appear for sale in antique shops or at country auctions, or in old cellar and attic collections. Don't pass them by. For while great grandma's life may have been different, it was obviously far from dull.

A FORUM ABOUT MATURE WOMEN

Pampered Husband
Dear Margaret Brookfield:

I'm 40 and the mother of five. I know I don't pamper my husband as much as I should. I blame this on my complete ignorance of sex education from my younger life. (The truth is, Masters and Johnson scare me to death.) It's certainly difficult to overcome this feeling, even though my husband and I are so devoted to each other.

husband as well. Considering your many responsibilities, don't you think he should be pampering you?

Irregular and Embarrassed

Dear Margaret Brookfield:

I'm 48 and have never had any signs of the change. But recently I've become very irregular in my periods and am not sure what this means. I don't have any other symptoms and am too embarrassed to ask my doctor about it.

M.S.

Dear L.B.:

Although the research efforts of Dr. William Masters and Virginia Johnson were designed to help people overcome their sexual hangups, some of their articles on the subject have had a different effect. They've made many men and women feel sexually inadequate and or dissatisfied with their mates. And having such a negative viewpoint is one of the best ways to ruin one's sex life. Why not count your blessings instead? Mutual devotion in marriage is a rare and valuable commodity. You talk about raising five kids and trying to pamper your

Dear M.S.:

Since you're in the right age group, the irregularity of your periods might indicate you're going into the menopause. Doctors see women with such symptoms every day. After a checkup, the physician might find that one woman has a hormone deficiency requiring estrogen replacement, while another requires another form of treatment and a third perhaps needs no treatment at all. In any case, this is the kind of condition a woman should never ignore. So why not pick up the phone and call your doctor for an appointment?

IMPROVIZATIONS: Kingston area contestants for the Miss Black Teen-Age America Contest are Miss Crystal Byrd and Miss Desiree Sims — Our little Mena happily attending the Fair Street Church Nursery School. — Lester Hatcher has informed us that there will be a new Youth group formed for the N.A.A.C.P. This group will be geared to programs organized by, and implemented by the young people, with Mr. Hatcher as coordinator. The young people of the Kingston area are invited to come out to the first meeting March 28 at 7:30 p.m. at Riverview Baptist Church Hall. Refreshments will be served. Don't form any opinions about the new organization — go to the meeting and check it out. — If you haven't been down to the Score Store on Abel Street, go down and support this group. — We hear, through the grapevine, that Brother David Mpongo is writing a book, and of all things, about mathematics. — Did you read Arthur Eve of Buffalo? Well, he stopped the show in Albany when the Assembly adjourned rather than listen to his cries for help with the school crisis in Buffalo; he got what he wanted.

JUST THINKING: Why is it that now, when we need solidarity the most, some of our brothers feel it is necessary to "rip-off" their own folks? It seems to me that the dumbest person would realize that when you steal from your own, you steal from yourself? Then, too, I wonder why the rest of us sit back and allow this to happen to our neighbors and friends, and do nothing about it? If we don't look out for ourselves, no one else will, and it is high time we stopped looking for "the man" to do our work for us. Other communities, all over the country, are forming ideas to protect themselves and their homes from thieves and drug users and the "Pusher scum"; maybe we had better start thinking the same way.

BLACK HISTORY NOTES: Did you know that the first black child born in the Anglo-American Colony was born March 19, 1619? and the event took place in Jamestown, Va. — Canada gave the vote to blacks in 1837. — Jack Johnson, the first black to win the world heavyweight title, was born March 31, 1871. — Justice William Hastie was confirmed as the first black Federal Judge in the U.S. March 26, 1937; he served in the Virgin Islands.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY: It takes single-mindedness to overcome despair.

PETTY OFFICER MAYONE (L), CO-WORKER

For Robert Mayone ... Intrepid Honors

NEW YORK — Robert Mayone, a Saugerties High School graduate of 1965, has drawn lavish praise upon his selection as December Petty Officer of the Month while aboard the USS Intrepid aircraft carrier.

Mayone, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Mayone of Ebel's Court, Glasco, was chosen for the award as a result of his outstanding devotion to duty, superior performance and dedication to his fellow shipmates, and Intrepid and the U.S. Navy.

These were the words of R. H. Barker, commanding officer of the Intrepid presently on deployment in the Mediterranean.

Of course, with the award, Mayone drew special privileges including No. 1 man in line for pay, means and liberty. Also, elimination from shipboard watch bill and duty section listing. And to top it off, a 96-hour special liberty on land.

All of this was easy to take for the Mayone who has served two years and eight months of his four-year tour with the Navy.

But even more palatable for Mayone, a 1970 graduate from Siena College, was the lavish praise coming from Lt. (jg.) Steven W. Phillips, public affairs officer aboard the Intrepid.

Lt. Stevens, writing aboard the carrier, had these things to say about Petty Officer Mayone:

"Bob Mayone isn't an imposing person. He just sits in front of you with that small college grin of his, and smiles warmly. His features are finely cut with a healthy athletic look."

"The Saugerties, N. Y. native has a charisma all his own — a confident air that says he knows what he can do. And what he does, he does well. Well enough to be named Petty Officer of the Month.

"Bob is a 25-year-old third class petty officer, the first rung on the petty officer ladder, 'a glorified seaman' as he puts it. But in ability, he is a valued right arm to his superiors, capable of functioning well under pressure."

"While his officer supervisor was on leave, Personnel man Mayone took over complete supervision of his office's eight-man staff. Meanwhile first few weeks of a cruise are the most hectic and physically demanding, yet Mayone handled all the new transfers and paperwork with a veteran's expertise."

"Originally a communications yeoman at Quonset, R. I., he suddenly saw his rate abolished. He was converted to yeoman and finally to personnelman aboard the Intrepid where he's found his niche," Lt. Stevens said.

And Mayone reflects: "Being on the Intrepid, I've seen a lot of the world. I've been to places that only six months ago I thought I would never see — the Mediterranean, and all the North Atlantic ports."

He continues, "The Navy makes you more independent. I'm middle class and have had it pretty easy. But the Navy teaches you to function under adversity."

"A lot of people think that when they get back into civilian life, it's all going to be different, you'll be able to do anything you like," Mayone relates. "But business executives work long hours and rarely have weekends off. Life isn't going to be easy on the outside. It's no vacation," he concluded.

Lt. Stevens said: "Bob Mayone is a man with potential, and the Navy recognizes this. He knows what he wants to do and where he's going." And the lieutenant concluded "Bob Mayone is making it."

Pan Am Hop To the Exotic

NEW YORK — Tourists who have a penchant for the exotic and the inexpensive should make a beeline for the Philippines — the sultry island republic on the fringes of the Asiatic mainland.

And Pan American World Airways makes it quite easy to do this. Manila is only 16 hours flying time from the West Coast via Pan Am's 747 superjets with roundtrip air rates as low as $853.

Manila, a city replete with 400 years of dramatic history, is the gateway where east really does meet west. Jeepneys — a multi-colored baby bus converted from the wartime jeep — proclaim the city's oriental ancestry, while modern hotels

Youth in the News

Spring semesters filled with activities and echoes of fall semester honors are highlighted in Youth in the News this week.

Debra Ann Denksenoh, a junior at the University of Rochester, is spending the spring semester in Washington, D.C., as a full time intern to Congressman Bob Eckhardt of Houston, Tex. The off-campus program is an official credit carrying semester with the university. Students work directly with Senators or Congressmen and their staffs, getting experience in the legislative process of government.

Debbie who is majoring in Environmental Studies is enthusiastic about the program as it will give her the opportunity to follow environmental and consumer legislation.

A 1970 honor graduate of Rondout Valley High School, she has followed her interest in environment from Earth Day observances there through the University of Rochester courses and extra curricular activities. A consistent dean's list student, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Denksenoh of Accord.

Jacqueline A. Quick, daughter of Mrs. Luwilda Quick of 8

Highland Avenue, Saugerties, is one of 18 Hartwick College students who are spending the spring term in France. A junior at Hartwick, she is a French major.

While in France the students will live with French families at Aix-en-Provence near Nice. They will study at the local university there and will have daily contact with French students of their own age.

Another Kingston area student at Hartwick had a spring tour of a different nature. Ronald V. Amato, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Amato of Box 237, Glasco is one of 42 members of the Hartwick College choir who toured Florida with the College Choir. He is a junior music major.

It is the first time the Hartwick choir had presented concerts in the Sunshine State. During the nine day stint, they sang at churches and schools on both Atlantic and Gulf coasts. Returning to the Oneonta campus last Monday they presented a welcome home concert the following evening for classmates and community.

It was on stage for Don Rotkopf of Ellenville this past week also. A junior communications major at Chapman College, Orange, Calif., Rotkopf appeared as Sam the 100 Per Cent American Dog in the college's production of Hear the Sound of My Feet Walking Drown the Sound of My Voice Talking. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rotkopf, 9 Hickory Street, Ellenville.

The play was presented in conjunction with another one-act satire. The four in the round performances were staged at the college's Memorial Hall Auditorium.

Dean's list honors continue to be announced by colleges around the country.

Five Ulster County students attending St. Lawrence University were cited for academic achievement during the fall semester at the Canton campus. They are Holly N. Hurd, Hurds Road, Clintondale; Wesley D. Clark Jr., 190 Hasbrouck Avenue, Port Ewen; Daniel W. Lamb, 35 Market Street, Saugerties; Barbara A. Bushnell of Winfield Corners and Kathleen K. Schoonmaker, Route 1, both of Stage Ridge.

Five is the magic number for Ulster County students named to the dean's list at Hartwick College too. They are Dixie R. Denman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Lee Denman of Box 165, Shokan; Diane E. Horvath, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Horvath of RD 1, Box 456, West Hurley; Barry Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren G. Kennedy of 64 Jenkintown Road, New Paltz; Karlyn E. Knaust, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Karl Knaust of Box 178, Saugerties and Marianne G. Ossmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dirk Ossmer of Box 74, Eddyville.

Eleven Kingston area residents have been named to the Dean's List of State University College at Oneonta for the fall semester of the 1972-73 school year, according to Dr. Carey Brush, vice president of the college.

Included are: Mary Rose Argulewicz, Nissen Court, West Hurley; Lorraine Carlson, 16 Van De Bogart Road, Woodstock; Marilyn Hanson, Uptown PO, Kingston; Robert Kirkpatrick, 1983 Decker Street, Kingston.

Virginia King, RD 7, Kingston; Fara Mason, Society of Brothers, Rifton; Gregory Myers, 32 South Road, Mt. Marion; Michael Pappas, Society of Brothers, Rifton; Virginia Peller, 52 Janet Street, Kingston.

Kenneth Utley, 92 Hurley Avenue, Kingston and Stephen Wiser, Society of Brothers, Rifton.

RPI AWARD—Mr. and Mrs. Harold Holly (L) of Stone Ridge look on as their son, Douglas (C), an Ulster County Community College engineering science student, receives an engineering science medal from John S. Brandon (R), an advanced standing admissions officer at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy. Also looking on is Dr. George B. Erbsstein, UCCC president. RPI awarded the medals to graduates from 10 community colleges this year. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

Area College Acceptances

Thoughts of fall are cropping up even though that spring corner was just rounded.

Area high school students are receiving notification of college acceptances for the fall semester at a goodly rate.

Six seniors at Ulster Academy have received notification of acceptances for fall studies. They include Jeff Christensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Christensen of Hurley to the University of Pittsburgh at Titusville and Franklin Pierce in Rindge, N. H.; Barbara Kamen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morton Kamen of Kingston, to Franklin Pierce College; Jody Keefe, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Keefe of Woodstock to Vassar College, Poughkeepsie.

Also, Matthew Leaycraft, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Leaycraft of Woodstock to Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy; Gordon MacLeod, son of Mr. and Mrs. Neil MacLeod of Woodstock to Franklin Pierce and Mike Reppert, son of Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Reppert of Woodstock to Franklin Pierce.

Joseph John DeGasperis, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. DeGasperis of Box 26, Kingston has been accepted and has indicated his intention of attending Ursinus College, Collegeville, Pa., in September. He is a senior at Kingston High School and plans to major in biology at Ursinus.

Joanne Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rose of Southfield Street, Kingston, has been accepted at Centenary College for Women, Hackettstown, N. J., for September, 1973. A senior at Kingston High School she plans to enroll in the interior design program.

Jeffrey Hamsher of RFD 7, Hillside Drive, Kingston has been accepted for September admission at State University Agricultural and Technical College, Delhi. He will study in the Hotel, Restaurant and Food Services Management Division. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hamsher, he is a senior at Kingston High School.

Jon Sumner, son of Dr. and Mrs. Gerald Sumner of 56 Holiday Lane, Kingston has been accepted at Berklee College of Music, Boston for September entrance.

His curriculum will include courses in arranging, composition, improvisation, solo and orchestral performance as well as courses in the humanities. Because of Jon's musical and academic achievements, the Berklee Board of Admissions extended him early acceptance.

Indians Seeking Recruits

KINGSTON—The Kingston Indians Drum and Bugle Corps would like to expand its color guard section, therefore is seeking girls between the ages of 14 and 20 for membership.

While those with marching and twirling experience would have an advantage, inexperienced applicants willing to work hard would still have an excellent chance to make the line for this coming season. However, any young women that might be interested in joining the Corps should do so as soon as possible in order to be ready for the start of the competition season.

The Indians will debut their new field show at the 5th Annual Pow Wow Preview to be held at Dietz Stadium on the evening of May 27.

Any experienced boys or girls will field the largest bugle section of their history. Anyone interested in joining between 6:30 and 9:30 p.m. at the George Washington School. Applicants from any community college are welcome, and should ask for Director Ralph Shapiro.

RV Exchange Concerts

KYSERIKE Boosters and Choir Parents are arranging special post-concert refreshments, and will also sponsor a pre-concert dinner for the Oneida chaperones and directors in the Home Economics department. These groups will meet with president, Mrs. Pat Doyle March 26 at the high school, to finalize plans.

One hundred and ten students participated. They joined their Oneida counterparts in a concert Saturday evening, spent the night, and will return to Rondout today. Chaperones for the trip are Mrs. Barbara Brooks, Mrs. Patricia Panacione, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Herrington, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Lottridge, and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Zegel.

Sunday, April 8, the Oneida musicians will visit Rondout, and a joint concert will be presented in the high school auditorium at 8 p.m. that evening. Rondout's Band

The Oneida contingent will spend Sunday night in the Rondout Valley and return to their school Monday, April 9. Any persons in the area who would be willing to house members of the Oneida band and chorus overnight may call either Herrington or Mrs. Lottridge at the high school.

TEEN SCENE: On Job Hunting

If you're planning on getting a job this summer, lotsa luck. It will be roughly (very roughly) equivalent to looking for a four-leaf clover growing out of the side of the Empire State Building. A challenge, one might say. Get an early start on your looking and do all you can to stack the odds in your favor.

The New York State Employment Service has an informative booklet called "Why Young People Fail to Get and Hold Jobs," which must have provided someone with a few weeks' work preparing it. While its approach leaves something to be desired, it does rather graphically describe 15 ways that many teenagers — and older people too — bum up their chances for a job. If you mean to do it, cool, but it's a crummy way to make money.

Appearance rates first — You already know the old lecture about not showing up for a job interview looking like a Shetland sheep dog, wearing clothes that will stand without you, cracking gum, and barefoot. Some companies are a lot straighter than others. If you want to wear casual clothes and keep your hairstyle, don't apply at places that are uptight about the externals.

Attitude and Behavior — What you think is humor, your boss may take as sarcasm or insolence. A job is not the place to debate the finer points of the counter-culture. Or to engage in horseplay, or to appropriate company property. Oddly enough, a job is a place to go to work, and no employer will appreciate variations on the theme.

Ignorance of Labor Market Facts — For instance, right now, there are a dozen applicants for every job. If you are too picky about the sort of job you will take, you are likely to wind up with none at all.

Sensitivity About a Physical Defect — Employers are less concerned with a prospective employee's physical defects than they are about how the employee has learned to adjust to it. A birthmark, leg brace, crossed eye, or skin problem is probably more of a worry to the applicant than to the interviewer. If the applicant feels unsure of his or her ability to cope with the condition, this, and not the defect, will adversely affect the interview.

Unrealistic Wage Demands — Most employers have a very clear-cut idea of what salary they are willing to pay for a certain job, and the pay rate for the same job is not likely to vary too much from one employer to another. If you want to earn more, you have to offer more specialized skills. Obviously, typists earn more than file clerks, for example.

Failure to Notify Employer of Absence — If you can take off from a job without inconveniencing your employer, maybe he doesn't need you to work for him — try not to let him find out about it. Reliability is one of the biggest responsibilities of an employee. If you really CAN'T get in, at least call and apologize and explain.

Insufficient Training — Just wanting to be a stenographer or mechanic is not enough to qualify you for the job. Be able to show specific training and experience in any job you seek.

Insistence On Own Concept of Job — Every boss has his own ways of doing things. If they differ from how you learned to do the job, or how you think it ought to be done, keep your teeth firmly pressed together. He's hiring you, not the other way around.

Balking At Entry Requirements — On many jobs, new employees are automatically started in a minor job, and then, if their work is satisfactory, they are promoted to a position their training and experience qualify them for. Don't try to start up a ladder at the middle.

Applying For Job With Friend or Relative — Unless you're a Siamese twin, the personnel office is the wrong place to demonstrate togetherness.

Inability To Get Along With Others — Kindness, tact, humor, and empathy are requirements for almost any job — as is the ability to get along with those who may lack them.

Unsuitability For Job — We can't all do everything well. If you have 10 thumbs on your hands, don't hope to be a typist. If you failed math two years running, forget bookkeeping. No amount of training can compensate for an initial dislike for a job.

Unreliable Reputation — There is something called a work record. If last summer, you lasted a week each at four jobs, don't be surprised if you get to take a vacation this summer.

No Sense of Responsibility — Doing any job also necessitates being invariably on time, doing your assigned duties without being reminded day after day, using care with the boss's tools and machines, and not passing the buck if you make a mistake.

Even doing everything right won't guarantee you a job this summer, but at least it gives you an edge. If you find an extra job, share it with a friend. Keep America green — earn money!

Simplicity the Key For Today's Home

By JACK McLENEY

PROVIDENCE, R.I. A basic rule of economical construction is simplicity of design. Gables and gingerbread add considerably to building cost and could very well unbalance the looks of the house and reduce the appeal. Today's feature, called "The Fieldcrest" is a simple three-bedroom rectangular ranch dwelling. There are no unnecessary frills or geegaws to increase the owner's financial capacity to build the house. The result, as shown in the illustration and floor plan, is a handsome place in which to live.

The basic house occupies 1,464 square feet of living space, with outside dimensions of 48 feet x 30 feet 6 inches. Overall length, including breezeway and garage, amounts to 72 feet.

"The Fieldcrest" design has three bedrooms and a full bath oriented to the rear of the house. A big U-shape kitchen, formal dining room, and an extra large living room take in the entire front of the house. The closed breezeway at the side can easily be turned into a large family room, if desired, and the one-car garage could also be revised for two cars. The basement staircase is ideally located to allow access from the kitchen, and a small lavatory off this same area completes the picture of this efficient and economical ranch type dwelling.

Complete building blueprints are available at moderate cost by using the accompanying coupon.

The Care of Tools . . . Best Way to Safety

By MR. FIX

People seldom get cut on sharp tools. It's the dull tools that are hazardous. And no hammer ever smashed a thumb by itself. It took some inept handling to cause the injury.

There's a right way and a wrong way to use every tool. Tools not in good condition are a hazard. Here are suggestions for handling the most common tools in the safest way possible.

Screwdrivers — There's no universal size. You need several sizes. Pick a screwdriver that fits the particular job. The blade tip should fit squarely in the screw slot so that it is seated against sides and bottom. A loose fit chews up the slot. A tight fit causes the blade to slip.

You will hurt yourself and eventually ruin the screwdriver if you try to use it for a chisel or a crowbar. Never hold work in one hand, screwdriver in the other. Eventually you will slip and the result can be a severe puncture wound.

Saws — A sharp saw cuts through the material. A dull one slips off, binds once you start cutting and makes an easy job difficult. Support large pieces of lumber on sawhorses. When using a hacksaw, secure the metal you are cutting in a vise. Power saw blades should be replaced when dull.

Hammers — When you start a nail, hold it between thumb and forefinger near its head, never the point. Hit the nail with full force. Hitting the nail at an angle will cause the hammer to slip off the nail. Replace cracked or damaged hammer handles. Make certain heads are tight on the handles. Keep handle smooth and free of splinters. Hammer heads that are nicked or dented should be replaced.

Cutting tools — Chisels, knives, shears, other cutting tools should be kept sharp. They work better, are less likely to slip. Sharpening stones, kitchen sharpening gadgets will all help. A professional now and then is good. Keep surfaces lightly coated with oil since rust has a dulling effect.

Power tools — These have their own set of hazards. Electrical tools should be grounded or should be of the fully insulated variety. Avoid working on wet surfaces.

Power saws should never be used without a guard over the blade. Long neckties, loose sleeves are a hazard around this and most other tools.

Keep the work area clean. Leave plenty of room around a power tool so that you can maneuver.

Your workshop should be well lighted.

Good Paint For That Job

By BARBARA A. CURRY
(Eighth in a Series.)

(From "Okay, I'll Do It Myself..." by Barbara A. Curry. Copyright (c) 1971 by Barbara A. Curry. Reprinted by permission of Random House, Inc.)

There are several different kinds of paint which we'll dabble in, but there's only one hard-and-fast rule: Don't buy cheap paint. Good paint goes on easier, looks better, wears better, cleans better, everything better.

At the paint store or hardware store, you'll find two basic types of paint. The two are water-soluble (latex and acrylic) and solvent-soluble (oil and alkyd). Although it may be unfair, alkyd isn't my choice. I don't think it flows as well or covers as easily as oil paint, yet you still have to use turpentine or a special solvent with it as a thinner and for cleaning up.

For doing it yourself the advantages of water-soluble paint are numerous: little, if any, smell; it dries quickly, no lap or brush marks; spatter can be wiped up with a damp cloth; brushes or rollers as well as yourself clean up with soap and water.

When you buy your paint, have the store put it in their shimmmy machine. This mechanical stirring mixes paint well and saves you time and mess. Otherwise, stand the can on its head a day ahead to get the heavy sediment moving.

Applicators. Of the five possibilities — bristle brush, polyfoam brush, pad, roller and spray — which is the best to get your job done? Much of the choice depends on what you're going to paint. Generally the slowest is the regular brush or the polyfoam version, the simplest the pad, the fastest the roller, the trickiest the spray. Let's compare.

Bristle Brushes. As might be expected, good quality will make for a better end result.

It pretty much follows that "natural" brushes work best with "natural" oil-based paints. The synthetic brush coordinates well with water-soluble. The wide, thin, flat brush, works well with paint remover and thinner like oil stains, shellac and protective clear plastic coverings over other finishes.

Wide thick brushes are for larger surfaces and areas.

These brushes hold a fair amount of paint and put it not too delicately where you aim.

The narrower, fat brush is for moldings, window and door details, narrow spots and places where you want control and accuracy.

You'll do a neat and smooth job all the way if you keep a couple of thoughts rolling around in your head. Don't drown the brush in paint. Dip it about one-third of the length of the bristles. Get rid of the excess by slapping, or dragging against the inside of the paint container, whichever comes naturally. Use light, smooth strokes, and let the paint flow on.

Polyfoam Brushes. When is a paint brush not a brush? When it's one of the relatively new polyurethane foam brushes. They're available in varying widths and designed to throw away. You don't get brush marks, because there aren't any bristles. But for obvious reasons, it acts as a single unit without the flexibility of the individual bristles, which helps you paint in corners and smoothly along edges.

Pads. The pad is a cross between a brush and a roller. The texture and consistency of the actual pad is like a soft crew cut with thick foam backing that gives it enough resilience to press in and cover uneven surfaces. You more or less "pull" paint on. This gismo is not as fast or quite as smooth as a roller, but it doesn't tend to splatter as much.

Rollers. You can buy rollers in various lengths and surfaces. The surfaces range from hard and short like mohair to a soft, fleecy deep lamb's wool. Unlike a brush, it can be "rolled" in all directions, up, down, back and forth, diagonally, whichever or all to give the best coverage. There are two drawbacks to a roller. The first is that it tends to spatter teensie, teensie freckles of paint around. The other is the roller's inability to get next to a corner, a ceiling line or in small areas.

Spray. Spray paint is unruly for two reasons: its drift and speed. The drift can be an problem unless you have, or can make, a windless area or one where it doesn't matter where the paint lands. Spread newspapers or a paint cloth at least five feet in all directions. Open any windows that don't directly affect the spray.

APPLICATORS (FOR PAINT)

ALL-AMERICA—Carefree geraniums are a recently introduced race of hybrid geraniums which gardeners can grow from seed. These "All-America Winners" make strong, rapid growth; and, unlike other geraniums, they come true to color.

Carefree Geraniums

"Carefree" — a welcome word for home gardeners — is also the name for a new race of geraniums of which three different colors have won All-America Selections awards: two silver medals and one bronze medal.

What makes these geraniums carefree? First their freedom from the usual geranium diseases. Because they are grown from seeds rather than from cuttings, they do not inherit troubles from the parent plant.

Next, their strong and rapid growth. You never saw geraniums grow so fast! These characteristics are results of their hybrid parentage.

Third, their self-branching habit. As they grow they produce numerous side branches without any help.

Geraniums seeds are very fine. Scatter them over the surface of a flower pot filled with one-third sand, one-third granulated peat moss and one-third good garden soil, then sprinkle over them a thin layer of sand to cover.

Water after planting and as often as is needed by setting the planted pot in a container of water and allowing the moisture to permeate to the soil surface.

The pot should be covered with a sheet of glass or popped into a plastic bag and set in a shady place in a 60 degree temperature until seeds sprout. After that, remove glass or plastic.

As soon as seedlings are large enough to handle plant each in a two-inch pot in a mixture of half granulated peat moss and half good garden soil. Shift to larger pots as needed.

happy and productive day. Tone down that explosive temper. Show that you have poise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Visit an adviser who can help you with a situation that is very puzzling to you at this time. Follow your intuition for best results. Do something of a social nature tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Good friends are your best bet today, since you are not thinking as clearly as usual. A personal wish you have is not good for you, so forget it. Avoid getting into an argument.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A bigwig can be very helpful and give the support you need at this time. Read your newspaper well for news that is of great importance to you. Relax at home tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A new idea can make this a most happy day for you after you take care of regular routines. You can benefit much from this. A friend will bring you news of great interest to you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Think of a way to handle affairs with people who owe you money. Avoid an argument with male who is in a scrappy mood right now. Keep silent and all will be fine. Be understanding.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those charming young people who will make careful plans but something always comes up to put a crimp in them. Teach to handle all unexpected eventualities wisely. Making any necessary changes will be easy. Give as fine an education as you can afford. Sports are a must here.

MONDAY, MARCH 26, 1973

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Only through some new interests being investigated by you are you now able to turn some otherwise questionable influences to your advantage and be able to put your affairs on a more secure foundation. Look into every single factor facing you and make it work efficiently by new, modern methods.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Do whatever will improve your reputation in the world of business, career, social life. Keep on the alert so you can avoid trouble. Show you are cheerful.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Some new idea is yours that helps you make up your mind about something important, so use it quickly. More study on future plans is wise, then you do not run into some snag later. The social is fine in p.m.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Begin the new week wisely by handling some vital responsibility well you have been postponing unwisely. Use your intuitive faculties to get yourself out of difficulties you have gotten yourself into.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A partner is suspicious of you, so prove yourself and gain the cooperation you want and need. A situation arises that will help you relieve pressures that are making you unhappy. Think.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get busy at duties since they are more important than you think, and are soon behind you. Do whatever will make you a more dynamic person. Work in a most conscientious fashion.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Being charming with others relieves some difficult situation now, whereas a glum expression only makes things worse. Plan time for using some fine talent you possess. Steer clear of one who nags.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A wise family tie can give you the advice you need to handle that difficult matter intelligently. Follow it and get right results. Show others you are in the mood to cooperate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Just when you think you are getting ahead at a very slow speed, some word you receive or item in the paper can change all this. Count your money when you shop or handle it for any other purpose. Care is the keynote.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Keep steady or you can lose out where it counts the most. Listen to what bankers and government people have to suggest. Take some time for that attachment you like so much, but don't be maudlin.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Instead of asking others for advice, be sure to use your own judgment and come out the winning. Take the right treatments that bring out your particular charm. Do something nice for one who has done you many favors.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Your intuitive faculties can give you answers to many puzzling situations in your life. If you get into any difficulty, there is a powerful person you know who comes to your aid immediately.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A good pal makes fine suggestions that can be most helpful to you so listen with care and appreciation. Avoid the social today since it could mean arguments and other unpleasantness. Do some studying that can be most enlightening.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those interesting young people who early in life thinks it is necessary to fight and stir up the very winds in order to get ahead, so teach early to be philosophical, patient and understanding, and then this life becomes a most successful one instead of a truly sad one. There is much ability at organizing here and your youngster would do well in big business, government, community work, etc.

Investment Commodity

Coins Hedge Against Inflation

By MORT REED

Not generally known as a champion of numismatic investments, financial columnist Sylvia Porter nevertheless recently decided to tell it like it is. Coins are the best hedge against inflation.

According to Miss Porter's column, numismatic coins grew 225 per cent in value during 1972. Apparently having done her homework well, she quotes Franz Pick, the international currency expert, observing that only old firearms, which appreciated 175 per cent during the year, were even close to the gains Mr. Pick listed for numismatic investments.

Her article was not so much an endorsement of coins or firearms as an investment commodity as it was criticism of the more conventional forms of investment for failing to do more than merely keep pace with the economic situation. She qualified this further by noting that the annual rate of inflation is running from 3.5 to 4 per cent as against regular savings methods returning only 4.5 to 6 per cent after taxes.

Gold Coin Investments

It is interesting to note that while all coins do not necessarily enjoy a numismatic status, some, particularly gold coins, are ideal investment commodities in their own right. These pieces are referred to as common-date varieties issued in excessive quantities that deprives them of a rare or scarce classification. Many $20 gold double-eagles fall into that category.

The investment value of a gold coin is determined by the amount of pure gold in its alloyed composition. A $20 gold piece for example, is composed of 900 parts of pure gold alloyed with 100 parts of pure copper. A 90 per cent-10 per cent ratio.

When double-eagles were issued for circulation, gold was valued at $20.67 an ounce. With a gross weight of 516 grains it follows that 90 per cent would equal 464.4 grains or .9675 multiplied by $20.67 making the $20 gold piece worth exactly the face value noted on the reverse. But in 1934 its value was increased by almost 70 per cent when the United States government raised the price of an ounce of gold from $20.67 to $35, making the $20 gold coin worth $33.86.

At the New York closing price on Feb. 14, 1973 of $72.60 per ounce, the same coin would now be worth $70.24 on the world gold market. And it is conceivable that this price could double within the next five years if the present world market attitude continues as it has been doing over the past three years. After all, the same investment experts who predicted the $70 figure are now convinced that $175 per ounce by 1980 is not at all unlikely.

One word of advice. While all this is perfectly honest and above-board, I strongly advise against buying or selling gold coins for any reason, unless the dealers or investment firms involved in the transaction are known for their expertise and integrity.

Bridge

Declarer's Rebid Ill Chosen

By Oswald and James Jacoby

The professor had hardly walked into the club when he was collared by the unlucky expert.

"Look what the student just did to me," he stammered. "Wasn't my five heart bid a crystal clear order for him to pass if he couldn't win the first or second club lead?"

The professor studied the hand carefully and replied, "Yes. Your meaning would be crystal clear to an expert. The student will be an expert some day but he isn't as yet. Obviously, he didn't understand your bid since he went to five spades over it."

The professor didn't go any further, but we want to discuss the unlucky expert's bids at greater length. To start with, we don't like his three-club bid at all. North had bid spades, a suit higher than hearts, and South's three-club cue bid might well have produced a four spade call by North.

Of course, South could still have corrected to five hearts but five hearts is not a good contract.

In the actual play five hearts did make because when West who started proceedings, by cashing his two high clubs, continued the suit, East was unable to overruff dummy's eight-ace.

A Coin Investors Guide

A more in-depth study of the practicability of coins as an investment commodity will be found in my new book, "COINS: Investors and Collectors Guide," due to be released in May of this year. It deals in length with three popular forms of coin collecting and investments.

Message of Mysticism Told

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Mystical experience is real and is available to all who truly seek it.

That assurance comes from Methodism's woman theologian, Georgia Harkness. In her new book, "Mysticism—Its Meaning and Message" (Abingdon), she says the current upsurge of popular interest in mysticism can be a great thing—provided people understand what genuine mysticism is, and what it is not.

"Mysticism is not astrology, fortune-telling, clairvoyance, or spiritualism in any of the forms usually connoted by this term. It is not mental telepathy or anything which commonly goes by the name of extra-sensory perception. It is not visions, auditions, locations, or rap-tures. In short, it is not something superstitious or supernatural in the sense of occult."

Her own definition of mysticism is "communion of the human spirit with God," saying that this communion with God is "the very life of religion."

"Without such communion, religion may still exist as ritualistic folkways, or injunctions to morality, or as the social imperatives of human behavior including many sturdy efforts to remake the world. These pursuits are by no means to be disparaged. Given the right goals, they are vitally important. Yet without communion with God, in which mysticism centers, religion fades out and secularism reigns."

Dr. Harkness repudiates the common notion that mystical experience is a rare state "in which one is lifted out of himself and his world and into a state of ecstasy in which he sees visions and hears supernatural voices."

While some mystics have such experiences, she says, mystical experience also occurs with equal validity in the lives of ordinary persons as they engage in "personal prayer and worship" and as they learn through constant practice to recognize the presence of God in all events and activities of their everyday lives.

Mystical experience, in this sense of direct and intimate awareness of living in the presence of God, is open to anyone who is willing to pay the price, she says, but it "costs more of us than we are usually willing to give."

"Full communion with God involves a self-giving that claims the entire person, thinking, feeling, willing and doing," Dr. Harkness asserts. The first requirement is simple "purity of heart and life"—a sincere striving for "human goodness" in daily life and personal relationships.

There also must be readiness to surrender one's own will, ambitions and desires completely to the will of God. This does not necessarily mean renouncing all worldly pleasure. It just means putting God—and the desire for communion with him—above all else in our scale of values.

Some mystical experiences may occur spontaneously and unexpectedly. But most are the result of careful preparation which involves an earnest endeavor "to quiet one's mind and conflicting emotions so that one can hear the voice and feel the presence of God," says Dr. Harkness.

"So difficult is this to do with any thoroughness that most of us do not make the effort, whatever our so-called devotions," she says but adds that the effort is well worth making, for its fruit "can be the assurance that one does not have to carry his burdens alone."

Bible Translator Will Be Guest

KINGSTON—A Wycliffe Associates dinner will be held at the Holiday Inn, Kingston, Thursday, March 29 at 7 p.m. to encourage interest and support for the Bible translators.

Wycliffe, an interdenominational mission, specializes in Bible translation among tribal groups. A total of 2,900 members scattered in 24 countries work as linguists and support personnel with tribal people who do not have a written language.

The teams live in tribes, learn the language, develop an alphabet, teach reading and writing with the goal of translating the New Testament into the native tongue.

Upgrading health and agriculture and teaching simple industries is also part of their outreach.

The dinner speaker, Will Kindberg, has reached the pinnacle of achievement of every translator—the translation of the complete New Testament. He just finished the New Testament for the Campa Indians who live deep in the Peruvian Jungles.

In addition to translation Will has carried on an extensive medical ministry. Schools have mushroomed, congregations of believers have multiplied and scores of Campa have become Christians. Those who wish may hear the inspiring story first hand. The next best thing to going to the mission field is to hear this enthusiastic speaker. For reservations Mrs. Harold Sweeney, of Poughkeepsie may be contacted.

Spring Clothing Appeal Underway

KINGSTON—The annual spring clothing appeal of the Kingston Area Council of Churches will end on April 7. The event is in cooperation with a world-wide clothing effort of Church World Service, a relief agency of 28 denominations.

A particular need this year is for new and like-new children's clothing. School is important for every child and clothing is needed before the child can go. Another area of need this year is for good, clean, light-weight clothing for men. Many of the 31 areas of acute need are in tropical countries where men are in urgent need of clothing for work. The need for blankets and quilts continues, as well as material for layettes.

Items for this appeal are to be taken to the person's church. The individual congregation will box and process the clothing and take it to the central receiving depot. For information call the chairman of the committee, the Rev. Dr. David C. Gaise at Redeemer Lutheran Church.

The Limits of Growth

Why World System Heading for Collision

(Editor's Note: "The Limits to Growth," a Potomac Associates Book by Donella H. Meadows, Dennis L. Meadows, Jorgen Randers and William W. Behrens 3rd, was published in 1972 by Universe Books of New York. Sponsored by The Club of Rome, the study reported in "The Limits to Growth" has received worldwide attention for its conclusions about man's potentially disastrous approach to the limits of his growth on earth. This is the fourth of six parts presenting the book in summary form.)

A short history of the future: World population, industry and food production keep snowballing. The human race is doubling in size every three decades and output of goods and services continue to double at least as fast and often faster.

Basic fuels, metals and land are being gobbled up at fantastic rates, rapidly exhausting the world's reserves and driving up costs.

Then industrial expansion is forced to a halt as costs of mining and farming rise too high to leave anything left over for future investment.

Finally industry collapses, taking with it the farming and service systems which depend on industry's tractors, fertilizers, laboratories and so forth.

Population finally drops when starvation and lack of health services push the death rate upward.

Total time elapsed: 100 years or so.

Science fiction?

Not necessarily, says "The Limits to Growth."

If humanity stays fixed on growth as a way of life and there are no major changes in the population - industrial system, world society must face collapse within the next century at latest, the authors believe.

Radical advances in technology and pollution control could delay the crisis, their studies indicate.

But only for a few decades.

Nothing can ensure the long-term survival of world civilization unless world population growth and industrial expansion are brought under control soon. If this can be accomplished at all, it will mean profound changes in the attitudes and lifestyles of the world's people.

How does "The Limits To Growth" reach this sobering conclusion?

In the third part of this series we looked at the individual problems of land shortage, resource depletion and pollution as they grow more severe.

As population and industry increase "exponentially," these critical limits to growth are more rapidly approached. Population is doubling every 33 years; industry every 10 years.

At those rates the end will come quickly and suddenly. Just as in the riddle of the lily in part one.

But to measure the limits to growth in the world system, more has to be considered than the separate increases in population, industry, food production, pollution and resource use.

Together these five vital growth and consumption factors form a structured system. Each of the five affects the others as they grow. And each "feeds back" after a delay in time to influence its own growth.

Population cannot grow without food, food production is increased by the growth of industry, more industry requires resources, discarded resources become pollution, pollution interferes with the growth of both population and food, and so on.

Projections of the future course of world society can't be very meaningful unless such interactions are accounted for in the calculations.

The analysis of this world system is the purpose of the "world model" devised by the study team from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The model is actually a complex computer program that simulates statistical growth trends and their interactions mathematically.

Computer models of this kind are called "system dynamics" models. They can be used to analyze and project the behavior of complex systems that change over time.

In a similar way the world model devised by the authors of the "Limits to Growth" projects the growth or decline of world population and industry as resources are depleted, pollution increases and food supplies change.

This model does not produce precise predictions about the future. In fact its results are not predictions at all in the strict sense of the word. The model projects broad modes of behavior under given circumstances.

It does not take adverse political conditions into account, nor such social catastrophes as war or epidemic. Furthermore its accuracy is limited by the accuracy of its initial facts such as how much iron the world has left or how much pollution will affect health.

Lack of information about many of these factors forces the model builders to fall back on educated guesses at present.

Can anything really be learned from so highly simplified a model of world growth?

Not in terms of precise forecasts. But the model builders believe their dynamic model is a fruitful way to study important trends and their likely outcomes. Will world population reach a natural peak and then level off? Will it outgrow its physical limits and then collapse? If it collapses, can it recover and begin to grow again? How healthy can the world's people become?

The answers to these questions will vary according to the way the human race decides to deal with its growth problems.

(NEXT: Why technology alone can't solve the growth problem.)

Spring Brings a Host of New Arrivals at Catskill Game Farm, Among Them This African Klipspringer Birthday Baby, Who Has Just Joined the Animal Population at the Nationally Famous Zoological Park in Catskill

A SKETCH OF THE "CORNELL" made by the marine artist William Ewen Jr. of Providence, R. I. The finely rendered

art work depicts the tugboat on her famous ice breaking chore of March 1910.

The Most Impressive Tugboat of All

By CAPT. WM. O. BENSON

As the 19th century gave way to the 20th century, the Cornell Steamboat Company of Rondout was the largest and most progressive marine towing organization in the country. In 1902 they had built what was to be their largest and most powerful tugboat. When completed, it appropriately bore the name "Cornell."

By whatever standard of measurement, the "Cornell" was a most impressive tugboat. At a few inches less than 150 feet in length, she was 25 feet longer than any of Cornell's other big tugboats. Her 1,400 h.p. engine exceeded by over 500 the horsepower of other units of the fleet.

Boatmen used to refer to her as the "Big Cornell" and her two big boilers had a ravenous appetite for coal to make enough steam for her powerful engine. As a result, she had the reputation of being a very hard boat to fire. Many boatmen from Hudson River towns one would talk to in the early 1920's would almost always say how at one time or another they had fired on the "Big Cornell." Some would stay only a few hours, some a few days and rarely would she end the season with a fireman who had started out on her in the spring.

On Lower River

Because of her size and deep draft, she was used almost exclusively on the lower river. During her service on the Hudson, the channel north of Athens had not been dredged for deep draft vessels like it is today. During her career, the "Cornell" made only one trip to Albany and this trip was her most notable exploit while carrying the colors of the Cornell Steamboat Company. It took place in early March, 1910.

The winter of 1910 had been an old fashioned winter with plenty of ice in the river. During late February and early March the weather turned unseasonably warm, causing high water at Albany as the result of the melting of the winter's snow and ice in the Mohawk River. A huge ice jam formed in the river below Albany which caused the water to back up and flood the waterfront areas of Albany and Rensselaer. Fears were also expressed that the ice crowding the Albany railroad bridges might move them off their abutments.

In order to relieve the ice and flood crisis at Albany, the federal government was asked to take action. The government's plan was to use dynamite on the ice jam to break it up and to charter the most powerful vessel they could find to go up river to break up the river ice so the broken ice could move down river. The "Big Cornell" was chosen for the job.

The "Cornell" left Rondout Creek on March 3, 1910 with the tug "Rob" to follow and assist in any way possible. I have been told the whole operation was in charge of Captain Ulster Davis, Cornell's agent at Rensselaer, and the regular crew of the "Cornell" whose captain was Tim Donovan and pilot Irving Hayes. Although the upper Hudson was at flood stage, the "Cornell" carried minimum amounts of coal and water in order to keep her draft at a minimum so she would have clearance over the shallow spots north of Athens.

Very Heavy Ice

The "Cornell" encountered very heavy ice from Kingston to Athens, sometimes as much as two feet in thickness.

The ice was so heavy, the "Cornell's" steel hull plating was scalloped inward between her frames at the water line forward caused by her smash-into the rock-like ice.

At Athens, the "Cornell" went up the wider Athens channel rather than the deeper Hudson channel along the east shore, since men going ahead on foot had determined the ice in the west channel wasn't quite as thick. She passed Athens through 15 inches of ice on March 5. All along the river, men and boys would come out on the ice to watch the "Cornell" go by.

The "Cornell" arrived at Rensselaer on March 6, the river opened and the ice jam broken. Once the ice jam was broken, I have been told one could literally see the water begin to drop at Albany. Although the crisis to Albany was over, a new problem arose for the "Cornell." The Company was afraid the water might drop so fast, they would not be able to get their big tug back down river in time to clear the up river sand bars and ledges.

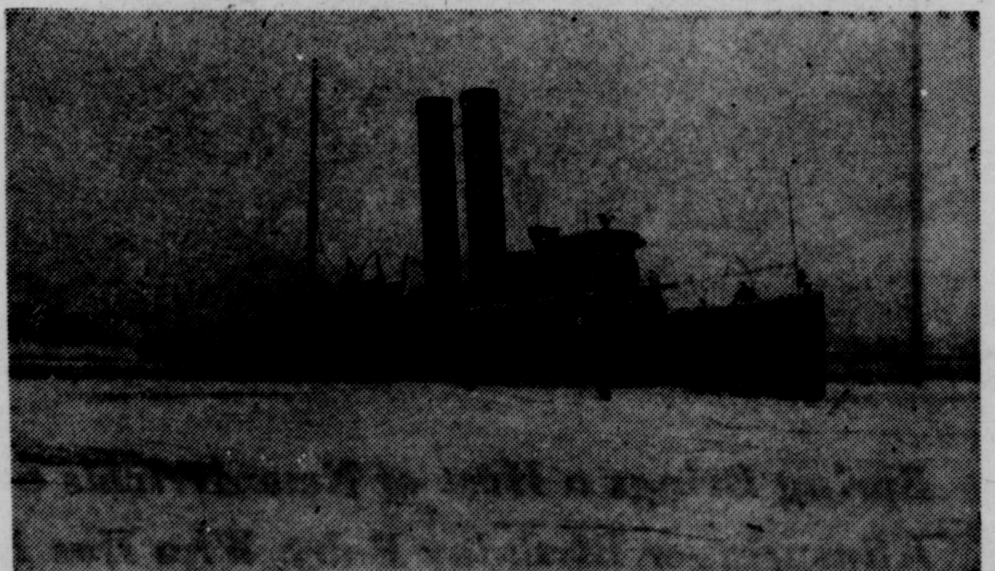

An Early Start

The "Cornell" took on coal, fresh water and grub at Rensselaer as fast as she could. Due to the strong current in the river, when they started to turn the "Cornell" around for her return trip, the tug "Rob" had to push wide open against her stern in order to get the "Cornell" headed down stream. At first, they were going to wait for daylight all the way, but because of the falling water

THE CORNELL TUGBOAT "ROB" which followed the "Cornell" to Albany to assist in any way possible. The "Rob" was called upon to turn the "Cornell" around up-river; was almost run over by the larger tug further downstream.

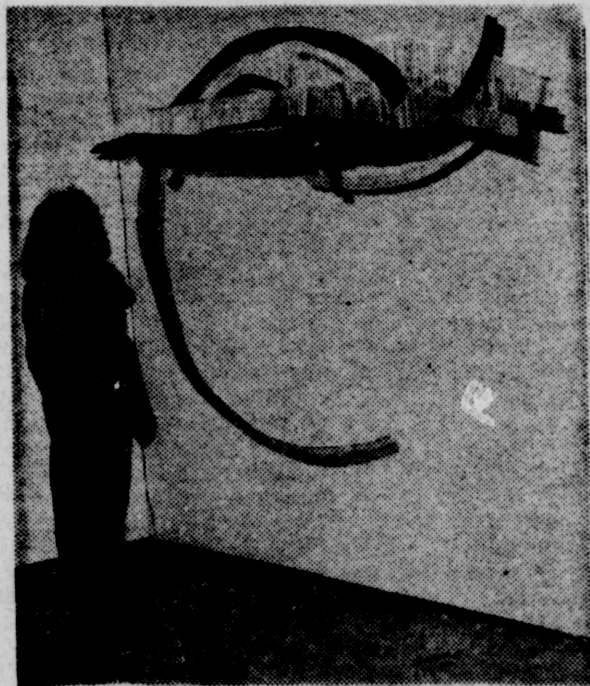

CRUNCHING HER WAY through the ice on the upper Hudson in early March of 1910 is the "Cornell." The huge tugboat successfully opened the river in an era before the Coast Guard ice breakers, as related in today's story.

VISITING ARTISTS PROGRAM arranges for an area artist to go into one or another of the Onteora Central Schools; give an art demonstration geared with emphasis on student participation. In this case, it was talented Sabra Segal, here holding one of her own clay animal sculpture pieces, and asking Bennett School youngsters at Boiceville to imagine an environment and story about the work; talk about the animal via collage and/or drawing. (Freeman photo by John Kruh)

Getting a Lot of Art Mileage Out of $1,000

FIRST ARTIST to actually work in an Onteora school was sculptor Gary Hill, who set up a studio in a corridor corner; encouraged students to help him work on a wire and string construction.

How can the arts be made a basic part of the education of all school children? That has long been a central problem faced by educators, who know that art is important to children and to society, and is essential in the school program — but are not always certain how to ensure an effective art program in school.

What has been needed has been the development of an arts education more substantial and richer than most children have been receiving up to now. One school system that has done much to solve the problem is the Onteora School District, comprising the largest land area of any school district in New York State. Sprawling across the northern Catskills, it serves 3,500 students in its six schools — Many of whom have had little or no exposure either to art, artists or television in their rural, isolated homes.

That gave Onteora art teacher Gladys Plate the idea to get the Woodstock Artists Association to apply for a New York State Council on the Arts grant to allow cooperation with the school district in supplementing its art programs — always limited at best.

Small but Workable

The state came through a year ago with a grant of $1,000 — very little in comparison with some of its hefty grants to other groups and individuals. . . but it has been a thousand dollars out of which WAA and Onteora have gotten a lot of mileage — in terms of art education and enthusiasm.

The money has been used to sponsor a Parents Art Show in the Woodstock Elementary School, with working artist members of WAA, who have children in the Woodstock School, participating. It proved a unique experience when works by Franklin Alexander, Nancy and Robert Angeloch, Jon Berg, Garie and Patrick Blackwell, Carole Brugnoli, Phyllis Obatz, and Rosemary Villchur were hung — next to a photograph of the student and his artist-parent.

Another innovation has been an in-service training program in which a Professor in Art Education from the State University College at New Paltz has offered seminars at all schools in the district to instruct classroom teachers on how to incorporate art into non-art courses.

Highly successful and tremendously exciting to students has been the program of having an artist actually working in the school a week or more at a time. The first such artist in residence was sculptor Gary Hill, youthful Woodstock artist who not only hung a show of his work at Woodstock School, but also set up a corner corridor studio, conducted slide shows and held classes in his own studio in welding and carving for interested youngsters.

Local History Mural

Now in residence is muralist Anton Refregier, who will design a mural on local Woodstock history; execute it in April on a large wall in the Woodstock Elementary School cafeteria with the aid of students.

Equally exciting, especially for Phoenicia School youngsters who had never before had an artist in the school, has been the Visiting Artists Program. Among artists who have gone into the district schools and given art demonstrations geared toward student participation:

Portraits and pastels painter Albert Handell, who conducted an all day studio at the High School in Boiceville; sculptress-collagist Sabra Segal, who gave collage demonstrations at Bennett School, Boiceville; painter-sculptor Joe Zaretsky, whose demonstration at West

AMONG INVITED PARENTS participating in special Woodstock exhibit was artist Nancy Angeloch, here with daughter Alex, a student at Woodstock School. Painter Angeloch exhibited a work entitled "Bouquet."

SEEM' AS HOW IT'S ANNUAL AWARDS TIME around the U.S. of A., what with the Oscars and Tonys being passed out this week—and the Emmy's comin' up soon—we figured as how it's high time this column gave out a few special awards of its own. Herewith, then, our choices:

Big Spender of the Decade Award—to Nelson Rockefeller for managing to start out in office with a $1-billion budget and running it up to $8-billion this time around.

Our combined Webster's Dictionary and Egg-Timer Award—to Henry Kissinger to keep him apprised of the rhetorical differences between the phrases: "Peace at hand," "Peace near," "Peace off for now," and "Peace finalized."

The Twinkle-Toed but Butter-Fingered Award—to Garo Ypreman for those few hectic seconds in the Super Bowl when he forgot he wasn't the world's greatest passer.

Our Jeanette MacDonald-Nelson Eddy "Sweethearts" Award—to Jane Fonda and Tom Haydn, that "Maytime" duo.

Our Life Isn't All Blonde and Beautiful Award—to Hugh Hefner of Playboy Magazine.

Our "Could We Have Cash Instead?" Award—to all these area restaurants with too high menu prices.

Our "Whatttheheck, We Might As Well Eat" Award—to our friendly neighborhood supermarket.

The "It's Just Awful But We know People Who Have Seen It Eight Times" Award—to the pornical movie, "Deep Throat."

The "Gossip Is Vice Enjoyed Vicariously" Award—to Suzy Says.

ONE REASON WE KNOW we're getting old—the kids just asked us, "Now, who WAS Perry Como?"

Another reason is the way the recording industry has changed since we were young. It's the only business in the world where the stars are forgotten by the time their complexion clears up.

* * *

DID YOU EVER NOTICE how everybody—but absolutely everybody—in every TV series can drive a car? Imagine what would happen if the wounded, rapidly-losing-blood criminal on "Mod Squad" ever moaned to his moll, "Honey, you drive," and Honey demurred, "Gee, Buzz, I don't know how."

The actress in question would hit the skids in Hollywood, and "Mod Squad's" rating would plummet.

Even the kids on TV can drive—not only cars, but planes and motorcycles. And they're so precocious, they manage to pilot them through fog and maneuver them through mountain passes with nary a mishap.

In real life, half the housewives we know can't get to the supermarket until hubby gets home to take 'em. As for the kids around our neighborhood, they're still making it by bike or shank's mare.

HERE'S A SCOOP for anybody over 45—William Powell has shaved off his mustache. That's a historical item for anyone who remembers his famous mustache in all those "Thin Man" movies. Furthermore, Powell says he's happily retired, won't ever act again, will never grow his mustache anew.

And here's sad news for anybody over 45—rock music is far from dead. Madison Square Garden grossed $4,988,988 for 36 rock concerts during 1972. That's a gain of more than $1.5 over 1971. So, better keep the old ear plugs handy for a while yet.

* * *

IF YOU'VE EVER BEEN CURIOUS about the life of a stand-up comedian, we suggest you read "Take My Wife . . . Please!" It's the autobiography of comic Henny Youngman, who's maintained a home in Woodstock for decades and decades. It's also full of Youngman's one-liners, and tells all about what it's like to be a comic.

AND, SPEAKING OF BOOKS, we found "Memoirs of the Forties" by celebrated photographer, set designer, author and dazzling raconteur Cecil Beaton fascinating reading on those hectic and halcyon days.

One anecdote in particular tickled us. Seems one afternoon Greta Garbo started once or twice to ask Beaton a favor, then decided against it. "Perhaps another day I'll mention it," she said, intriguing Beaton all the more. Then she continued hesitantly: "If only you were not such a grand and elegant photographer . . ." At which point Beaton finished the sentence for her: "Then you'd ask me to take your passport photograph?"—which totally astounded the great Garbo.

ETHEL MAGAFAN WITH BOLD STYLE PAINTING

Wins Highest Award; Paints Calendar Art

For the third time in her highly acclaimed painting career, Woodstock artist Ethel Magafan has been honored with the highest award given by the prestigious National Academy of Design on New York City's Fifth Avenue.

Her painting, "MEADOWS," on exhibit during the recent three-weeks long 148th Annual Exhibition held at the Academy, was named winner of the coveted Benjamin Altman Landscape Prize of $2,500. Woodstocker Magafan captured the same award in 1955 and 1964.

Two other Woodstockers took honors in the exhibition: John Fenton — winning a $100 award in the graphics division, and Carolyn Haeblerlin — receiving a certificate of merit.

In Solo Show

Artist Magafan's prize-winning "MEADOWS" will be featured as part of her solo show at New York City's Midtown Galleries, slated to open April 3.

Another Magafan painting, "HIGH COUNTRY," appears in the very beautiful 1973 wall calendar of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company. A broadly expressionistic portrait of the mountains flooded in fall colors, "High Country" captures the immense bulk and grandeur of the ranges.

The calendar is produced in co-operation with the American Artists Group, and the 12 paintings utilized represent a variety of artistic experiences, from the bold style of painter Magafan to the quiet realism of Randolph Bye. Ms. Magafan is the only woman artist represented in the calendar reproductions of works by contemporary American artists, which also includes one by Poughkeepsie artist Arne Lindmark.

Painter Magafan, however, is used to distaff success in a field dominated by men. Starting with 1938, she has had over 20 one-woman exhibitions in this country, as well as in Athens, Greece. Her recent honors include a purchase award, Watercolor U.S.A., Berkshire Museum Awards, Audubon Artists Award, and Hassam Fund Purchase, American Academy of Arts and Letters. Among the public collections owning her work are the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Munson-Williams-Proctor Institute, and the Dulin Gallery. Her murals appear in the Senate Chamber, and in several other government buildings.

A $10,000 Grant For Storm King

MOUNTAINVILLE

Storm King Art Center in Mountainville has received a $10,000 matching grant from The National Endowment for the Arts in Washington, D. C. for use toward its special exhibition, SCULPTURE IN THE FIELDS, to open this July 1 and run through October of next year.

Other New York museums receiving grants for special exhibits are The Guggenheim Museum, Metropolitan Museum of Modern Art, New York Cultural Center, Whitney Museum of American Art, and others.

SCULPTURE IN THE FIELDS will be an unusual attraction presenting large-scale sculpture on loan from leading sculptors. The works will be placed in the large open fields of beautifully landscaped Storm King Art Center on the Hudson.

TURNING AROUND at Albany on March 6, 1910 prior to her return to Rondout is the "Cornell." Because of the strong current in the river, she had to be assisted in turning by the tug "Rob," which accompanied her on the ice breaking journey.

The Most Impressive

decided to start down as soon as possible.

When they started back for Rondout, I have been told it was a clear, cold March night. The water in the river was running down stream so fast, they ran the "Cornell's" engine dead slow — just enough to keep steerage way. They were reluctant to run her any faster as they did not want to scrape or hit bottom and possibly smash her rudder shoe or break her propeller.

They had had such good luck so far, they didn't want to tempt fate any more than necessary.

Everything went fine until the two tugs came to Dover Platte Island off Coxsackie. Captain Donovan of the "Cornell" knew there had always been a sand bar there and figured the freshet in all probability might have built up the bar higher than usual. When they reached that point, they stopped the "Cornell's" engine and just let her drift. Sure enough she fetched up on the bar, stopped and rolled over very slightly to port. To be sure there was only sand, they sounded all around with pike poles.

Over the Bar

Once they were certain there were no rocks on the bottom, they decided to have the "Rob" go up ahead and put a hawser on the "Cornell's" bow — and then to open up both tugs full throttle and to try and "bull" the "Cornell" over the bar. When all was in readiness, the "Cornell" gave the signal for full speed ahead and for the "Rob" to start pulling. I can readily imagine on that cold March night the load "chow to chow" of the "Rob's" high pressure engine.

They tell me when the "Cornell" hooked up, she lay down on her port side, her propeller part out of the water for a few moments. Some of her crew thought her towering smoke stacks would topple over, the starboard guy lines being incredibly taut and the port ones having about two feet of slack. However, in but a few minutes the "Cornell" had inched her way over the bar.

Once she cleared the sand bar, though, the "Cornell" leaped ahead so fast before they could stop her engine she almost ran over the "Rob" pulling on her bow.

Quick action by a deckhand on the "Rob" saved the day. By wielding a fast, sharp axe he cut the connecting hawser. From that point back to Rondout Creek they encountered no more difficulties. From Athens south, the river ice still held, but by following the channel they had previously made going northward the going was relatively easy.

Renamed Her

The difficulty in keeping firemen on the "Cornell" continued to plague her and led to the end of her career on the Hudson River. Shortly before World War I she was sold to the Standard Oil Company of Louisiana. Her new owners renamed her "Istrouma," converted her to an oil burner, and operated her on the Mississippi River out of Baton Rouge where she remained in service until the late 1940's.

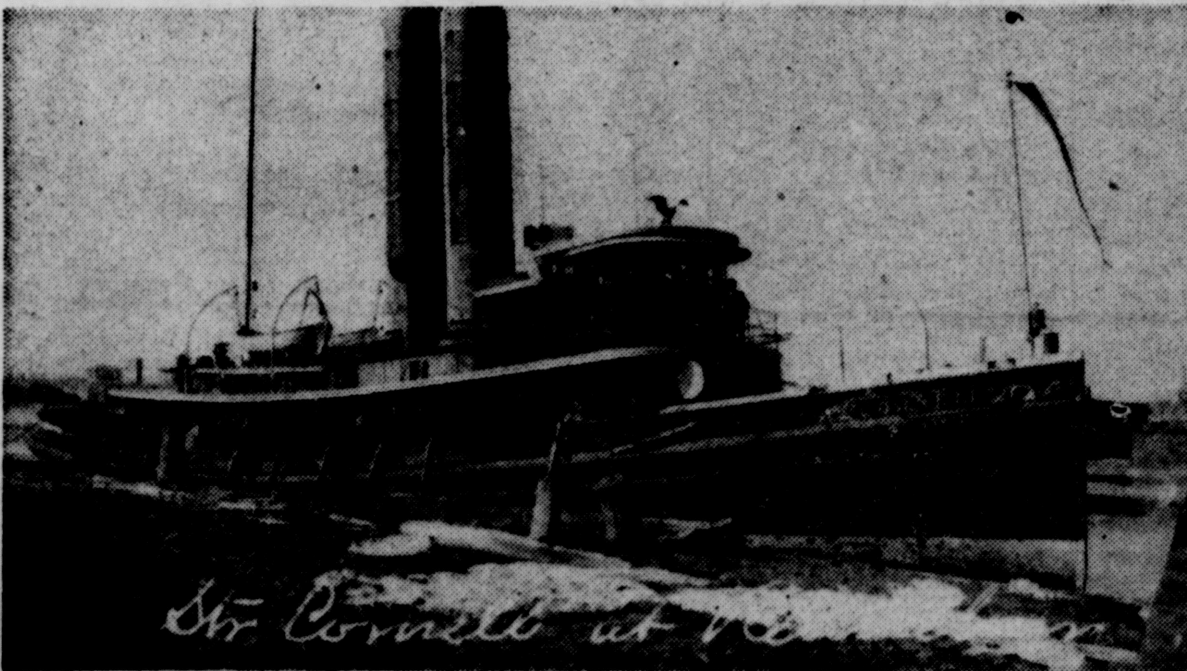

I have been told the Cornell Steamboat Company always maintained it was not feasible to convert the "Cornell" to an oil burner, since it wouldn't be possible to install sufficient oil storage capacity aboard her. It is my understanding before purchasing her, the Standard Oil people, unknown to Cornell, sent some men to Cornell who hired out on her as firemen. The masquerading firemen thoroughly examined the "Cornell" and apparently concluded she could successfully be converted to oil firing. In any event, she was — and remained in service for another 30 years.

Many years later, during World War II, my friend Roger Mabie was the commanding officer of a submarine chaser in the U.S. Navy. One day his ship was in a shipyard at Algiers, Louisiana, across the river from New Orleans. There, in an adjacent dry dock was the "Istrouma," the old "Cornell." He went aboard.

Her shell plating forward was still scalloped between frames from her bout with Hudson River ice in 1910. Her brass capstan caps were still inscribed "Cornell." In her engine room, her steam and vacuum gauge faces still were etched "Cornell." Cornell Steamboat Company, Rondout, N.Y.

A few days later, Roger told me his ship was leaving New Orleans to go back to sea. Out in the river, the old "Cornell" was going upstream. He blew her a whistle salute, which the former "Cornell" answered with her old deep steam whistle. I thought it was a nice gesture, both a greeting to an old work horse from the Hudson River and a sort of salute to the maritime greatness that was once Rondout's.

BUILT IN 1902, the "Cornell" was the Cornell Steamboat Company's largest and most powerful tugboat. Here, the "Big Cornell" is shown after her arrival at Rensselaer on March 6, 1910.

CELIA SCHAFER raises hand in threatening gesture; Ruth Ann MacDonald cowers from expected blow; and Linda Sheeley watches in anguished concern in scene from Arthur Miller's play, "The Crucible." The drama about witchcraft in 17th century Salem is being presented by students in the new theatre program at Ulster County Community College.

'The Crucible' Back For 2 More Stagings

STONE RIDGE Arthur Miller's "The Crucible," the second production in Ulster County Community College's new theatre program, is a tale from across the centuries of the hallucinations of children that led to 19 hangings.

The play has had numerous revivals since its 1953 premiere, most recently last year at Lincoln Center where critics found it a tale for all times and especially our own.

Miller, who won the Pulitzer Prize for his earlier play, "Death of a Salesman," here recalls the historic witchcraft trials in Salem, Mass., in 1692.

Terrible Episodes

The author has said that every one of the 21 characters in his play had a similar role in the terrible episodes of 1692 when the only alternative to hanging, if accused, was to confess making a pact with the devil.

Miller focuses most of his attention in "The Crucible" on the fate of a young farmer's wife, accused of witchcraft by a harlot who is infatuated with the farmer and hopes to marry him.

The play turns on the attempts of the farmer, John Proctor, to save his wife and the doom he meets when he tries.

"The Crucible" follows the couple, John and Elizabeth, through their whole ordeal — the initial suspicion of Elizabeth, her arrest, the implacable trail in which any defense is regarded as an attack on the court itself.

Off to Hang

In the end, Proctor is given the opportunity to save himself by confessing, but he is unable to do that, and he is marched off to hang.

His act, though, brings an end to the trials and the hysteria that had gripped the community.

Jeffrey Groppuso, of Kingston, will be seen as the young farmer, and Patricia Czarski, also of Kingston, will play his stubbornly upright wife, Kenn Cranna, of Hudson, will appear as the unctuous, overbearing deputy governor of Massachusetts.

George Young, of Ellenville, will portray a minister who becomes appalled at the hysteria that overwhelms the colonial village, and Ray Passer, of Kerhonkson, will appear as another minister who, panic-stricken, whips up the orgy of bigotry to save his own position.

Others in the Cast

Others in the large cast include Celia Schafner, of West Copake, as the harlot whose lies launch all the persecutions; Linda Sheeley as an intimidated ally; and Lorie Thropp, of High Falls, one of the girls who try to escape persecution for having dared to dance by night in a forest.

The show, directed by John Lawson, will play again March 29 and 30 in the college's new Quimby Auditorium. Tickets are $1.50 and curtain is 8:15 p.m.

Gold Rush Musical In Matinee Today

MIDDLETOWN More than 30 area students will perform in today's production of "Paint Your Wagon," the Gold Rush era musical being staged at Orange County Community College.

Curtain time in the Orange Hall theater at OCCC for today's Sunday matinee will begin at 3 p.m. Ticket information is available by telephoning OCCC, (914) 343-1121, extension 204.

"Paint Your Wagon" has its locale in Rumson Town, a California gold mining town, in the early 1850's. Ben Rumson, a widower, lives with Jennifer, his daughter and the only woman in the town. She falls in love with Julio, a poor Mexican, but she is sent back East for schooling. A Mormon with two wives arrives in town and, because of the shortage of women, agrees to auction off one wife. Meanwhile a group of fandango dancers arrive in the thriving town to entertain the miners. But when Jenny returns, the town has died and many of the miners have left the scene. She renews her romance with Julio and Ben is resigned to his solitary life.

Student members of the cast and orchestra come from Middletown, Central Valley, Warwick, Circleville, Newburgh, Walden, Thompson Ridge, Montgomery, Pine Bush, Bloomingburg, Wurtsboro, Monticello and Rock Tavern. Also from Nanuet, Monsey, Pearl River, New York City, Great Neck, Cohoes, and Honesdale, Pa.

Some selections to be performed by male voices are "Once Upon a Time" by Stousse; "Pepita" by Muller; and "Hava Nagila" a Hebrew traditional. The two groups will perform jointly and will sing "And The Glory of the Lord," by Handel; "The Hallelujah Chorus" by Handel; and "The Pajama Game" by Adler. PROBABLY NO STRUCTURE identifies the nation's capital more readily than the Washington Monument, from whose peak tourists are offered an unforgettable view and whose

WASHINGTON, D.C.

At the request of various area school groups planning spring trips to Washington, and in response to similar inquiries by a number of Ulster County parents interested in spending a family holiday in the nation's capital, TEMPO contacted the Washington Area Convention and Visitors Bureau for special information on the 1973 National Cherry Blossom Festival.

And those cherry blossoms, we're told, have been synonymous with Springtime in Washington since Woodrow Wilson sat in the White House. More to the point, more Americans than ever before will be enjoying them this Spring, since this year's Festival will be the "most open" in history. That's because no one needs an invitation to get into any function this year. You may have to buy a ticket, but you'll pay what it costs the sponsoring Visitors Bureau.

This year's Cherry Blossom Festival will start at 10 a.m. Saturday April 7 when the 50 best high school bands in America begin a three-hour strut down Constitution Avenue in Washington, D.C.

Clowns and Princesses

Clowns, bathing beauties, princesses, dignitaries, floats, drill teams, a unicycle-mounted basketball game and miscellaneous celebrants will provide colorful escort as the Nation's Capital celebrates its cherry blossoms and the coming of Spring.

The world-famous blossoms should pop out April 5 or thereabouts, ensuring plenty of spectacular color for the festival.

Parade officials report that more than 70 units will march. There'll be a lunch break following the parade, then at 2:30, marchers and spectators will head for the famous Tidal Basin and the equally famous cherry trees. There, U.S. and Japanese officials will preside at the lighting of the 300-year-old Japanese Stone Lantern, officially opening festival week in Washington.

The 52 Cherry Blossom Princesses and the Japanese Cherry Blossom Queen will make their initial group appearance at the opening festivities.

A "Bike-In"

Opening day will include a "Bike-In." There'll be fringe car parking allowing bike riders to pedal to the parade, via safe routes, and there'll be bike sightseeing on the Mall, around the Tidal Basin and on Hains Point. The National Park Service will provide lock-up facilities for bikes.

The following day, a Sunday, will include the Welcome Springtime Massed Band Concert around and throughout the Tidal Basin. Actually, the band, guaranteed to include at least 500 musicians, will perform from the steps of the Jefferson Memorial. But the sound, amplified throughout the area, will reach the shores of the basin, enabling concertgoers to enjoy the music while strolling among the cherry trees, and hopefully, among the blossoms.

At 9 p.m. April 10, the princesses will be honored at the Princess Presentation Ball at the Sheraton Park Hotel, sponsored by the National Conference of State Societies.

The Cherry Blossom Fashion Show entitled "A Salute to the American Indian," will start at 12:30 p.m. April 11 at the Sheraton Park. Following the traditional festival luncheon, American Indians representing 15 tribes will model ancient, traditional and contemporary Indian fashions. There'll also be Indian music and dancing.

Finalists Selected

During the luncheon the 10 Cherry Blossom Queen finalists will be selected.

"Spirit of America," the military ceremony which has become a festival tradition, will highlight the activities April 12. The princesses will participate in the colorful ceremony, starting at 7 p.m. at Ft. Myer, Va.

Three big events are scheduled April 13. First, there'll be the National Intercollegiate Drill Team Championships at D.C. Armory. They'll start at 8:30 a.m. and last all day, with trophies to be awarded late in the afternoon.

At 11:30 a.m. representatives of 30 patriotic societies, aided by the princesses, will lay wreaths at the base of the statue of Thomas Jefferson in the Jefferson Memorial. The occasion will be the 230th anniversary of the third president's birth.

Official Gala

At 9 p.m. the Official Cherry Blossom Gala will begin in the Sheraton Park Hotel. Catholic University and George Washington University singers and dancers will present an original musical review and the 1973 festival queen will be selected and crowned with the $250,000 Mikimoto Crown.

Throughout the week, there'll also be the Cherry Blossom Art Show at L'Enfant Plaza. Artists will compete for prizes and will also sell their works to the public.

The festival will end with Sayonara ceremonies at the Stone Lantern, starting at noon April 14. The newly selected queen will extinguish the lantern to close the festival.

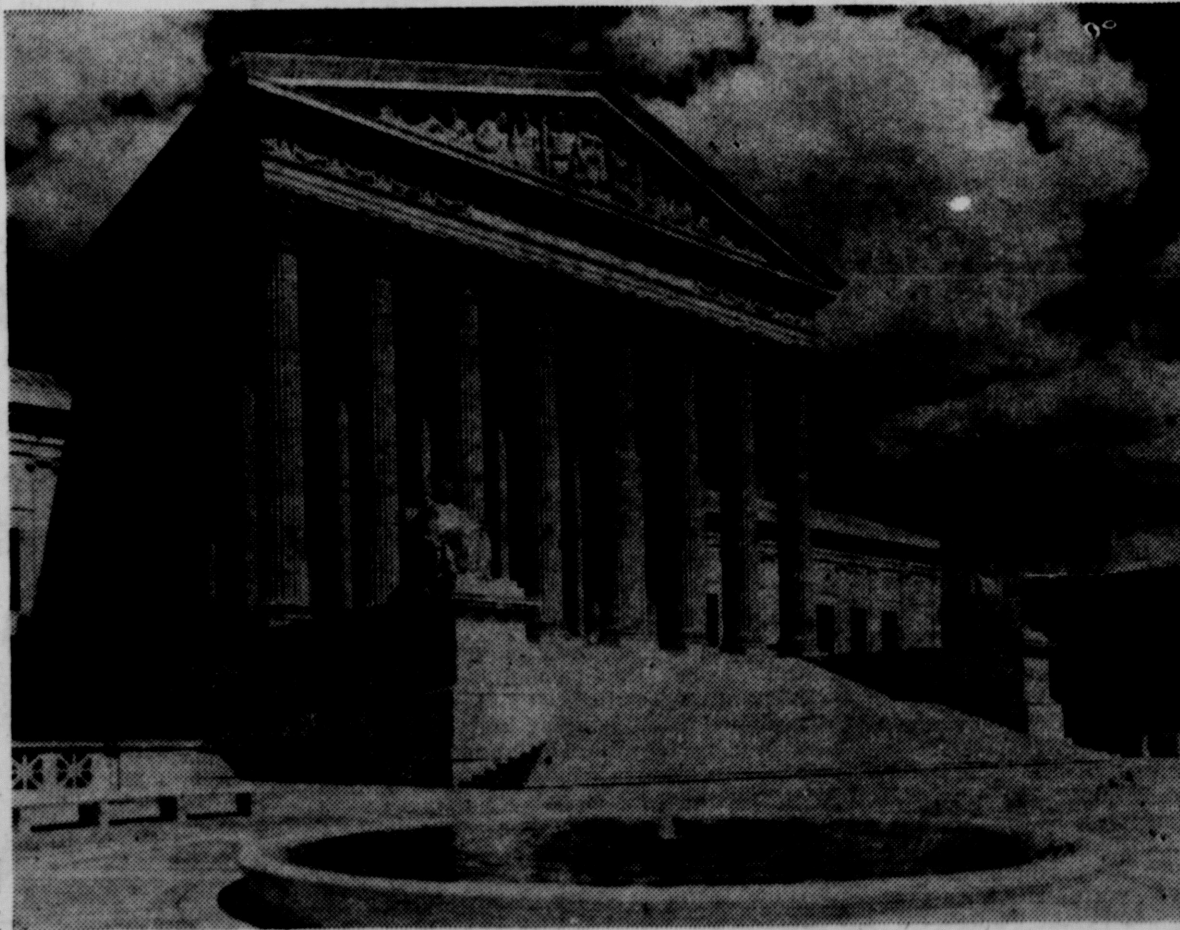

Many of the festival activities will be free to the public; in events requiring purchase of tickets, price will be based on the actual cost of the function. The festival is sponsored by the Washington Area Convention and Visitors Bureau, a non-profit organization.

Optimum Date

The blossoming of the cherry trees and the advent of Washington's spring are, of course, directly related. The National Park Service, one of the festival sponsors, has been keeping records for decades on the trees and April 5 is the optimum date for their blossoming, hence that's also the date for spring to come to the Nation's Capital.

So, expect to do plenty of sightseeing if you go to Washington for the festival. It's the capital's most enjoyable time of year, and you'll find that the weather is probably great for walking among the various free attractions which dot the Mall from the Lincoln Memorial to the Jefferson Memorial to the White House and to the Capitol.

But make your reservations now. Washington is very popular, especially at cherry blossom time.

SUPREME COURT BUILDING adjacent to the U.S. Capitol is one of Washington, D.C.'s most attractive structures. It's open for tours when the court is not in session; when the justices are holding court, visitors are welcome to witness the proceedings. ...And Among the Favored Nominees Are...

ENINE

"THE GODFATHER," with Marlon Brando as the Mafia king of the title, beckons a favor-asker closer before agreeing to handle his problem by making an offer that can't be refused. The film has received the most nominations of any movie (11) for this year's Oscar awards, but Brando may very well refuse to have anything to do with his—for "Best Actor"—if he wins.

HERE'S OSCAR — And it's anybody's guess which nominees will win him when the Motion Picture Academy hands out its awards this Tuesday night, March 27. Millions will be watching the winners and losers on television, beginning at 10 p.m. over Channels 4 and 6.

PETER O'TOOLE is definitely in the competition for Best Actor of the Year by way of his nomination for his role as a balmy British earl in the satirical movie, "The Ruling Class." He's seen here in a scene from that film.

BOTH LIZA MINELLI and Joel Grey, here singing the "Money" number from "Cabaret," have been nominated for Academy Awards—she for Best Actress, he for Best Supporting Actor. The film itself has received 10 nominations.

ECCENTRIC MYSTERY WRITER Laurence Olivier insists at gunpoint that Michael Caine wear a clown's mask to enact a weird real-life plot that may or may not prove fatal to one of them in this scene from "Sleuth," for which both actors have received "Best Actor" Oscar nominations. Director Joe Mankiewicz is also up for an award.

LIV ULLMAN, here seen portraying masculinity in "Pope Joan," has been nominated for "Best Actress" for her role in "The Emigrants." The story of Europeans who helped settle America, it has also earned a Best Director nomination for Jan Troell.

MAGGIE SMITH, who already has an Oscar for "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie," is TEMPO's personal favorite for Best Actress of the Year. She received her nomination for her performance in "Travels With My Aunt," and—as far as we're concerned—gave the coolest portrayal of any year in a role that took her from young schoolgirl to old age.

SHELLY WINTERS, posing in the center here with fellow passengers in the all-star cast of "The Poseidon Adventure," has earned another Oscar nomination as Best Supporting Actress. The film itself has been honored with seven Academy Award nominations, including hers.

ANTHONY QUINN and YAPHET KOTTO face up to a shootout in Harlem in scene from "ACROSS 110TH STREET," the realistic cops and crime thriller now featured at Kingston's Community Theatre.

Movies

Across 110th Street

"Across 110th Street," the main feature now playing at Kingston's Community, was shot mostly in Harlem, and the residents of that community are on hand in large numbers in the street scenes. And, if you know your New York, you'll respond in recognition to such locations as 110th Street (naturally) and Lenox Avenue, the state building in Harlem, the corner of 111th Street and Madison Avenue, Central Park's Tavern-on-the-Green, Washington Heights and the 10th police precinct on West 20th Street.

It's a good film story idea, dealing with an action confrontation between the mob, the cops and a gang of blacks who try to double-cross them both. It stars Anthony Quinn as a New York Harlem precinct police captain who faces a final shootout before he can retire and become a civilian. In the role of Lieutenant Pope, the black detective allied with Quinn to capture three cop-killing black robbers of crime syndicate's Harlem numbers take, is Yaphet Kotto. A fine talent, he's the Harlem-born actor who won instant fame on Broadway when he replaced James Earl Jones in "The Great White Hope."

Another member of the cast is Anthony Franciosa, television hero of the "Name of the Game" and the current "Search" series, turned villain for his role in "Street." He portrays Nick D'Salvio, a ruthless racketeer.

A Good Show

All in all, very good nitty gritty, realistic cops and crime action, with a little sociology thrown in.

On the double bill at the Community is "THE LANDLORD," featuring Beau Bridges as a rich, whimsical white, who buys a ghetto tenement and becomes involved with its black tenants, including Pearl Bailey and Diana Sands.

Pete 'n' Tillie

Held over for a second week at Kingston's Mayfair is this comedy-drama based on a novella by Peter De Vries. There are enough laughs to keep most viewers happy, and that's probably because the funny lines are handled by two experts, Carol Burnett and Walter Matthau.

They play a pair of aging singles who become involved in a love affair that leads to marriage. It's all very charming for the most part, but gets a trifle tear jerky towards the end.

Deliverance

Now at the Academy Theatre in New Paltz, this powerful, first rate, excellent adventure film, based on poet James Dickey's universally acclaimed first novel. It stars Jon Voight, involved in an espionage plot.

JON VOIGHT is wet and weary after his canoe overturns in violent river rapids and he is sucked down a high falls into a pool at the base of a high-cliff gorge. Voight stars with Burt Reynolds in "DELIVERANCE," the film now on screen at The Academy Theatre in New Paltz.

CAROL BURNETT and WALTER MATTHAU are middle-aged newlyweds in "PETE 'N' TILLIE," the comedy-drama held over for a second straight week currently at Kingston's Mayfair Theatre.

Burt Reynolds, Ned Beatty and Ronny Cox as four city men who challenge a rural river via war-torn Europe in the early days of the conflict. Totally truthful and burgeoning with the primitive beauty of nature, it also features one of the finest musical background scores to come out of Hollywood in years.

Jeremiah Johnson

Robert Redford turns in a superlative performance as a man who flees civilization to live as a legendary "mountain man" in the wilderness of the early 1800s, in this fine film now featured at the Rosendale Theatre. A poetic tribute to those fiercely independent-of-mind "drop-outs" of another century, it is the stuff of which folklore is created and about which ballads are written. A beautiful work of art in its tribute to Nature and to man's interrelationship with Nature.

Fiddler on the Roof

Now at Red Hook's Lyceum, the well-known tale of Tevye the milkman — adapted from the longest-running stage musical in history. Israeli actor Topol stars as Tevye, Molly Picon is perfect as the matchmaker, and a great supporting cast helps to make the little village in czarist Russia come to shining life. Good performances and wonderful music make for enjoyable entertainment.

Upstate Films

Tonight's your last chance at Rhinebeck's Upstate Films to see Alfred Hitchcock's "FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT," the 1940 anti-fascist film made before the U.S. entered World War II. An exciting first rate, excellent adventure film, based on poet James Dickey's universally acclaimed first novel. It stars Jon Voight, involved in an espionage plot.

Vassar Madrigal Group Off on European Tour

T-ELFVEN

Vassar College Madrigal Singers departed Kennedy Airport last week for the start of a two-week European tour.

The 18-member group, under direction of Professor Albert van Ackere, will spend most of their spring vacation in the British Isles, but will travel to the continent for two concerts in Belgium. They will begin their return trip from Brussels on April 1.

Their first concert in England will be at Northern College of Music in Manchester, where they will also broadcast for the BBC. Remaining concert sites are Hollywell Music Room, Oxford University; Royal Holloway College, University of London; Vassar Club of London; University College, Dublin; Ballinasloe; Cardiff (including BBC radio and television broadcasts); Preston, Lancashire; Otley, Yorkshire; and Louvain and Brussels in Belgium.

Large Repertoire

The Madrigals, twelve women and six men, have a repertoire of choral music that ranges from the twelfth to the twentieth century. Their program for the tour includes works by Monteverdi, da Venosa, Gombert, Costeley, de Lassus, Scarlatti, Kirby and Thomas Morley.

The group last toured the British Isles in 1965; three years later, they traveled to Scandinavia.

Director van Ackere studied and later taught at Royal Conservatory of Music in Brussels. He was awarded the Brussels Conservatory Premier Prix de Chant in 1942 and the Prix Bourgeois for lieder interpretation in 1943. His post-graduate work included study under one of Belgium's foremost singing teachers, the late Mrs. J. van Dyck. As a member of the Pro Music Antiqua group of Brussels, he travelled extensively in Europe, Canada, and the United States while pursuing a career as an oratorio soloist and recitalist.

Hurley School was an instant hit; and hard-edge painter Mike Densen, whose aerial views had Phoenicia School youngsters totally intrigued and teachers there so fascinated, they bought several of his inexpensive works.

More to Come

Artist who will be participating soon in this program will be batik artist Suzanne Seaver and scratchboard artist Christie Medved, both of whom will conduct artist-student workshops.

Combining art education with field trip fun has been the aim of visits to artists' studios, where youngsters are intrigued by seeing the actual setting where artists work. Several local artists have opened their studios to visiting classes for a half day or more.

Stretching the initial $1,000 grant even further, a traveling art show has been arranged to circulate a show of the work of an area artist around all district schools. One such show was made up of the work of Michael Densen, whose large, prize-winning works were hung at Phoenicia School.

And, finally, WAA's Graphic Workshop is offering a scholarship to a high school student from the area interested in exploring a possible career in graphics. Twelve workshop sessions and workshop materials will be supplied to the scholarship recipient by WAA.

Lot of Mileage

A lot of mileage, indeed, from only $1,000 — and a lot of enthusiasm generated for the arts a part of American education long relegated to a peripheral, almost ornamental position outside the mainstream.

What WAA and Onteora have accomplished has been to make the arts a part of the basic education of all children in all of the six schools—a part of their core curriculum to prove that, if education is a preparation for life, it should include esthetics and the appreciation of the arts.

TEMPO, too, is enthusiastic about the project and its results to date; sincerely hopes that a new grant (hopefully in a far larger amount) will be forthcoming from the State Council this year. For it seems to us that through the excitement and enthusiasm aroused, everyone involved from teacher Plate and the Onteora Schools, to WAA and its artists, has earned it!

ARTIST-TEACHER-PARENT Frank Alexander was one of nine artists-parents with youngsters attending Woodstock School, who participated in an enjoyable art show arranged by elementary art teacher Gladys Plate, instigator of the Onteora-WAA program supported by State grant.

Live Entertainment Again for Academy After Fifty Years

NEW PALTZ LIVE AT THE ACADEMY! Those words haven't been heard in New Paltz for quite a while.

... not for about 50 years, in fact. But a hundred years ago, "Live-at the academy" was almost an everyday event and going down to catch the latest show was as common as turning on the TV is today. The Academy, then called The Opera House and later The Town Hall, was the site of live plays, concerts, dances, recitals and traveling vaudeville productions. Built in 1863, it was at one time a stagecoach stop, complete with a saloon and — later — it housed shops and an ice-cream parlor. In the 1920's film took over for many years it was a movie house. Later it became a community recreation hall and — in 1967 — it reopened as a cinema.

Everything comes full circle, and now, 110 years after it was built, the Academy is in the midst of a renaissance. In addition to its regular schedule of outstanding films, a program of live entertainment is being presented every Sunday afternoon at 3 p.m. These professional productions include everything from modern dance and jazz programs to concerts, plays and children's theatre.

Last Sunday, for instance, Brenda Bufalino, Ed Summerlin and Company premiered a new work entitled "Traveling Through Three" which combined film, dance and music. Today, Sunday, March 25, The Concord String Quartet will be appearing in a program partially funded by the New York State Council on the Arts.

Something for Everyone
Don Bellinger, owner of the Academy, hopes to create a true community theatre by offering something for everyone. One of his plans is to offer group rates to local schools and organizations in order that more people can take advantage of the chance to experience fine live productions in a local theatre. Bellinger has announced that some of the Sunday events will be scheduled for repeat performances on weekday afternoons if community interest makes it feasible.

Children's theater productions, such as "The Singing Machine" which was presented on three recent weekends by the Youtheatre of Bennington, Vermont, will also be specially scheduled for weekday matinees to accommodate school groups. Award winning children's films will be presented in the same manner.

The building that houses the Academy also contains a restaurant similar to the one that existed during the old stagecoach days. Called Barnaby's Loaf and Tankard, it is an ideal spot for a pre-show drink or after-theatre supper. Plans are also in the works to bring back another part of The Academy's past. The ice-cream parlor that existed at the turn of the century is about to reopen as part of the theatre itself, completing the re-birth of the Academy Theatre as the entertainment focal point of the community.

JOHN BURROUGHS' "SLABSIDES," the great American nature writer's woodsy retreat here in Ulster County at West Park. Burroughs, "Slabsides," the Hudson River Valley and the Catskill Mountains will be featured in a special television program the night of April 1 on PBS-TV.

TV Series Profiling John Burroughs Soon

Of more than passing interest to every local resident will be the profile to be presented next Sunday night, April 1 at 8 p.m. on Public Broadcasting Service Television's program, "THE NATURALISTS."

It will profile that great American naturalist, John Burroughs; was filmed here in Ulster County at West Park and in the northern Catskills at Roxbury in Delaware County. Among location scenes used were outdoor views of the Catskills, the Hudson River, Black Creek, interiors of Woodchuck Lodge and Slabsides at West Park both National Historic Landmarks.

In addition, viewers will be treated to photographs of John Burroughs engaged in such activities as maple sugar making and entertaining friends at his famous, local rustic retreat. Sound track commentary will include excerpts from his essays and books on plants and animals and their relationship to the environment and mankind. Among Burroughs' entrancing, delightful and informative titles were: "Wake-Robin," "Birds and Poets," "Signs and Seasons," and "Ways of Nature."

Spent Life Here

Most local residents know that Burroughs became a world-famous naturalist-poet during his lifetime (1837-1921); spent his life along the Hudson and in the Catskills. James Case, special projects director of station KARMA-TV, of Denver, Colo., producers of "The Naturalists" series, had a high personal interest in the Burroughs profile. In supervising the production of the films in the series, he was reminded that his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Shea, were married at Slabsides in 1913 and visited at Riverby and Woodchuck Lodge. He had heard much about John Burroughs from them; was intrigued by the incalculable impact of his life and work not only on his contemporaries, but on future generations of Americans.

"The Naturalists" is an inspiring series: is aimed at helping contemporary society to "re-learn the values and laws of Nature," that the men profiled in the series came to slowly and naturally. Today's urban-insulated communities, where the bulk of our population lives, offer little opportunity for such learning, the show's producers feel. Widening these opportunities of our time and bringing about a new awareness — these are the great challenges of our time and the prime objective of the PBS-TV programming.

Other great American naturalists of the 19th and early 20th century included in the series are John Muir, Henry Thoreau and Theodore Roosevelt. Thoreau, long before he wrote "Walden," wrote of the Catskills' magnificence; said of one high Catskill peak: "the quiet and cleanliness and coolness seemed to be all one, which had their ambrosial character."

The PBS-TV profile on Burroughs will be carried Sunday, April 1 at 8 p.m. on such channels as Ch. 13 out of New York City, Ch. 17 out of Schenectady, and other educational stations.

Hauntings & Witches Area Lecture Topic

T-THIRTEEN

NEWBURGH Ed and Lorraine Warren, investigators of the supernatural will bring background data, photos, slides and taped interviews of their documented case histories of hauntings and witchcraft to Aquinas Hall, Mount Saint Mary College, Newburgh, on March 27 at 7:30 p.m. The presentation was arranged by the Student Activities Council of Mount Saint Mary College.

The Warrens have devoted a lifetime to the study of psychic phenomenon. Lorraine is a clairvoyant and Ed a researcher and investigator of paranormal activity. Together they have worked with psychiatrists, doctors, priests, ministers and mediums in over 2,000 cases and have documented well over 300 of these dealing with human and inhuman spirits which they consider genuine hauntings, poltergeists activity, spirit possessions, astral projection, demonology and witchcraft. Their investigations have taken them all over the United States and into Mexico and Canada.

In addition to their extensive lecture tours, the Warrens are professional artists and own and operate their own art studio and school in New England. In fact, it was their interest in painting old houses and New England scenes that brought them in contact with many varieties of "apparitions" and "spirits" that lead them, if not compelled them, to become seriously involved with the supernatural.

Had Own TV Show

The Warrens have had their own television talk show and have appeared as featured guests on numerous radio and television programs. They have also been subject of countless newspaper, magazine and periodical articles.

The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge.

POTPOURRI

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

On St. Patrick's Day, everybody's a wee bit Irish even if it means addin' "O" before DeLuca or Musialkiewicz. Last Saturday was no exception.

St. Mary's School hall was lit up like Irish eyes; even the Poles and Italians were smilin'. Everywhere one looked there was GREEN. Why Papa Bear's beard was even dyed for the occasion. (Understand Papa planned on wearin' grassy green longjohns, but couldn't find 'em to fit.)

There was ONE exception, however . . . it was Sofia and Herb Reuner's Karmann Ghia. That, believe it or not, was vivid ORANGE, and was parked right smack in front of the school hall. You just couldn't miss it! Herb must've had a tiger-in-the-tank standin' guard that night; it was the only thing that could've saved it from a hurry-up, cover-up paint job by some true-blue O'Brien. And that's no blarney.

It may've been St. Patrick's Day but it was definitely Gilpatrick's Night! Few guys in this world could put so much of themselves into "Won't You Come Home, Bill Bailey" and still have so much left over.

After talk about finesse! Jim arranged several solo numbers for John McCullough, then escaped to the dance floor with John's wife Grace. How did Jim manage to get John to sing? It was easy. As soon as he saw John's hesitation, Jim said: "That's a Protestant for you." So what could a good Methodist do? Right! He sang.

Gloria and Ray Myers were kiddin' one couple 'bout their motel-hoppin' ways. Hold it! There's nothing scandalous here. They're newlyweds — have been for 'bout five years now.

Seems this couple does lots of travelin'. Gloria and Ray were with them on one recent trip, and every city they went through, Madam X would point to motel and say, "Oh, we stayed there." In fact, even if they're only 'bout 35 minutes from home, there's a good chance they'll spend the night at a motel. No, they're not the Howard Johnsons. But guess again. You know them.

Fifteen minutes at a St. Patrick's Day dance is like findin' a Fountain of Youth. Among those noticeably younger at 2 a.m. than they were at 9 p.m. were the Prossers and McCardles, the Woerners and the Maurers, the Gearys and the Baileys, the Beicherts and the Murphys, as well as the Finnelys and the Scherers, the Mahoneys and the Gallaghers, the Roedells and the Slogers.

To prove a point 'bout the Fountain of Youth bit, someone asked Bob Slover how come his brother Bill wasn't at the party. Bill, who's a regular at the dances, said: "Bill's quite a bit older than me." And Bill, incidentally, is his TWIN. So you can put that in your bagpipe and squeeze it!

International Children's Book Day Is April 2

Hans Christian Andersen never doubted that he would become a success. He once said, "First you go through such an awful lot, and then you become famous!"

Andersen made many drawings on his travels. He also enjoyed making paper cuttings like the one below.

Children of today enjoy one of Andersen's fairy tales.

International Children's Book Day is April 2. It is celebrated each year throughout the world on Hans Christian Andersen's birthday.

Hans Christian Andersen was one of the greatest story tellers who ever lived. Although he wrote plays, poems and novels, he is best known for his fairy tales.

Early Life

His life was much like a fairy tale. He was born in Odense, Denmark in 1805. His mother was a washwoman, his father a shoemaker. As a child, young Hans Christian did not like school and at the age of 14, left home to seek his fortune in Copenhagen.

Andersen wanted to become an actor. Although he was not successful, he did meet a rich man who became his patron and sent him to school. He finished his schooling when he was 23 years old and began to write.

In 1835 he published his first successful novel and also a volume of fairy tales. His fame quickly spread throughout Europe. He was honored by kings and princes in many countries.

Fairy Tales

Andersen never meant his fairy tales to be just for children. He wanted them to be enjoyed by the whole family. He even objected when the plans for a statue showed him surrounded by children. He wanted to be remembered as more than a children's writer.

Personality

From his humble beginnings, it is easy to understand why he was a very thrifty man all his life. He loved attention, and often read aloud from his own works. Although he traveled a great deal, he would arrive at the station hours before the train was to leave. He also carried a rope with him so he could escape from a hotel window in case of fire.

His Loves

Andersen proposed to several women but was rejected by all of them and never married. When he died in 1875 he was carrying a letter from his first love, a woman he had met more than 40 years before. According to his wishes, this letter was burned, unread.

He reminds us of one of his most famous characters, the Ugly Duckling. Perhaps this is what makes him one of the most loved authors of all times.

Mini Tour: Denmark

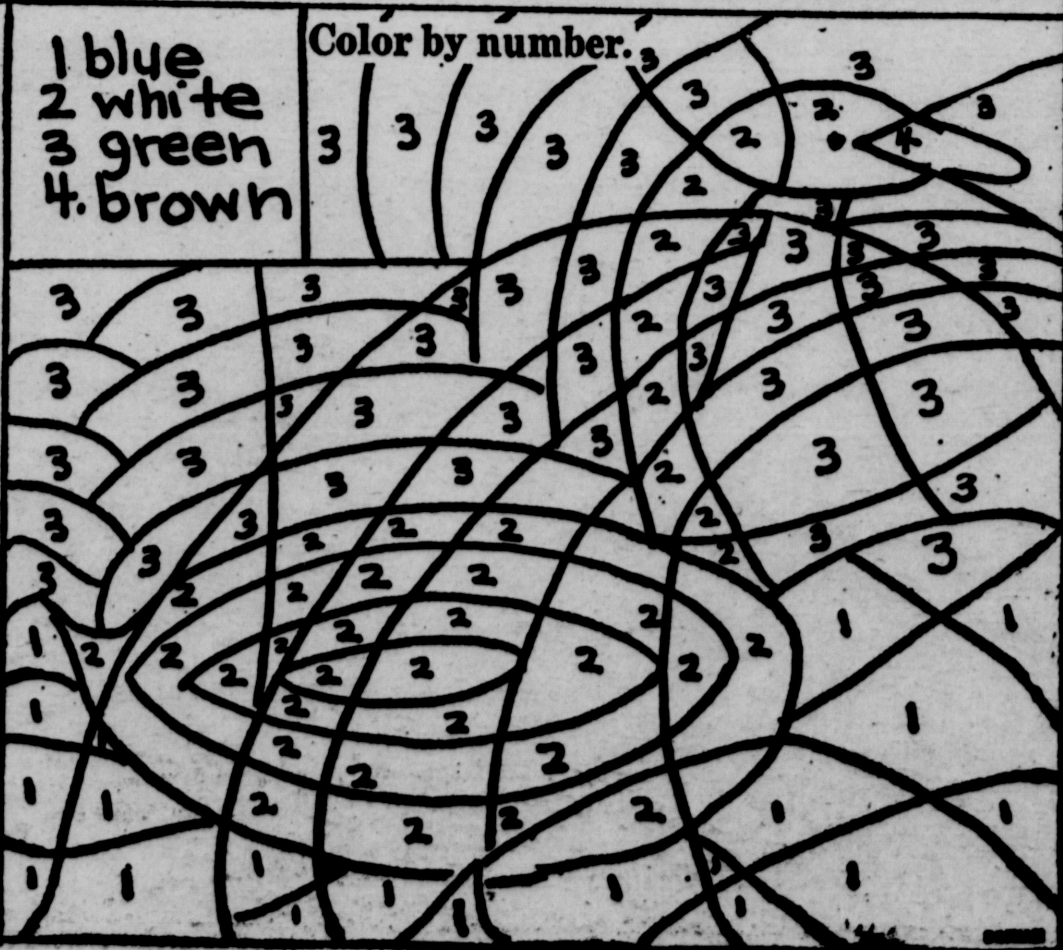

Denmark is a small country in the northern part of Europe. The country has a king, but he does not have much power. Danes are famous for their beautiful design in furniture and silver. They are also well known for their dairy products. Since no Dane lives more than 30 miles from the sea or some body of water, they are great fishermen and sailors. Danish Vikings were brave, fierce men who sailed the seas hundreds of years ago.

They feel this will bring about a better understanding between countries. On this day librarians are asked to call attention to books written by foreign authors.

What is the Hans Christian Andersen Award?

This award is presented every two years to the outstanding living author who has contributed the most to children's literature. The worldwide award is based on everything the author has written, not just one book. It is presented by the International Board of Books for Young People. The judges and winners are from all over the world.

One of the winners was an American, Meindert DeJong (pronounced Young). He wrote many books. One of them was the Newbery Award winner for 1955, "The Wheel on the School". Mr. DeJong lives in Chapel Hill, North Carolina.

IN THE DAYS OF
by HAL FOSTER

Our Story: BOLTARSON SAILS HIS LONGSHIP INTO THE FJORD AND LANDS AT TRONDHEIM. THEN FROM THE MOUNTAINTOPS SIGNAL FIRES ARE LIT ALL THE WAY TO VIKINGSHOLM, TO TELL KING AGUAR THAT IMPORTANT VISITORS ARE ON THE WAY.

ON THE BEACH BELOW VIKINGSHOLM CASTLE, A CHEERING CROWD GREETES THEM, FOR THE VISIT OF AN IMPORTANT NOBLE CALLS FOR A PUBLIC BANQUET AND GAMES.

KING AGUAR GREETES HIS GRANDSON, PRINCE ARN, AND HIS HEART IS GLAD. WITH A SON LIKE VAL AND A GRANDSON LIKE THIS STALWART LAD, THE KINGDOM WILL BE SAFE FOR MANY YEARS TO COME.

"PRINCE HEIDMAR IS TO BE CROWNED KING OF HOLVIK AND I SHOULD ATTEND THE CORONATION, BUT THE WOUND I RECEIVED IN THE LAST BATTLE FORBIDS IT. WILL YOU GO, ARN, AS MY REPRESENTATIVE?"
"YES, SIRE, GLADLY," ANSWERS ARN.

AS GRANDSON OF THE GREAT KING AGUAR HE RECEIVES EVERY COURTESY. UNLIKE THE VIKINGS THESE INLAND PEOPLE ARE VERY FORMAL AND DO EVERYTHING ACCORDING TO ESTABLISHED CUSTOM.
